NIXON ACTS ON PIPE

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon conferred today with Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton on legislation to remove a major obstacle to construction of the controversial Alaska oil pipeline.

The president's conference with Morton here will centre on two pieces of administration-backed legislation Nixon wants Congress to act upon quickly.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused to review an appeals court ruling that existing law precludes the granting of a right-of-way broad enough to accommodate the modern machinery that would be used to build and maintain the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline.

Nixon favors two pieces of legislation that, in essence, would give the secretary of the interior broad discretion in fixing right-of-way limits across public lands.

One would amend the 1920 act, while the other is part of a broader proposed Bureau of Land Management Organic Act.

Once Congress takes up the pipeline issue, one proposal to be discussed is the construction of a pipeline from the Arctic Slope to U.S. markets across Canada.

Communists Attack Across Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — Communists launched attacks in all of South Vietnam's four military regions today, touching off the heaviest fighting since the Jan. 28 cease-fire and stirring fears of a new North Vietnamese-Viet Cong offensive.

In Cambodia, where Communists have cut the last supply route to Phnom Penh, a "state of danger" has been declared giving emergency powers to the government.

In South Vietnam, the fighting ranged from the far north, where the Communists pumped 785 rounds of artillery and mortar fire into a South Vietnamese position in a single 20-minute period, to the Mekong Delta in the south, where 16 Communists and 23 South Vietnamese died in a three-hour battle.

One military source said the Communist attacks were probes designed to find a South Vietnamese weak spot and prepare for a major offensive.

"They (the Communists) never wanted a cease-fire at all. Now they are using the Joint Military Commission, the International Commission of Control and Supervision and the talks in Paris as a shield to gain more time to move supplies into the country, send in reinforcements and prepare for an attack," the source said.

The hot spots included Tong Le Chan, a border ranger base camp only 50 miles north of Saigon.

Tong Le Chan has been surrounded by the Communists since Feb. 26. Its estimated 500 defenders have taken about 33 per cent casualties and the South Vietnamese have said they will have to launch a full-scale relief operation if action is not taken soon.

The ICCS discussed sending a second letter to the two-party JMC, today composed of members from South Vietnam and the Viet Cong, asking the commission to provide a liasion officer to aid in an investigation of the situation.

One letter was sent last Saturday, but there has been no reply.

The Saigon command has said the cease-fire that took effect Jan. 28 could become "fragile" if Communist pressure continues against Tong Le Chan.

Military sources said "fragile" means that the South Vietnamese have a plan — so far only on paper — to relieve Tong Le Chan with a division-size operation of about 10,000 men.

"Such a move could lead to full-scale war in that area," the sources said.

In Cambodia, President Lon Nol officially declared the state of danger after the Communists tightened their grip on the capital Wednesday by severing the last remaining supply line feeding the city despite the 28th consecutive day of heavy U.S. air raids on Communist targets.

Defence officials in Washington said they saw no imminent threat of a collapse of Cambodia but shortly after Communist soldiers cut the capital's vital Highway 5 rice road, the national assembly authorized Lon Nol to issue the "state of danger" decree "should the situation warrant."

U.S. Defence Secretary Elliot Richardson said that the possibility of an airlift, like the one in 1948 which lifted a Communist blockade of Berlin, exists "if the situation is dire enough."

Under the "state of danger," which will be in effect for a minimum of six months, the government is authorized to suspend most constitutionally guaranteed civil liberites, shut down all newspapers except those published by the state and make arrests without warrant or charges.

The decree also carries the death penalty for persons who commit crimes "injurious to the state."

Act Toned Down

By PAUL MOSS

The NDP government has toned down one of the major restrictions under its proposed companies legislation.

The legislation affected states that all companies operating in B.C. must have a majority of directors who are Canadian citizens resident in Canada.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told the legislature Wednesday when he moved second reading of the massive, 157-page Companies Act, that an amendment to the bill will now require the majority of directors of B.C.-based companies to be "persons ordinarily resident in Canada."

The amendment, one of several brought in during the past six weeks as a result of representations to the government and closer study by his department, eliminates the citizenship requirement because the government recognizes it will create difficulties for landed immigrants wanting to establish in some form of free enterprise activity here.

NOT DILUTED

Macdonald claimed, however, that the modified requirement is not "diluting the force" of the original intent of the legislation.

"We believe we are protecting Canada and ensuring those who run companies will have their roots in Canada and their interests in Canada," he said.

Macdonald said thousands of immigrants are entering the province from many parts of the world, bringing capital with them and wanting to start up in business.

Such people "fully intend to put roots down but are not technically Canadian citizens."

"If the wording of the relevant section stays as it is, it will be unfair to them," he added.

WINS APPROVAL

The bill was given approval in principle after more than two hours of debate and some detailed criticism from the Liberal party, notably Liberal lawyer-MLA Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) and Garde Gardom (Vancouver-Point Grey), also a lawyer.

Gardom suggested the legislation be held over for further study and brought back to the fall session of the legislature for third reading.

Gardom also proposed a number of his own amendments which were designed, he said, to provide effective checks and balances on the operations of companies.

He said one of the greatest faults of the present legislation, which has basically served the province well, is that it hasn't been properly enforced and therefore hasn't provided a sufficiently deterring obstacle to the "white-collar crooks."

In moving second reading, Macdonald said one of the amendments to be considered

$867,694 LOSS ON CITY BUSES

B.C. Hydro's bus services in Greater Victoria were $867,694 in the red for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1972, according to figures tabled in the legislature Wednesday night by Premier Dave Barrett.

The loss was up $139,809 from the deficit of $727,885 in the previous year.

Barrett's figures, in answer to questions tabled earlier by Hugh Curtis (PC—Saanich and the Islands), state that revenue from the Greater Victoria transit system in 1971-72 was $1,735,961 while operating expenses totalled $2,603,655. Plant expenditures came to $25,833.

The loss on Hydro's transit operations in Greater Vancouver that year amounted to just over $4 million, up from $3.8 million in 1970-71.

Total losses for the two cities of $4.9 million were made up by a subsidy from Hydro's general revenue, and in addition there was the usual $2 million transit subsidy from the provincial government.

Incidents 'Regrettable'

Brig.-Gen. George Brown today said that two incidents that involved civilians during the "Nasty Deal" training exercise this week should not have happened.

Brown, commander of the 1st Combat Group, said however that he was proud of the alertness of his troops which led to the incidents at and near CFB Esquimalt.

In one case, two workmen on the base were arrested and in the other, troops entered the Tudor House beer parlor.

Brown said he believes that in both incidents, his troops genuinely believed they were carrying out their orders by going after persons suspected to be part of the exercise.

The two workmen were Hans Gajowski and Joe Macerias. Both were allowed on the base without passes and were thus obvious points of suspicion to the troops, whose duty it was to round up any suspicious persons.

The Tudor House incident occurred when troops travelling from Work Point to Naden saw a man they recognized as a "wanted" person in connection with the exercise. The man entered the Tudor House so the soldiers went in after him.

Brown said they knew that the exercise did not involve points off the base, and the incident was "very regrettable."

"They saw the fellow go into the pub and said, "By God, there's a wanted man," Brown said today in an interview.

"... This should not have happened," Brown said, "but it showed they were damned alert."

The general added that despite the "most unfortunate" occurrences, "I don't think it really upset people as much as the newspapers let on."

Chain Cuts Price

The meat boycott produced its first major cut in prices in the eastern U.S. today but prices remained unchanged in most sections of Canada and the U.S.

In the eastern U.S., a major retail chain in three states slashed the price up to 40 cents a pound on more than 100 meat items.

A spokesman for the firm said the prices would be held at the new levels "as long as possible."

Prices also dipped noticeably in the Bay area of San Francisco, but store managers declined to credit the boycott for the decline.

William Gross, a spokesman for Safeway said the price drops were triggered by the erratic wholesale beef market. He said that in some individual Safeway stores, meats were on display at reduced prices because of lower demand, but he stressed that such reductions were on a store-by-store basis.

The revolt against the high cost of meat has cut retail sales by as much as 70 per cent in some parts of the U.S. today and laid off thousands of butchers and other workers.

Frank Register, executive director of the U.S. National Association of Retail Grocers, said his organization has been making spot checks since the boycott began and meat sales are down an average 40 per cent.

He said, however, "At this time, the retail grocer has no cause for alarm because the same amount of money is being spent." He said total sales are about the same, but meat spending has shifted to poultry and fish.

The shift has been a boon to wholesalers in the fish business. And many fish retailers are experimenting with selling specialty items in addition to fish usually marketed.

"A perfect example" is the sale of shad roe eggs, said Ralph Sachs, sales manager for W. M. Walker Inc., Chicago fish wholesalers.

He said the eggs, a salt water delicacy, were the first he had received this year from from the east coast.

Bill Lowers Age of Consent

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

The legislature gave approval in principle today to a bill which opposition spokesmen angrily said would allow children between 16 and 19 years to get medical treatment — including abortions — without their parents' consent.

The bill consists of amendments to the Infants Act which Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said provide for protection of children over 16 and under 19 who are travelling away from home and who need medical, surgical, dental or mental treatment.

Spokesmen for all three opposition parties criticized the provisions of the bill and said it would leave the door open for children, living either at home or away from home, to obtain abortions, contraceptives or treatment for venereal disease without their parents approving or without the doctor involved even being required to consult the parents.

When the voice vote was taken, however, the bill was approved, with a substantial number of opposition members opposing it.

Garde Gardom (L—Point Grey) said the bill constitutes a "total elimination of parental consent." In the case where a parent refuses a certain type of treatment for a child, the child could give his permission to the doctor and the parent's authority would be over-ruled.

Gardom said the bill is an "open sesame" bill without adequate checks and balances to ensure that children are being protected from the consequences of their actions.

Ed Smith (SC—North Peace) said the province will "probably become inundated with children from other parts of Canada" who could receive medical treatment in B.C. that they could not in their home provinces. He said the bill has "deep psychological ramifications" and is an overreaction by the government to a relatively minor problem.

Gary Lauk (NDP—Vancouver Centre) said the responsibilities of doctors to make adequate consultation with parents and other doctors are not changed by the provisions of the amendments to the Infants Act.

NEW CAR SALES SOAR TO RECORD

DETROIT (UPI) — New car buyers in March beat the spring sales rush as they bought a record 1.1 million automobiles — the most sold in one month in automotive history.

Predictions made at the end of the record 1972 sales year have been revised upward by auto executives who saw more cars sold in the first three months of 1973 than in any previous first quarter.

The record March sales up 24.9 per cent from last March included 963,195 domestic cars and an estimated 175,000 imports, both single-month records. First-quarter sales reached 2,472,722 domestic cars to break a mark established in 1966.

VOLCANO EXPLODES, KILLS TWO IN CHILE

PUERTO AYSEN, Chile (UPI) — Snowcapped Hudson Volcano, dormant two years, exploded in a gigantic fireball today, killing two persons and more than a thousand head of cattle. Debris fell over a 25-mile area.

Police said the 7,500-foot volcano roared into life before dawn, showering flaming lava, rocks and ashes over the Huemules Valley, a sparsely-populated cattle-raising area about 1,000 miles south of Santiago.

Debris continued to fall during the day and in some sections of the valley was six feet deep, police said.

Thieves Main Danger to Peace Men

By JAMES ANDERSON
Times Correspondent

SAIGON — Not all the dangers in Vietnam are on the battlefields. Major Vance McDougall of Toronto has a police blotter full in incidents and a cast on his right hand to prove it.

Major McDougall, the top military policeman in Canada's truce supervision contingent, had one finger broken and two dislocated when a thief snatched his camera off his wrist last week.

Another Canadian officer was knocked unconscious and robbed by a prowler in his barracks at Tan Son Nhut air base outside Saigon early Wednesday.

Maj. Alex Saunder, 43, of Ottawa, was suffering from a headache, and possibly a mild concussion, Canadian sources said, after the attack—the latest incident in a crime wave of robberies against the Canadians and other members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

"We've had two cameras stolen, eight or nine watches and pockets picked for a total of about $400," Major McDougall said.

A sneak thief got into the Canadian quarters at Tan Son Nhut air base outside Saigon last week and got away with 20,000 piastres (about $40) from a room in which several officers were sleeping.

From its official equipment, the Canadian contingent has lost five typewriters and two electric generators.

Four Canadians in the past week ran into a South Vietnamese holdup man operating on Nguyen Hue Boulevard outside the Palace Hotel in Central Saigon where a number of Canadian officers and diplomats live.

One of the Canadians identified the man, a South Vietnamese sailor, at Saigon police headquarters yesterday. He was picked up within 24 hours after the Canadians filed a complaint to the South Vietnamese police.

U.S. Embassy officials are said to believe that he is also responsible for a number of robberies against Americans and possibly several murders.

With the Canadians, he claimed in each case to be a policeman and demanded identification. Then, he demanded money and claimed he had a gun — although none of the Canadians actually saw a weapon.

All the Canadians managed to escape by ignoring him long enough to walk into a crowd or get close to some policemen on the street.

"The Americans warned us about the high crime rate in Saigon," Major McDougall said, "and it just happened that this guy fits exactly the description of one of the people they tipped us off about — short, fat, wearing a faded blue uniform and claiming to be a CID (Criminal Investigation Detachment) man:

"It makes you kind of suspicious when they (the South Vietnamese) could pick him up as soon as we complained, and the Americans have been after him for months."

The thief who got away with Major MacDougall's camera was typical of the South Vietnamese petty criminals, who like to work in pairs on motorcycles — one driving the bike and the other sitting behind to grab a watch or camera from an unwary pedestrian or a passenger in a car.

Major MyDougall was only a few feet from the ICCS compound in Bien Hoa, about 20 miles from Saigon, taking a picture of a pagoda when the thief whizzed past and bragged his camera.

"I held on to the strap and nearly jerked him off his bike but when I felt the finger snap I let go. My jeepwas right there and we chased him for a cou0le of blocks, but there was no way we could cstch him.

"One of my men apprehended a thief a while back. He grabbed for his watch but got his finger caught under the band and was pulled off the back of the motorbike."

Sincw the last Americans left Tan Son Nhut air base last week, the Canadian military policemen have had their hands full with a rash of thefts, many by the families of South Vietnamese Air Force personnel who live on the base.

So poor are Vietnamese soldiers and their families that almost anything is worth stealing. Among the missing items in quarters the Canadians took over as the Americans left: all the ice-cube trays from the refrigerators.

Major MacDougall has only six Canadian military policemen on his staff, but the ICCS has hired almost 300 South Vietnamese civilians to help guard its facilities at Tan Son Nhut.

Building Survey For Quake Urged

Public buildings and hospitals should be surveyed to estimate the affects of earthquake on their construction, a U.S. designer of earthquake resistant buildings said today.

Consulting Engineer Albyn Mackintosh is in Victoria to talk to architects and engineers about the advantages of building with reinforced masonary in earthquake prone areas.

Mackintosh practices in Los Angeles where earthquakes — most too small to be felt — "happen every day."

Mackintosh said that buildings designed to resist earthquakes, and built with reinforced masonry or concrete, came through the San Fernando Valley earthquake in 1971 without major damage.

The 1971 quake taught engineers a lesson. Freeway cloverleafs were twisted completely out of shape.

Mackintosh said designers now realize that when they span a fault they must allow for movement of the fault.

A swimming pool designed by Mackintosh for a California resident would make a good earthquake shelter. It recently rode out a 20-foot shift in the fault. Faults are cracks in the earth's crust where land masses press against each other.

Mackintosh says earthquake resistant buildings are no more expensive than ordinary buildings when maintenance costs are considered. Over a period of years the added cost of earthquake resistant construction is offset by lower maintenance costs.

at the committee stage will declare that any company will be considered an "insider" company "with all the obligations and penalties attracted to improper insider dealing if that should occur."

He said that was considered necessary because the government was concerned about companies trading in their own shares.

Macdonald said the bill, which was first drafted under his immediate predecessor Leslie Peterson, will provide greater "shareholder democracy," greater protection for shareholders and also for members of the public who deal with companies.

CODE OF CONDUCT

"It will require companies and their officers to establish standards of conduct in their affairs, for breach of which they may be liable to damages and be ordered to pay compensation, possibly to members of the public, but more likely to their fellow-shareholders," he said. "So I think is is a progressive and modern step to bring the company law of this province into the latter half of the 20th century."

Macdonald said there was an increasing tendency to leave company law enforcement to the parties concerned and to the courts.

He claimed most people were aware the present system, requiring companies to file returns with the Registrar of Companies, has "broken down."

There were cries of "No, it hasn't" from the Liberals. But Macdonald said anyone making a search in the registrar's office will have experienced the frustration of finding company returns two or three years out of date.

Under the new legislation, he said, all companies will be required to maintain their own records offices and to make available not only to shareholders but to members of the public esential information regarding their operations, shareholders and capital share structure.

For a modest fee any person will be able to search any company's records office, abstract the information he needs and take it away with him.

That provision of the bill, however, was dismissed contemptuously by Gardom.

MUSCLE MAN

If Macdonald or anyone else tried to follow that route in an attempt to get information from a "tough" company "you would be met by a muscle man at the front door and cut you go," he said.

At least under the present system a citizen can have full access to the records in the registrar's office, even if "the whole story isn't there."

Gardom suggested the only reason that particular provision had been put in the bill was that it had been requested by the registrar and his staff, who have had "their backs broken trying to do the work in front of them."

Se complained that seven pages of proposed amendments already tabled in the house are so complex and detailed that MLAs need "a microscope, a slide rule and a PhD in semantics" to dovetail them into the bill itself.

Among the measures Gardom suggested be included in the legislation was the requirement that companies file a true list of shareholders and directors. That, he said, would make it far tougher for "fly-by-nighters" and other shady individuals to hide behind corporate veils.

Companies should also be obliged to declare the true value of their assets and not the face value, with those values being supported by directors' sworn declarations, and file with the registrar a copy of their federal income tax return.

Auditors should be required by law to report any infractions which come to their notice, and any shareholder should be entitled to request a government audit or inspection of a company suspected of being in default.

AVOID "DISASTERS"

Gardom said if some of those stipulations were included in the legislation, it would prevent or at least reduce the chances of a "disaster" such as the Commonwealth Trust crisis of a few years ago, when thousands of British Columbians lost millions of their hard-earned dollars.

Liberal Williams said the legislation "will enable ripoffs unlike any we have ever seen before."

He said sharp corporation lawyers will be able to "drive holes through this legislation like you won't believe."

"This is not a companies act, it's a sieve," he said. "Something you drain things through. You catch the big things and the little things go by."

. . . MEAT

In Prince George, a public meeting is scheduled later today to plan a week-long meat boycott which would start Sunday. Jacqui Graham, the boycott organzer and a Prince George housewife, said the protest will be directed specifically against beef, pork and chicken, with information booths set up near major supermarkets in the area.

She also plans to distribute meatless recipes during the boycott.

Leading economists see little chance the meat boycott can have much lasting effect on prices.

The week-long protest would have to continue in some extended form to carry much weight among the major supply and demand forces at work around the world, many economic observers agree.

"It may make a lot of people fee lbetter because they're doing something," says Dr. A. James Miegs, economist at New York's Argus Research Corp.

"But to have a significant impact on the price of beef, you would have to bring about a pretty fundamental change in North American buying habits — and I don't believe that's likely to happen."

PEACE VOYAGE THROUGH SUEZ

TEL AVIV (AP) — Three Frenchmen landed in a rubber dinghy in Israeli-occupied Sinai today on the first leg of their avowed peace voyage through the war-blocked Suez Canal, the military command said.

LONDON (AP) — British Overseas Airways Corp. cabin stewards and hostesses struck for three hours at London airport today to protest "nightmarish" duty rosters they claim are ruining their love lives.

Hostesses and stewards are angered by BOAC's emergency 12-hour standby system for cabin crews which they say often forces them to cancel dates and parties.

Float Contract Renewal Okayed

A $44,300 contract has been awarded to Pacific Piledriving Company Limited of Victoria for float renewal at Sidney, the federal public works department announced today.

The work consists of repair and maintenance of eight log floats, measuring 10 by 60 feet, which provide public docking facilities for pleasure craft.

The project is scheduled to be completed by late May.

Teacher Pay Topic

Province-wide salary negotiations for teachers are an inevitable and positive solution to yearly bargaining disputes, say local school board chairmen, but teacher associations oppose the idea.

The conflicting opinions were expressed this week with the announcement that Professor W. N. Toombs, who headed a committee recommending provincial teacher-trustee bargaining in Saskatchewan, will discuss his proposals with educators in Victoria this weekend.

"It has to come," says Saanich school board chairman Rubymay Parrott. "I've always been a firm advocate of salary negotiations on a province-wide basis."

Parrott said she is continually concerned about the amount of time wasted in what she calls the "annual war dance" of local salary disputes.

Victoria board chairman Peter Bunn says separate negotiations in the 74 B.C. school districts could conceivably cost over a quarter of a million dollars annually.

DIVIDE AND CONQUER

He said local negotiations are a "divide and conquer thing" with each district trying to get a higher pay raise and forcing other districts to follow suit.

Sooke school board chairman Fred Willway agreed provincial bargaining is "the final answer."

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association president Bob Mitchell says he agrees there are large overhead costs involved in salary disputes but the teachers group have traditionally opposed provincial bargaining.

"Economically teachers do better with a local situation," Mitchell said, because individual contracts can account for different economic situations.

In places where teachers have provincial bargaining they have "much poorer pay rates," Mitchell said.

EVERY TWO YEARS

The Toombs report, presented to the Saskatchewan minister of education last October, recommended in part the establishment of a permanent teacher relations board, made up of teachers and school board trustees, to negotiate province-wide contracts every two years.

The scheme has generated great interest among B.C. school boards and large attendance is expected at his two-day workshop to be held at UVic Friday and Saturday.

B.C. Teachers' Federation spokesman Mike Mivzain said the provincial association had studied the Toombs report and decided they were "not interested in the kind of process included in it."

"We feel we can still work effectively at the local level with employers," Mivzain said. "We don't want separation of employer and employee."

The Toombs report includes a recommendation that teachers decide, before negotiations begin, whether they will fall back on binding arbitration or a non-binding conciliation award with the option of a strike or lockout, if a dispute arises.

All the school board chairmen agreed however teachers should not be put in a strike situation.

The BCTF spokesman said the teachers group plan to discuss and recommend alternate changes in the bargaining process at their annual general meeting this month.

FREE SHOPPING SPREE WAS A MEATY AFFAIR

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — The meat boycott frantically went by the boards Wednesday when a suburban Mississauga woman who won five minutes free shopping in a supermarket rang up $1,077.44 in purchases — virtually all of it meat.

"I did pretty good," Mrs. Patt Dupuis said later. "I filled six shopping carts" — and nearly cleaned out the meat counter in the store where she elected to take her five-minute prize.

The meat wasn't quite free. Mrs. Dupuis and her husband had to drink about three cases of pop to get enough bottle-cap ilners to send in four entries. One of hers was drawn.

Drinking all that pop wasn't so hard on her husband because his wife said, he drinks his mixed with whisky.

OTTAWA (CP) — Lack of education is one of the biggest factors in unemployment, Statistics Canada figures indicate.

A recent study of education and the labor force says unemployment rates vary from 10.2 per cent for persons with only Grade 8 or less to 6.5 per cent for high school graduates and 3.9 per cent for persons with some post-secondary education.

The statistics include all civilians over 14 who are not going to school, retired, keeping house full-time, or disabled. The study is based on an April, 1972, survey.

The study says persons with little education not only are more likely to be unemployed, but they also are more likely to be unemployed for longer periods.

It notes that education levels are increasing, but the figures show more than half of young people lack a high school diploma.

Of the 25 to 34 age group, 51.2 per cent had not completed high school. For older groups, the percentage increases, up to 81.3 per cent for persons 65 and over.

Education levels and unemployment also vary by region, the study says.

British Columbia had the highest proportion of the population with high school diplomas, 44.3 per cent. The percentage of persons who completed high school was 28.9 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, 34.8 per cent in Ontario, 35.3 per cent in Quebec and 36.1 per cent in the Prairies.

The study also said regional differences in unemployment were less in the higher-education groups than in the comparatively-uneducated categories.

Whopping U.S. Price Hike

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices in the United States increased 2.2 per cent in March, posting for the second month in a row the sharpest climb in 22 years, the government reported today.

The increase was led by a 4.6-per-cent jump in the wholesale costs of farm products and processed foods.

Industrial commodities increased 1.2 per cent last month, the steepest rate since January 1951. Wholesale prices of finished manufactured goods jumped 2.1 per cent, a rate unmatched since August 1951.

Meanwhile, a 10-per-cent increase in food prices is predicted this year rather than the six-per cent foreseen by the administration, a report to Congress says. The report lays the blame on "policy blunders" by the U.S. Agricultural Department.

"As a result of these policy blunders the food price outlook is worse than the administration acknowledges, with it probable that consumer food prices will rise by a total of 10 per cent in 1973," it said.

The continued rise in prices seems virtually certain to bring further pressure on the U.S. administration to clamp tighter controls on the economy. President Nixon clamped a ceiling on meat prices last week but organized labor and congressional Democrats are pressing for even further controls.

Directly challenging Nixon, the House Banking Committee Wednesday night approved the strongest economic controls since the Second World War with all prices, interest rates and rents rolled back to their Jan. 10 levels.

The issue is headed for a House floor fight, probably about April 17, and Congress likely will tone down the bill considerably before final passage.

Nixon almost certainly would veto the bill in its present form. He wants an extension of his discretionary control powers which expire at the end of this month.

Belfast Women Urge Cease-Fire

BELFAST (UPI) — Roman Catholic women in Belfast launched a campaign today to force the Irish Republican Army to proclaim a ceasefire that would halt much of Northern Ireland's violence.

The campaign began during a lull in the bloodshed that has killed 763 persons in 3½ years of political and religious strife among Roman Catholics, Protestants and security forces.

In the only major cases of violence reported Wednesday, police said snipers wounded two soldiers and exploded a bomb at the home of a Catholic priest.

Police said snipers shot one soldiers patrolling in a Belfast district and a second in Londonderry. A bomb later wrecked the home of a Catholic priest and damaged an adjacent church in Antrim, 14 miles north of Belfast, but caused no injuries.

The Belfast peace move developed after a poll organized by Catholic women in a Londonderry stronghold last weekend showed that residents favor a stop in the violence.

Time for a Clear Statement

Public belief that the danger of flooding the Skagit River valley, on the southern border of British Columbia, had been removed is apparently premature. A report from Seattle says that the City Light utility is going ahead with its application to raise the Ross Dam to produce more hydro power, and that plans to proceed are on schedule.

Earlier this week, Environment Minister Jack Davis told the Commons that the U.S. Government had agreed to attend a series of meetings designed to negotiate a settlement of the dispute, supporting his indication in January that the problem was well on the way to solution and that the threatened 5,200 acres of Skagit valley would be saved. But now it appears that the U.S. state department authorities have merely agreed to come to the meetings, and that there is no commitment to halt plans to raise the dam and so back up more water into Canada.

Whether Mr. Davis spoke carelessly or was misunderstood in being reported matters little at this point. What the public wants to hear is that the federal and British Columbia governments have readied their cases for the preservation of the valley, and that they are prepared to achieve a settlement with the Seattle and U.S. interests and lift the threat from the Skagit's fine recreational country.

There is little doubt that the provincial government some years ago gave Seattle City Light to understand that the dam could be raised and that compensation for the flooded Canadian land would be set at $35,000 a year for 99 years. Mr. Williston, lands minister in the recent Social Credit government, even called for tenders to log the valley before its flooding. But a rising tide of public concern at the loss of the valley, and a whole new public appreciation of natural conservation, brought strong efforts to halt the threatened flooding. Conservationists in Washington State also joined in the campaign. Until the latest report it seemed that the battle had been won, and that all that was left was to sort out the claims and the costs.

The most telling argument against raising the dam, heard from the Mayor of Seattle and other supporters in both countries, is that the amount of extra power to be derived from the higher head of water at the Ross dam will serve Washington's needs only for a short time. Soon much larger power sources will have to be found, and there is little point in losing the Skagit Valley merely to add a drop in the bucket of Washington's required power.

Mr. Davis owes us some fuller explanation of the new situation, and some facts on the exact stand which Canada is taking on the matter and how it intends to fight the case. The success which had been understood in his earlier words is apparently nothing more than hope, at this stage.

Recent reports of a B.C. Hydro proposal to dam Pend Oreille River, south of Trail, for a power source, thereby flooding U.S. territory across the border, should be given more publicity. If this project would destroy valley land which Washington State wishes to preserve, then it should be dropped. Any idea of letting the Skagit Valley be flooded in return for permission to flood land upstream on the Pend Oreille should be rejected immediately.

With so many other power sources soon to be brought into use, including nuclear production, the time has passed when any plan to embark on vast engineering works regardless of their effects on the environment will be automatically accepted by the public. We have progressed beyond that frontier mentality. Let's have some solid facts on Ottawa's and British Columbia's intentions in regard to the Skagit.

What About Our Debris?

It should be recognized as good news by boating enthusiasts who frequent the Gulf of Georgia that the B.C. Forest Service is now clearing away broken logs, stumps and other debris on the banks of the Fraser from Hope to Mission. Effective action should prevent this material from floating down the river to become hazards to various craft in the Gulf when the water rises during the annual snow melt run-off.

But what about the debris lying around the shores of southern Vancouver Island, clogging beaches and posing hazards when high tide and an offshore wind carry it out?

On numerous occasions efforts have been made to clear the beaches, usually with limited success. Salvage operations in which suitable logs are dragged from shore and towed to mills leave behind an accumulation of junk which has little commercial value. Burning in thickly populated seashore areas is distressing to home occupants and leaves a charred mess behind.

It is to be hoped the lower Fraser clean-up lives up to expectations. But what's in store for Juan de Fuca?

JAMES H. GRAY

The Follies of Governments

CALGARY — If there is one thing provincial politicians do better than anything else it is to criticize the federal government's ineptitude in spending tax money. Ottawa, they complain, hogs all the best tax sources when it should be getting out of the way of the provincial taxers and letting the people who know how spend the government funds.

Disclosures now surfacing around the Alberta Resources Railway are capping the destruction of the myth that provincial governments are efficient money spenders. That myth, indeed, had already been shattered beyond repair by the Canadian Forest Industries disaster in Manitoba.

The two have this in common: they are $100-million miscalculations that are classic examples of the difficulty of subsidizing economic developments. In one case it was by direct government investment. In the other it was by lending money to private enterprise. Both were equally disastrous.

Costly Legacy

The Alberta Resources Railway is a legacy to the Lougheed Conservatives from the Manning Social Credit government of super-saintly memory. It began as a 100-mile, $33-million railway to a coal deposit. It ended as a $133-million liability that will go on costing the Alberta taxpayers $7 million a year in perpetuity. It will cost at least that, even if it ever gets back into full operation. A flood last spring washed out great chunks of the northern sector which is not yet restored. Alberta and the CNR are arguing over who will foot that bill which may run to many millions of dollars.

The railway was first conceived as a spur line from Hinton, on the CNR west of Edmonton, to a point 80 miles northwest at Grand Cache where there was a huge coal deposit. By building it the coal deposits could be developed for sale to the Japanese.

Then the CNR got into the act and conned the Socreds into extending the road clear up to Grand Prairie, 100 miles farther north through the roughest kind of country. The rationale was that this would give Peace River farmers a money-saving short cut over which to ship wheat to Vancouver.

Unhappily, and incredibly, nobody in either the government or the railway thought of doing a cost analysis of the project. Then some inept bargaining resulted in the coal developers being given a 50 cents per ton freight rate when $1.40 was needed to pay operating costs alone.

Finally, the Japanese seem to have so out-bargained the mining company that it has lost nothing but money in great gobs since the inception. Recently it has been laying off miners and cutting back production.

Even the CNR has cooled on the project. When it was being built, the railway took an option to buy the road. No price was specified. When the government tested the option the best offer it could get for its $133 million railway was $12 million.

Over in Manitoba, the Schreyer NDP government inherited the northern Manitoba pulp project from the Roblin-Weir

ERNEST MANNING
. . . super-saintly memory

Conservative administration. When the new administration started turning over rocks it found fantastic worm-nests.

The Tories, through the Manitoba Development Fund, advanced between $86 million and $94 million to the pulp mill promoters without really ever discovering who the equity holders of the project were. When it took office, the Schreyer administration put the auditors in and then threw the project into bankruptcy.

Since then a royal commission has spent more than a year probing into the company, its contractors, its principals and the Manitoba government agencies that did the lending.

At the moment, Manitoba is trying to press fraud charges against a number of the principals whom it charges made off with $10 million-odd from government loans. Still decidedly undecided is the future of the project and whether it will ever be any more successful than the Alberta Resources Railway.

These twin disasters are noteworthy only by reason of size. Ten years ago Ross Thatcher rode to power in Saskatchewan on a campaign of ridicule of the NDP government for its money-losing small bore government enterprises.

Rival politicians naturally make all the hay they can out of these disasters. But there is some significance in the fact that they have happened to Conservative, Socialist Socred administrations alike. Becoming involved in such financial gaffes is a reflection of the frustration that has engulfed all prairie governments over the years through the inability of their regions to attract or develop secondary industry.

Confronted by unused resources and idle people, they have tended to grasp in desperation at any straws floating past, usually with disastrous results.

Bootstrap Economics

This predilection for testing bootstrap economic gizzmos, it should be emphasized, is neither new nor the monopoly of politicians. Sixty years ago the CPR sent special trains as far east as Boston to lure settlers to its Alberta land spreads. The prospects got free rides all the way to Calgary. If they signed purchase agreements the railway then would break their land for them, install an irrigation system and help finance their equipment purchases.

The cost to the railways, to the government and to other land developers was horrendous. But it got the West settled. Because it did, economic subsidies seem to be the sort of thing prairie governments turn to when nothing else works.

That they seldom work any better today than they did 60 years ago doesn't seem to matter. The works which the subsidies have bought have a way of remaining long after the cost of the disasters is forgotten. In time, the $7 million annual charge for the Alberta Resources Railway will be buried so deeply in the government accounts nobody will know it is there. And nobody in Alberta will care enough to try to perpetuate its memory by christening it "Manning's Folly."

". . . excuse me, I'm taking a public opinion poll . . . are you in favor of capital punishment . . . ?"

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

The Only Way

I read with some glee that a doctor has been refused government aid in perfecting a portable kidney-cleansing machine. Well dear doctor, money doesn't grow on trees. Where do you think the funds come from to provide LIP grants to the tune of $380,000 for the underprivileged students at Rochdale College in Toronto? Welfare grants just don't keep up with the rising costs of the "medications" they require. Disregard what the Mayor and Chief of Police call the place. Just petty jealousy.

Think hard doctor, there are funds to carry out the intelligent wishes of government. Think of the $600-million tax write-off to the struggling auto industry. How about $50 million for the Bras d'Or development? Or $13 million to sell the fanciest scrapped aircraft carrier in the world. Junk doesn't come cheap.

Throw your contraption into a corner, doctor. Pick up a brush and palette. Paint a 3-D abstract in old cow dung and used beer bottle caps — submit it to the Canada Council and when a solid money flow has started to another federal arteest, perhaps you will find time to take up a hobby — like tinkering around with some fool life-giving machine. It's the only way you'll win. — "Non Confidence".

Commends It

The government is to be commended for its proposal to conserve farmland in the province. Farmers will have little cause for complaint if the government is willing to buy farmland at fair assessed value. Any government would be wise to explore the possibility of buying and leasing farmland as an investment in the public interest. — James D. Craig, 1675 Oak Bay Ave.

Meat Prices

The recently conceived notion of a consumer boycott on meat is a poor one. First, one must ask why prices are so high. One commonly held idea is that there is a conspiracy between producers and retailers to "rip off" the public. There is little evidence to support this wildly conceived notion. In fact, the meat industry is one of the most competitive in North America. No, the price of meat is high because the demand is high and rising.

Given that, a consumer boycott can be no more than a symbolic protest against a natural phenomenon that producers have little control over. It is true that in so far as there is a reduction in demand, there will be an easing off of the price. However, the irony is that this will last only so long as consumers boycott and that those who do not participate in the boycott will be the beneficiaries. If consumers feel a strong desire to help those unwilling to join them in this enterprise, when the boycott has ended the demand will rise back to its original level or higher and prices will go up again.

One hopeful sign is that the prices of meat and related products seem about ready to fall as wholesale prices have been dropping. However, it would be wrong to assume that boycotts have made any causal difference in that price drop. Therefore the boycott would be a good idea for housewives who like causes; but don't expect it to make any real difference. — Jerry Lassen, Department of Economics, University of Victoria.

Fluoridated Milk

I think Dennis Cocke's suggestion that milk, instead of water, be fluoridated, is an excellent one. Fluoridating an entire public water supply is such a waste of money and such a waste of the chemical, apart from the fact that it robs people of their rights to decide for themselves.

If authorities are prepared to spend unnecessary money on fluoridating water supplies they must also be prepared to support a method of fluoridation, which is selective as it only involves the beneficiaries, and which costs so much less.

The installation cost of milk fluoridation is one hundredth of the cost of water fluoridation and the day-to-day treatment cost of milk fluoridation is one tenth of the cost of water fluoridation.

Children alone can benefit from fluoride, during the period of time when their teeth are forming, i.e. up to the age of 11 years when the enamel finally hardens. After this time it plays no part in preventing tooth decay, therefore it makes sense that a method is adopted that enables only children to drink it.

School children in Winterthur, Switzerland, have been drinking fluoridated milk for some 16 years now, and the results are excellent.

Many countries are stopping the fluoridation of public water supplies and using alternatives. The Federal Minister of Health, Canberra, Australia, recently recommended that the fluoridation of Canberra's water supply be stopped and suggested the fluoridation of children's milk instead.

Milk fluoridation must be the answer. — Ann C. H. Waring (Mrs.), Denmead, Hampshire, England.

Progressive Evolution

Seldom have I read such rubbish as the letter from your correspondent Patricia Young, "Slaves."

Your correspondent says that the pilgrims left the Old World to procure religious freedom but she conveniently forgets to tell your readers that as soon as the Pilgrims were established in the New World they proceeded to persecute every religion other than their own. The head of the Mormon Church was even killed in Illinois and his sect was forced to flee to Utah.

Apparently your correspondent believes that we should lend support to all the tin-pot dictators all over the world. Of course these dictators have the ready support of the U.S. and are classified as part of the "free world." I have lived in parts of this "free world" and so I know something of my subject.

The present NDP government in B.C. has brought in more legislation to protect the "small man" in six weeks than the great Bennett free enterprise regime did in 20 years. Apparently your correspondent does not keep up with the new legislation introduced into the House. For my part I attend the Legislature regularly and keep abreast of real events and not emotionalism.

One only has to look at events in the U.S. with the blatant corruption in the recent presidential election to see how "true freedom" operates. This is not for me, thank you. I prefer our form of progressive evolution. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 1680 Poplar Ave.

Response

The claim of Mr. Ken Farquharson, director of the Sierra Club, to an "excellent response" to their ad in support of Bill 42 is grossly exaggerated. Simple mental arithmetic will prove that 2,200 replies represent only 1/10th of 1 per cent of the total population of B.C., not the 1 per cent that he claimed upon delivering the coupons to Mr. Stupich.

If this is supposed to be an "excellent response to one day's advertising," then what of the tens of thousands of letters opposing the bill and thousands of membership applications flowing into the headquarters of the three opposition parties? — W. L. Burdon, 972 Market St.

Abortion

Why are there so many babies killed here each week in Victoria, the "Abortion Capital" of Canada?

The law clearly states that the "life or health of the woman must be endangered" and yet Dr. Scott Wallace, in a public statement in the Legislature on March 9, said that he frequently saw cases where abortions were granted because the pregnancies were an "inconvenience" to the woman concerned and the stated medical reasons were "extremely slim."

Are the doctors involved in interpreting the law to suit their own personal convictions in this matter, giving us virtually "abortion-on-demand" when, in fact, the law has not allowed for this? — Mrs. Ann Wenman, 1780 Keith Place.

Support for the Kilt

Dear, dear, dear, is there really an ex-member of the Canadian Scottish Regiment who is anti-kilt? Frankly I am appalled. I thought they were about as hard to find as the Loch Ness monster.

The gentleman from James Bay (letter, March 30) might find it interesting to note that in a recent survey every single member of the Canadian Scottish Regiment, including the segment in Port Alberni and Nanaimo, voted to retain the kilt and to pay for it out of his own pocket. So you see its not only the Caledonia Society that wants to retain the kilt but those solidiers who wear it.

The problem is that many of our members are still in school and the relatively small sum involved would cause financial hardships. Perhaps there have been far nobler enterprises in the past, such as the spending of millions of dollars on refitting an obsolete aircraft carrier, spending thousands of dollars on a town fool for Vancouver, and now locally —the money-saving stroke of genius— the proposal to build a fire hall in Beacon Hill Park.

Our feelings are that the few hundred dollars involved would be a small price to pay to maintain and perpetuate the esprit de corps and traditions of our regiment.

As for the Canadian tradition, legions of beard-stroking scholars have been searching for the "Canadian identity" for years. The answer of course is that there is no distinct national identity. We are an ethnic jig-saw puzzle and we have been stumbling along in that form for over a century. Get rid of the kilt and you will have to get rid of the turban and tarboosh too.

Fighting and killing are a serious and dirty business and nobody knows that better than the soldier who has to do it. So if retaining the "trappings" of the kilt at public expense help make the job a little more palatable, why not? — P. J. Lund, Captain, Canadian Scottish Regiment, 2110 Windsor Rd.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of April 5, 1913:

United States army officials are experimenting with an invention of Alexander P. Humphrey, a pattern maker of this city, that may revolutionize warfare, big game hunting, policing and every line of work in which bullets play a part. "Narcotic bullett" describes the invention in a word. In his sleep-producing missile, Humphrey used a minute particle of morphine. The drug is carried in tiny wells in the steel jacket of the regulation army bullet. He claims that it in no wise interferes with the effectiveness of the missile. "The soldier receiving a slight flesh wound from the new bullet," Humphrey said, "fights no more that day. He calmly stretches himself on the ground and goes to sleep."

Four Western Premiers With New Sense of Muscle

By PETER DESBARATS

When one of the provincial Liberal leaders in Western Canada was asked recently to suggest a site for Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's July meeting with the four western premiers, his response was immediate and instinctive.

"Anywhere," he said, "anywhere but in my province.

"They're going to eat him alive," he told party officials in Ottawa.

"They're going to have him on their own ground. They're going to be supported by a regional press that is hostile to Ottawa. It's going to be a massacre."

His pessimistic scenario seemed to be justified this past weekend when the four premiers held their first conference to discuss the July meeting.

Facing the press in a committee room of the Manitoba Legislature, with British Columbia sitting among them for the first time, they were clearly the most formidable group of western provincial leaders ever to prepare for battle with the federal government.

Although their average age was only 42, they represented a total of 47 years in office as members of provincial legislatures, cabinet ministers and premiers.

The dean of the group in this respect, and their spokesman in Winnipeg this weekend, was 37-year-old Ed Schreyer of Manitoba, first elected to the Manitoba Legislature 15 years ago and a member of Parliament from 1965 to 1969.

The oldest member was Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, 47. He was elected to the Saskatchewan Legislature in 1960, the same year that saw Dave Barrett, now 42, first elected to the British Columbia Legislature.

The group was completed by 44-year-old Peter Lougheed of Alberta, only six years in elected office but widely discussed as a future candidate for the Progressive Conservative party's national leadership.

The political acumen and self-confidence of this group's members were evident in the first steps they took toward the historic meeting with the prime minister.

BLAKENEY

SCHREYER

LOUGHEED

On a superficial level, they broke precedent by naming the dates and selecting the place for the meeting, July 25 and 26 in Calgary. Normally, the senior government would choose the venue. The premiers tactfully disguised their announcement as a "proposal" to the prime minister, but it had the effect of appearing to summon him to Calgary at a date convenient to them.

They also announced, without having discussed the question in detail with Ottawa, that part of the July meeting should be open to the media, unlike recent federal-provincial conferences or meetings of the premiers themselves. Evidently, the four premiers already are confident enough of the outcome of the meeting to want to give it maximum exposure.

This feeling was strengthened by decisions taken here last Friday. Accepting the economic agenda proposed by the federal government, the four premiers began to prepare detailed requests to Ottawa on such matters as freight rate inequities, port facilities, rail-line abandonment, air transportation, provincial and regional financial institutions, regional economic development and agriculture. The premiers' recommendations will be handed to Ottawa about a month before the July meeting.

Barrett, the newest and most aggressive of the four premiers, summed up the strategy in typically blunt fashion.

"It's not a question of having committee after committee," he said.

"We're going to spell out exactly what our problems are. We're going to let the federal government know ahead of time. And we expect them to come to the meeting with yes and no answers, and it's just as simple as that."

Despite the strength of their tactical position this year in relation to the minority Trudeau government, the four premiers were well aware of its weak points. After Ontario, three of their four provinces rank as the wealthiest in the country in terms of average personal income. Even in Saskatchewan, personal income is considerably higher than in the wealthiest of the Atlantic provinces.

"We're not suggesting that there be any historic change in the question of equalization," Lougheed said. "But we are suggesting that a greater degrees of emphasis be given in national policies to make progress in the growth-potential areas of Canada."

In other words, Canada should build on strength rather tran trying to shore up areas of economic weakness.

"If there is perchance some transfer of incomes into Western Canada," Blakeney said, "absolutely none of it would come from the Atlantic area. Anything we suggest is in no sense to the detriment of the four Atlantic provinces or Quebec."

Blakeney pointedly failed to mention Ontario, the province which would stand to lose substantially if the demands of the western provinces are pressed home effectively in July.

Before they left Winnipeg on Saturday, the four premiers agreed to meet again in Victoria on June 18, when they will effectively upstage the western conference that the Liberals will hold in Vancouver only four days later.

PIOUS GUNNERY

THE TORONTO STAR

Senator Keith Davey is justified in his concern about American gun magazines which are blossoming on newsstands across Canada.

Ostensibly guides for sportsmen, the magazines are jammed with gun lobby propaganda. Advertisements, articles and columns denounce supporters of gun controls as "nuts" and "do-gooders." Typical is a message from the National Rifle Association urging readers to "stand up for the hunting and shooting you, as an American, believe in."

This pious, patriotic approach to the sale of guns and ammunition is intended to create the impression that national vigor, manliness, democratic government — and no doubt home and mother — are all somehow dependent on the unrestricted sale, ownership and use of firearms, and that any interference with the "right to bear arms" — even to keep deadly weapons away from criminals and maniacs — leads to disaster.

The gun lobby has been remarkably successful in selling this nonsense to Americans and no doubt would dearly love to convert Canadians.

Federal Justice Minister Otto Lang said last week that while the government may ban the semi-automatic M-1 carbine and other "exotic" firearms, he opposes restrictions on hunting rifles and shotguns, because "the result could be that innocent citizens would find themselves violating the law."

The best argument against this view is common sense. Of 2,674 people murdered in Canada between 1960 and 1970, 1,178 — 44 per cent — were killed with firearms. A large number of these shootings were the result of family quarrels or drunken arguments in which someone turned to violence — and found a gun handy.

Without the revolver in the drawer or the rifle in the closet, the victims might well be alive today. Such are the fruits of widespread gun ownership. Canada has never had the Wild West gun-worshipping tradition of the U.S., even in its frontier days. We should resist it now — even when it comes complete with color photography.

Sun at the End Of Energy Chain

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN

Two extremes are represented among those who discuss the world's diminishing supply of natural fuel and the increasing demands upon it.

At one extreme are those who trace the curve of energy requirements for the past few decades and who see no reason why the curve should not continue to rise at its present exponential rate.

They foretell a time measurable in decades, perhaps in years, when the world's accessible fuels will be so scarce as to force entirely new social and economic policies on unprepared governments if breakdown and war are to be avoided.

Energy is not the only element in this Doomsday equation. Another is the increase, expected also to rise dramatically, in the land needed to harvest food crops for an increased population.

It would be reckless complacency to ignore some of these warnings when they are backed by respectable academic research and by the use of computer forecasting techniques which (though evidently open to question by other experts in the field) show upward curves almost reaching the vertical later this century and early next. The only downward curve is in the amount of food available per head.

At the other extreme are those who argue, not exactly that the future can take care of itself, but that new sources of energy will be found and harnessed, new means of growing protein developed, and population controls introduced voluntarily, by inducement, or, if the worst comes to the worst, by Malthus himself. This position invites the charge of complacency, whereas its opposite invites only allegations of zeal, a much less serious offence. But if the Club of Rome, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and many others, are right our descendants will not forgive our complacency. We may not have descendants.

The argument that new methods will be found is a common-sense one. So far as it is followed through at all, it seems to run: wood gave way to coal, coal gave way to oil, oil is giving way to natural gas and also to uranium. Uranium will give way to something else.

The weakest parts of this argument are that the chain is rather short to be taken as a commonsense guide to what might happen in the future, and that uranium is not (so far) the answer that people thought it might be 20 years ago. To quote our science correspondent: "On the present U.S. total energy demand predictions, nuclear power will provide 17 per cent of energy by 1985. To achieve this would mean the commissioning of 280 1,000-megawatt nuclear plants . . . between now and 1985." Uranium would also be a dangerous plaything in the hands of nihilistic guerrillas.

That there are untapped energy resources (e.g. some of the rivers of Africa whose potential is large) is undeniable. That less inefficient methods of using the energy we have might be developed is also true. But in prudence we have to look to a time when our present supplies cannot be taken for granted as they are now.

The only enduring source of energy is the sun. Is it impossible to put this energy to use directly rather than, as we do now, through the rain-forests and micro-organisms of long ago? A large program of research and experiment to determine the possibilities has been suggested jointly by the United States National Science Foundation and NASA.

This is a rational, not a science-fiction notion. The energy is free and abundant. It may be possible to convert it through bacterial systems into liquid fuels and to use it for producing unconventional sources of protein.

Whether one takes the optimistic or the pessimistic view of the late 1900s and early 2000s this is a project that ought to be seriously considered. If it yields results the optimists will be right and their reasoning not all that naive after all.

NEWSMEN THWARTED IN INDOCHINA

A War That Goes On in the Dark

By DANIEL F. GILMORE

(Gilmore is Asia News Editor for United Press International. This was written for a UPI newsletter.)

HONG KONG — Foreign correspondents covering the still-glowing embers of the Indochina War are suffering the loneliness of the long distance runner.

It has been a frustrating and dangerous war to cover from the beginning. Forty-five newsmen, television and picture correspondents are listed as dead and 18 as missing in the three countries of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. Their colleagues wait in vain at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines for at least one to come out with the returning prisoners of war.

The pressures and restrictions on newsmen covering the remnants of the Vietnam War are if anything increasing.

Aside from the logistical problems of getting anywhere without the help of once ubiquitous U.S. military aircraft, helicopters and jeeps in very difficult terrain, American authorities are methodically sealing off what is left to the press.

It will get worse.

Last week the U.S. Military Assistance Command information office in Saigon, with the curtain already down on its famous "Five O'Clock Follies" daily briefings, moved to a remote air base in Thailand.

The plugs will be pulled on use of U.S. military lines — the vast "Tiger" telephone network that stretched throughout South Vietnam and into Thailand.

The U.S. Navy, with a considerable number of ships and men floating out in the Gulf of Tonkin off Vietnam — they won't tell us how many any more — packed up its information office in Saigon. Queries are referred to Pacific Fleet headquarters in Honolulu, 7,557 air miles across the Pacific. Honolulu isn't saying much.

Minesweeping operations are run from Subic Bay in the Philippines. Newsmen cannot go out with them.

The Air Force, still bombing in Cambodia where the war rages with no sign of a ceasefire as in Vietnam and Laos, has its nerve centres imbedded in Thai bases, hundreds of miles north of Bangkok. Newsmen have no access.

And as correspondents in South Vietnam become increasingly dependent on the South Vietnamese, so the South Vietnamese become increasingly sensitive of what is written. Saigon is taking over informational control of what is after all their country.

Correspondents are threatened with explusion and warned against contacts with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong representatives now officially in the South on ceasefire missioins. New ground rules are established.

Then there are the Canadian, Hungarian, Indonesian and Polish delegations to the International Commission for Control and Supervision. They have to be covered. More ground rules.

Comes the end of the armed American presence in Vietnam next week, some 100,000 American servicemen are still committed to this theatre for air and sea operations.

It will be difficult for newsmen to tell what these men are doing except what the Pentagon wants to release.

Arthur L. Higbee, UPI Saigon bureau manager, a few weeks back quoted an American information officer as saying that after March 28 "it's up to us to switch off the light at the end of the tunnel."

"When that light is switched off," Higbee wrote, "there will be no other to take its place west of Honolulu and probably none west of Washington."

The Information Overload

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

"Information," wrote Mark Twain, "appears to stew out of me naturally, like the precious otter of roses out of the otter." It's something that could never be said of Information Canada — although it oughter. That organization — if the exaggeration will be permitted — was set up to provide government information to the public speedily. As if to underline its ability to fulfil that function, it has just submitted its annual report to Parliament almost exactly one year late.

Why the delay? Perhaps it's not without significance that Info Canada's major joint publishing venture for the 1971-72 period covered by the report was called A Time to Dream. Seems the organization took the title to heart. That, at least, would accord with the criticisms made last year by the organization's own deputy-director-general, Robert Phillips, in a memorandum to his chief.

Information Canada, Mr. Phillips wrote, has become "a mere grey presence." It exists in a "state of largely suspended animation" that has deepened. He listed a hair-raising series of projects started and never completed, of cabinet directives ignored, and of policies proposed but never implemented. He insisted that "it is urgent to consider some projects to justify our budget and existence, other than carrying on operations which existed before we did."

The memo concluded: "Unless there are rapid changes, the current year (the one covered by the belated report) will indicate that Information Canada is doing roughly what other departments did previously in managing the activities which we took over, that we are providing a certain pool of resource support which would come from private industry, and that most of the major projects we had launched to create a greater understanding in the federal government have been dropped, shelved or left in a limbo of indecision."

That's why it took Info Canada 12 months to produce a report giving us all that information about the information we didn't get last year. The boys in the department have been working night and day stitching lily petals on the onion. Those 538 information expediters who spent $8-million of our money in fiscal 1971-72 (and, despite Mr. Phillips's memo, got an extra $3.4-million for the current year) couldn't afford to have the true account of their ineptitude appear in an official report. It takes time to write a work of fiction.

CHICAGO (AP) — Old crop soybean futures advances advanced the limit on the Board of Trade Thursday.

It marked the fourth straight gain of 15 cents a bushel in the three nearby soybean options and $5 a ton in the four closest meal options. Soybean oil, which earlier posted a gain of 35 points, closed 10 points lower.

Wheat futures were down six cents while corn lost one cent. Oats were down around 2½ cents.

The demand for soybeans and soybean meal was strong on the opening but there was a notable lack of sellers. Prices in the first three options in beans moved to the limit and hung there into the close. It was the same story in the meal pit.

The strong demand for soybeans in the U.S. and abroad and dwindling stocks continued to influence buyers but the price moves were dictated by reluctance of sellers to enter the fray.

At the close, soybeans were ¼ lower to 15 higher, May 5.98¾; wheat some four to six lower, May 2.27¾; corn around 1¼ lower, May 1.59¼ and oats down two, May 86.

Hearing Aid Plan

REGINA (CP) — A government-subsidized hearing aid program, providing testing and follow-up services through clinics, should be in operation this fall, Health Minister Walter Smishek said today.

Smishek said recipients in the plan will pay only the direct costs the government pays for bulk purchase of the aids. All overhead costs will be absorbed by the government.

TAX TIPS

This information is supplied by the federal department of national revenue. If further details are required, contact the Victoria District Taxation Office between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday and Tuesday and 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday to Friday at 388-3551. These hours to be kept to filing deadline, April 30. For those living outside the Victoria exchange area, ask the long-distance operator for Zenith 0-4000 and the call will be placed without charge.

Q. During the year, I worked for two employers, one during the days and one during the evenings. My day job earned me $2,400 for the year and the evening job, $1,800. However, both employers allowed the $600 basic exemption when calculating my Canada Pension Plan contributions. This means I have contributed to the plan for only $3,000 where I could have contributed on my total earnings minus the $600 basic exemption had I worked for only one employer. How do I go about making contributions on the extra $600.

A. You may make contributions on the $600 at a rate of 3.6 per cent. It will be necessary for you to use a tax return to make this calculation.

Q. I have agreed to work in the United States for my employer for a period of three years. Can Canada Pension contributions be continued on my behalf?

A. Under certain circumstances employment outside of Canada by a Canadian employer can be covered. Your employer should contact the nearest district taxation office with the full particulars for further information.

Q. We had a baby last year who only lived a few hours. Can we make any tax claim for her?

A. Yes, if a child is born in the year and lives, you may claim the child as a dependant for a $300 exemption.

Q. If I work for a salary, can I make my own arrangements for paying my income tax?

A. If the salary you receive is sufficient to warrant tax deductions at the source, then the employer is required by law to withhold income tax deductions.

Q. What should I do about my income tax return if my address has changed since last year?

A. If your address is now different, make the necessary changes on your income tax return and do this in the "Correction" areas immediately below the label. Also, be sure it is the labelled return that you send to the Data Centre. If you moved after filing your return and have claimed a refund on your tax return, write to your District Taxation Office informing them of the change of address. Many refund cheques are delayed each year as a result of taxpayers changing their addresses after filing, and not notifying their District Taxation Office of this change.

Q. My income is received by way of interest on bonds and from dividends. However, I also have rental income from two houses. I feel that I should be permitted to contribute to the Canada Pension Plan on this income.

A. No. You cannot contribute on this type of income. Contributions to the Canada Pension Plan are based on the amount of money you earn either as an employee, or as a self-employed person. Contributions based on investment or rental income may not be made.

REIT Loans Hit $85M

TORONTO (CP) — TD Realty Investments, Canada's first real estate investment trust, has announced loan commitments have reached $85 million since it was formed last October.

G. E. W. Hemmans, president and general manager, said "35 per cent is in NHA and conventional mortgage loans and close to 90 per cent of the over-all total is in loans with terms of five years or less."

Chairman Richard M. Thomson said it has been known for some time that traditional sources of mortgage financing in Canada would have to be supplemented if growth in residential, industrial and commercial facilities was to be maintained.

Thomson also said representatives from the trust have been meeting with federal and provincial authorities to assist in the development of policies governing the new REIT industry.

The trust, which has more than 11,000 unit-holders, also declared a quarterly dividend of 35 cents a unit.

MLAs Approve 20% Pay Hike

Provision for a 20 per cent increase in MLAs salaries was contained in the NDP government's spending estimates for fiscal 1973 which were passed Wednesday in the legislature.

Approval was given for expenditure of $1,718,909,091 in the new government's first budget since taking office last September.

In the last day of debate, the estimates of the department of rehabilitation and social improvement and Minister Without Portfolio Frank Calder were passed.

Estimates of all other departments have already been passed.

The pay raise going to MLAs consists of $2,000, raising the sessional indemnity from $10,000 to $12,000.

Members will also get reimbursed for the forthcoming fall session.

If the fall session goes on for the 40-day requirement, each MLA will get an additional $12,000.

Premier Barrett told the legislature the government is following the requirements of legislation passed by the former administration which restricts MLAs' salary increases to 6.5 per cent per year.

The last increase was in 1970 — three years ago — when the salaries went to $10,000 from $8,000.

Outside the house, Barrett said the government is not considering amending the provision of the Constitution Act which requires MLAs be paid $50 per day living allowance for the 40 days of the session.

But he did express agreement with the suggestion that MLAs from remote areas of the province be provided with free airline passes to enable them to get home at least once every three weeks while the house is in session.

The suggestion came from Don Phillips (SC — South Peace), who said it is more difficult for MLAs from far-flung ridings to get home on weekends.

Barrett agreed, conceding that the free bus passes provided to MLAs are not sufficient to get an MLA from Victoria to a northern riding for a weekend.

MLAs are provided with the same travel allowance regardless of their ridings.

Barrett said the standing committees of the legislature, which have traditionally met during the time the house was sitting, will be doing a considerable amount of travelling around the province this year.

As far as the travelling for MLAs from remote areas, he said he will initiate discussions with Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall "and perhaps we can work it out" before the start of the fall session.

Barret said he cannot tell how long the fall session will last, since this is the first time the government will have tried it, other thanthe two-week session held to institute the minimum monthly income of $200 for over-65s last fall.

He said the government will provide all it can in the way of equipment and services so that MLAs can work effectively.

"We're in a new age in B.C.," he said. "The people are demanding more of us and we should be in a position to deliver."

This can be partially done, he said, by providing MLAs with office space in their constituencies.

No 'Bureaucracy' for Calder

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Minister Without Portfolio Frank Calder told the legislature Wednesday he is content to work from a relatively minor, non-ministry role in the provincial cabinet because he is strongly opposed to the establishment of another Indian affairs bureaucracy in Canada.

"We have one bureaucracy which to me has been a failure for years and I just don't want to see another one set up under provincial jurisdiction," Calder said.

The statement was in reply to James Cabot (SC—Columbia River) who said during debate on Calder's $63,120 estimates that the government should not "bury" Calder in the depths of the Douglas Building, but give him greater responsibility in heading up a full-time ministry of Indian affairs in B.C.

Chabot also referred to Calder's salary, which at $21,000 is far higher than the $6,500 paid to the three women ministers without portfolio in the Social Credit administration.

He noted that two sessional indemnities of $12 each plus travelling expenses of $7,000 could push that total up to $52,000 for the year, adding the people of the province will "expect action to justify the tremendous salary you have at your disposition."

Calder said by fall he likely will be demanding another $7,000 in travelling expenses. He said he intends to visit every other province in Canada to see for himself what their approach is to the problems of native peoples.

As for salary:

"Don't worry. We are going to be so darned active I am going to be demanding my pay goes level with the rest of the boys here," he said, indicating with a wave of his arm his fellow cabinet ministers.

(Calder gets $3,000 a year less than the other members of the cabinet, with the exception of Premier Dave Barrett who gets $28,000).

Calder recalled that for years when he was a member of the NDP opposition he had urged better indemnities for MLAs, and said he wasn't about to stop doing so now.

"If I know I earn it I am going to request equality of pay in this cabinet."

Calder said his main role is to study how provincial public services can be extended as fully to Indian people on reserves as they are to all other citizens of the province.

In many cases that is constitutionally impossible because the reserves come under federal jurisdiction, but Calder said he is initiating talks with Ottawa on this point which he hopes will result in B.C. being allowed to "come aboard" the reserves.

Calder said he has been quoted as advocating the abolishment of reserves for Indian people.

What he actually would prefer to see happen, he said, is for the definition of reserves to be changed so that they become municipalities.

"In this way, tax dollars paid by Indian people to the government could come back to the reserves for the Indians' use," he added.

"Under the present set-up, the Indian still has to get down on his knees, face the east and beg for money."

If Indians had control of their own money, he said, they would be more likely to use their own initiative for new and imaginative programs.

Economy Booming: Barrett

The provincial economy is booming like never before, Premier Dave Barrett told the legislature Wednesday.

Barrett quoted from the trade department's monthly report on business activity and said 30,000 new jobs had been created in the province in February over February, 1972.

"It's a record figure for this government or the former government," Barrett said.

Barrett said the comparative figures for employment in the province showed 895,000 jobs in February, 1973, compared to 865,000 in February, 1972, and 856,000 in February, 1971.

Other figures on business activity indicated the following gains in the economy in January of this year over January, 1972:

Factory shipment values — 27.4 per cent.
Housing starts — 37.2 per cent.
Building permit values — 38.2 per cent.
Retail sales — 15.2 per cent.
Pulp sales — 21.6 per cent.
Paper and paperboard production — 9.3 per cent.
Net generation of electric power — 19.2 per cent.
Cargo loaded in the port of Vancouver — 16.5 per cent.

Ballard Granted Jail Pass

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens, was granted a temporary pass from the Millhaven minimum security institute Wednesday.

William Weaver, warden, said today that Ballard's application for a three-day pass was approved by a temporary absence board composed of prison officials.

Weaver would not say when Ballard would begin the leave.

Ballard was sentenced in Toronto Oct. 20 to two concurrent three-year jail terms for fraud and theft involving $205,000 from the Gardens.

Federal prisoners may apply for a temporary absence pass six months after they enter prison.

Lang Urges Adoption, Wants 50M People

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang advocated Wednesday a Canadian population of 50 million and suggested one way to attain it was for well-off families to adopt the millions of homeless children in the world.

The former immigration minister, who himself has seven children, said Canada needs that many residents if it is to retain the values, territory and resources it now has.

The first in a series of a special speakers program to address the National Press Club, Lang declined to say when a population of 50 million should be achieved.

He argued that setting such a target was not inconsistent with zero population growth. It would be an argument for a better distribution of the world population.

A larger population could reinforce Canada's hold on the large territory it now occupies, he said. There should be more residents in northern Canada, for example, and in other sparcely-populated areas.

Lang expressed some horror at forecasts of cities like Toronto having populations of 6,000,000 residents while other parts of Canada lost population. Such a situation could easily be remedied by governmental decisions that would lead to jobs being available in small-population centres.

He said he noted with regret rising abortion rates and decreasing birth rates and said that the birth rate appeared down especially among relatively wealthy families.

Their reason generally was not to contribute to excessive population and usually the decision not to have a second or third child meant more cars for the families.

While immigration was one avenue to a larger population, the usual practice of opening Canada's doors to large groups would not necessarily result "in the Canada we want."

Thus he suggested that millions of homeless children be offered to wealthy families with few children of their own.

Labor Strife If Laws Unfair

A leading management negotiator in British Columbia said Wednesday repressive labor relations legislation — "no matter who is being repressed" — will only lead to confrontation.

C. J. Connaghan, president of Construction Labor Relations Association, bargining agency for more than 850 contractors in B.C., said alienation of management "produces the same problems as alienation of organized labor."

He was speaking to a luncheon meeting in the Empress Hotel of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce on Labor Relations in B.C.

Connaghan said some union leaders want to remove restrictions on picketing and eliminate injunctions. So far the goverment had seen fit not to do this, but to appoint three advisers to make recommendations.

WOULD MEAN CHAOS

Eliminating current laws "holus bolus" would lead to chaos and everyone was entitled "to some protection from people whose only motive is self-interest."

Connaghan expressed fear that pressure by some unions on the government will mount and make it increasingly difficult "to maintain rational development of labor relations laws in B.C."

The legislation which finally emerges, however, will not come from the advisers but from the cabinet and caucus.

"At that time, we will see the true philosophic face of this government," he said.

If the legislation which finally emerges is "anti-management," then the integrity of the government will be at stake, he added.

Connaghan said the new legislation must be acceptable to labor and management if it is to work and it must be fair and equitable.

"But legislation itself cannot solve labor-management problems. It simply set out the ground rules and created the climate for the conduct of the parties."

He pointed to Sweden as a model of labor-management harmony, but this had only come about, in the mid-1930s, after decades of bitterness and fights.

He said the Swedish model, which essentially is to keep both sides bargaining, "gives lie to the fact that you need a myriad of lawyers and tomes of legislation to sort things out."

If B.C. could get 10 or 20 years of labor peace by adopting some of the Swedish principles, "we will be doing everyone, including ourselves, a favor," he added.

Connaghan said there are "no simple solutions" to labor relations, although most people have an opinion and are prepared to offer it "at the slightest provocation."

MANAGEMENT "WEAK"

Dealing with the construction industry, he said management had been weak because it did not control the market place, because of high risks and competition.

Unions were consistently able to out-bargain contractors he said.

He said this led to the formation of the Construction Labor Relations Association (CLRA) in 1969, adding that the organization had been successful and its model was being copied elsewhere.

The objective was to give "power parity" at the bargaining table, "not to drive unions into the ground."

Construction wage increases averaged 19.3 per cent in 1969, declining to 7.7 per cent in 1972 when the manufacturing average increase was 9.1 per cent.

"I think perhaps people who are still talking about con-

PREMIER DEFENDS MILL TAKEOVER

Premier Dave Barrett Wednesday defended the government's acquisition of the paper mill at Ocean Falls and the operations of Columbia Cellulose.

Barrett's defence came when Oak Bay Conservative Scott Wallace asked if the premier had been misquoted in a newspaper story as saying the government would not be taking over "troubled industries."

The choice faced by the government, Barrett said, was either to take over the two companies or put into jeopardy the Ocean Falls community and the whole northern economy of this province based on the forest industry."

If Ocean Falls and the northern operations of Columbia Cellulose had been allowed to close down, the families employed in the operations would have gone onto the welfare rolls, Barrett said, something the government was not willing to see happen.

"Time will tell whether we're right on this or not," he said.

"I think we're right and we're happy to put it to the test."

True-Life Drama Basis for New Canadian Film

MONTREAL (CP) — In the 1840s, an American Loyalist doctor travelled 250 miles across Quebec by sleigh through a blizzard from Sorel to Kamouraska to murder the husband of the woman he loved.

This true-life drama, involving Josephine Leonore, Kamouraska doctor Louis Achille Pascahl Tache and the American doctor named Holmes, was the basis for Anne Hebert's prize-winning 1970 novel Kamouraska.

Now Kamouraska is a film with a screenplay by Miss Hebert and director Claude Jutra, who won critical acclaim for his last feature, Mon Oncle Antoine.

The film opened in Montreal in its French version last week after a premiere in St. Pascal de Kamouraska, 95 miles northeast of Quebec City.

In the novel and the film the real names were changed. Elizabeth d'Aulnieres is the Sorel girl whose marriage to Antoine de Tassy, seigneur of Kamouraska, is arranged by her mother and three maiden aunts.

BUJOLD STARS

The film might be classed as a Gothic romance, with its murder, passion and even a touch or witchcraft. It moves at a slow and rhythmic yet tense pace.

It opens with Elizabeth, played by Genevieve Bujold, sitting by the deathbed of her second husband, a Quebec City solicitor.

A series of flashbacks reviews her life with Tassy and her love affair with the American doctor, Goerge Nelson.

Jutra, working with Michel Brault, the same cameraman who shot Mon Oncle Antoine, has drawn an elaborate and visually beautiful picture of middle-class life in colonial Quebec.

When her apparently-charming first husband turns out to have a temperament that takes him from melancholy to drunken brawling, Elizabeth returns to Sorel, falls in love with Nelson and becomes pregnant by him.

Nelson, an old school-mate of Tassy's, is enraged by his treatment of Elizabeth and, after a poisoning plot fails, makes the winter trek to Kamouraska to slay him. He then flees to the U.S. and never returns.

Elizabeth, acquitted of conspiracy, is "condemned to innocence" married to Rolland, by whom she bears 11 children.

Couple Shot

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — An unidentified gunman shot a young couple dead in a suburban shopping street here Tuesday, police said. The victims were an attractive 24-year-old woman and her 26-year-old escort. Police said they were working on the assumption that the killer acted from jealousy.

Man, 20, Confined in Closet 3 Years

TULSA, Okla. — Police answering a disturbance call in a wealthy neighborhood found a 20-year-old man who had been confined to a water heater closet without a bath, haircut or change of clothing for three years.

The man's mother, who cursed officers, was charged with child abuse and assaulting a policeman.

"When I first saw the boy, it scared me and made me sick," said deputy Buddy Warren. "I looked in the water heater closet and there he was, standing there sleeping.

"All I could see was his hair, and the smell, and I backed up," he said. Warren said the youth, Nick Arevalos, had been forced to sleep standing up for almost three years. He said the son was apprently retarded.

"He had long hair, below his shoulders in length. It stuck straight out and hadn't been washed in over two years. He had a long beard, mustache, and was slick with oil and grease," Warren said.

"His feet had about an inch of callouses on them, and his toenails were better than an inch long and had worn through the ends of his shoes."

LOS ANGELES — Actress Susan Hayard, 53, is seriously ill in hospital with an undisclosed illness, her agent said Wednesday.

Jay Bernstein said Miss Hayward, who last year came out of retirement to act in three films, was admitted to the hospital a week ago.

Bernstein refused to discuss her illness, saying her family had asked that no information on the star's condition be released.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Singer Joan Baez will refuse to pay part of her federal income taxes again this year to protest military spending even though American troops have left Vietnam, her business manager says.

"She's a pacifist and she's always protested the amount spent on arms," Roy Kepler said Wednesday.

WORTHAM, England — There was never a royal wedding quite like it: James Lascelles, a young, long-haired relative of Queen Elizabeth, was marrying the American girl with whom he had lived in a commune for the best part of last year.

The groom, second son of the Earl of Harewood and 20th in line to the British throne, chose to wear a Tibetan wool jerkin over a green shift and white leather jeans at Wednesday's ceremony in this normally quiet eastern England village.

The bride, pretty 19-year-old Freddy Duhrssen, wore a gown of cream silk once worn at a coronation by Lascelles' grandmother, the princess royal.

BONN, Germany — Chancellor Willy Brandt told parliament today that Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev has officially accepted an invitation to pay his first visit to Bonn for talks with Brandt.

Brandt addressed the Bundestag, lower house of parliament, hours after meeting with Soviet ambassador Valentin Falin.

Informed sources earlier said the first Soviet-West German summit on West German soil would take place from May 12 to May 17.

ATLANTA — Mrs. Coretta Scott King placed a wreath at the tomb of her husband Wednesday, and 500 persons, mostly black, staged a march to commemorate the fifth anniversary of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr's death.

The march and a rally were also held to launch the "spring offensive" of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which King headed at the time of his assassination in Memphis, Tenn.

CASPER, Wyo. — Police Chief Robert Zipay says one of his officers has an unusual allergy to marijuana that makes his neck itch and swell.

Zipay would not identify the officer, but said Wednesday the officer has made more marijuana arrests than any other policeman and is currently undergoing tests to see if he is allergic to any other illegal drugs.

"We will certinly use him to the best of his allergy," said Zipay.

NEW YORK — A Broadway play once celebrated a solid gold Cadillac. Now there are his-and-her Rolls-Royces on the street. They're being offered for sale at $250,000 a pair.

For him, there are walnut liquor cabinets containing Waterford crystal and virgin lamb's wool carpeting. For her, there is also liquor cabinet and crystal, but with blonde mink rugs.

"We've already had about 10 inquiries from collectors, a couple of stars and some other very rich people," said dealer Michael Shudroff.

"It's a great investment. They'll keep going up in value."

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A man convicted of impaired driving on three previous occasions was sentenced Wednesday to eight months in prison and prohibited from driving in Canada for three years.

David Archibald Lannigan, 47, of 2311 Dowler, was convicted a fourth time in Victoria provincial court, moments after he was sentenced in traffic court to 30 days for driving with a blood-alcohol content of more than .08 per cent.

Lannigan was sentenced to eight months on an impaired driving charge which resulted from a two-car collision at Esquimalt and Bernard April 3.

He was taken to Victoria police department, where a breathalyzer test showed a reading of .27 per cent.

Court officer Sgt. Ken Anthony testified he had spoken to Lannigan prior to his court appearance and warned him the Crown would seek a "greater penalty" due to his previous convictions.

Lannigan was fined $400 on an Oak Bay charge in December, 1970, sentenced to 21 days and prohibited from driving for 10 months on another Oak Bay charge in November, 1971, and sentenced to 14 days on a Central Saanich charge in February this year.

The charge of driving with a blood-alcohol level of more than .08 per cent was laid after police saw him drive into the wrong lane on Wharf Street March 24.

He was taken to Victoria police department where a breathalyzer test showed a reading of .20 per cent.

Police said he admitted having drunk eight bottles of beer, about 13 ounces of wine, and a small quantity of whisky.

He was asked to perform physical tests during the interview, which police said he did well.

Heroin addiction is no excuse for committing criminal offences, said Judge William Ostler in sentencing a former addict.

Robert George Fredricks, 26, was given a suspended sentence and a two-year probationary term for passing 17 bad cheques totalling more than $360 between Sept. 12 and Nov. 26, 1972.

Before sentence, defence counsel Brian Forrest said the offences appeared to be related to his heroin habit.

"He has voluntarily put himself through withdrawals to get out of this habit," said Forrest.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said, "In respect of the substantial number of offences involved ... drug oriented though they may be," a recommendation of a lenient sentence made by a B.C. probation officer was "too generous."

Ostler said although there were a substantial number of offences, the amount involved in each count was small.

He said heroin addicts appear in court every day and the public will be getting "fed up."

Most addicts ask for clemency from the court because they feel heroin addiction is a legitimate excuse for committing crimes.

"I committed all these offences but I'm a speical case because I'm a heroin addict," said Ostler, "Is it our fault that he's an addict?"

As probationary conditions Ostler ordered Fredricks to abstain from the use of illegal drugs or narcotics and to submit to urinalysis tests when required by his probation officer.

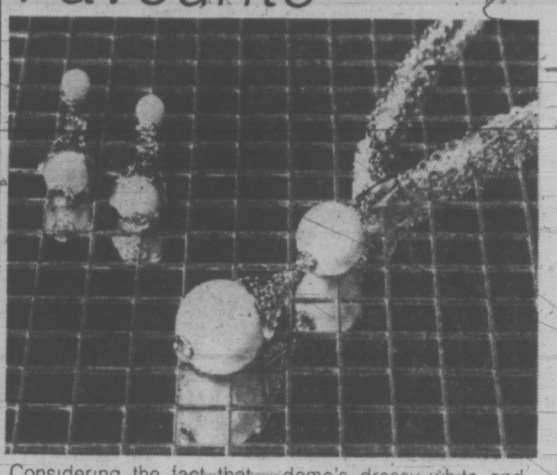
Jewellery Bulletin: White and Gold a Definite Favourite



Considering the fact that this is, above all, a coordinated spring, we suggest you consider what the Bay's jewellery department has to offer in the form of coordination. For instance, if you're wearing those lovely gold and white Naturalizer shoes, why not carry it one step further and wear Vendome's dressy white and gold metal jewellery? The look is total, complete and oh! so pretty. (And again, the prices are definite favourites.)

Naturalizer Goes Baroque

M1
Among the first to hit the streets with Spring's new white and gold trend is "the shoe with the beautiful fit," (or Naturalizer, to the uninitiated.) This fresh new design for a fresh new season is a wickedly open, white patent dazzler — accented with just the right touch of gold in the shape of a charmingly baroque buckle. Of course, in keeping with Naturalizer's policy of reasonable prices, the gold on this shoe is not quite the real thing. The effect, however, is priceless. In short, it's shamelessly elegant, and undeniably chic. And naturally, like all Naturalizers, it's a shoe with a very beautiful fit.

Organization stressed for Handbags

M3
1973 will perhaps be remembered mainly as the year women said goodbye forever to handbag clutter. The fatal blow to pursely innefficiency was delivered by the one and only Organizer Handbag. This chic but utilitarian bag arrived on the scene with not two, three or four, but five roomy compartments. The result is a purse that can hold all the paraphernalia womenneed to carry — and keep it all neat, separate, and above all, organized. This remarkable feat is accomplished by means of a roomy snap closured center compartment (with inside zipper pocket), two larger zippered spaces, and two extra areas, for holding everything from books to brushes. To top it all off, the Organizer Bag comes in a wide range of leather-look vinyl colours: white (of course), navy, black and bone.

When you wear a Seiko watch. Every Hour Is Golden

When Seiko first heard of Spring's love affair with gold, they promptly created a watch to honor the occassion. The result is a sleek and elegant watch of Florentine finished gold coloured metal, with a handsome dial of the same hue.
Of course, like all Seiko watches, this chic timepiece is trustworthy and accurated, with Incabloc and a 17 jewel movement. But most importantly, it is a watch you'll love to look at. A watch, in fact, to make every hour a golden moment.

A warm thought: Spring is a Boucle Shawl

M2
Several seasons ago, fashion-wise women realised that the old-fashioned shawl was a delightfully new kind of evening cover-up. It's only drawback was a certain lack of warmth on nippy evenings.
This season however, brings an end to the problem. The answer is a closely woven shawl of mohair and wool. This English-made beauty is, of course, romantically fringed and feminine — but it also has the advantage of being snug enough for a less than balmy spring evening. The result? Heartwarming coziness, with newsmaking style. Hand washable, in off-white only.

From England: The Well Bred Glove

For all those women who love the classic correctness of gloves: good news! The glove is definitely back on the fashion scene as the perfect way to complete your outfit.
But before you rush out and buy yourself a pair, take a look at the Bay's collection of buttersoft lamb leather gloves. These are the aristocracy of gloves — imported from England — with that unmistakeable master-craftsman touch. Everything about them is refined, delicate . . . and casually luxurious. And the colour selection includes that springtime favourite — white.

We Might Be Off on a Dry Run

Rain in the first quarter this year has been only half the normal amount, indicating drought conditions and increased danger of forest fires ahead.

April is the first relatively dry month of the year so there is little likelihood of catching up on lost rainfall, despite Wednesday night and this morning's downpour, the weather office said today.

There will be no shortage of water for Greater Victoria, however, because of increased storage capacity built in the last three years. Water Commissioner Ron Upward says the system has up to 15 million gallons stored, and only 10 million will be needed.

The weather office says the Pacific storm tracks have not produced the expected rainfall in 1973. The result: at Gonzales weather station, only 4.07 inches have fallen, compared to the normal of 9.12 inches. The Victoria airport station has had 6.69 inches, against a normal of 12.29 inches.

★ ★ ★

The effects of this have already been felt. Across the province there have been half a dozen reported forest fires and the official forest fire season doesn't start until May 1. Whether 1973 is a bad year for forest fires will still depend on rainfall during the dry months to come, however.

April's normal precipitation is 1.19 inches. May's is .90. June produces a little more with 1.06, followed by July, the driest month, with .57. Then comes August with .71 and rain starts reappearing in September with 1.25 inches normally.

Rain generated on the Pacific has its effect on the Prairies, which can expect drought because of developments already.

A real drought in 1973 would require more extraordinarily dry months. The record dry year here was 1952 when only 16.01 inches fell, compared to the normal 26.19 inches.

To Victoria, the dry year means good weather with no bad side effects in the form of short water supply. The water storage facilities are for 300,000 people, and until the population (about 200,000) catches up, water will not be a problem.

Budget Accord Reached

A compromise was reached today by city council's finance committee over the 1973 Greater Victoria Public Library budget.

Committee agreed, after deliberating 1½ hours, to recommend approval of the budget subject to a reduction in the $4,200 travel allowance by 50 per cent, budgetary provision for a new branch in eastern Saanich for one month of the financial year instead of six months and that the branch not be initiated without further plans being presented to area councils.

Last month, city council formally objected to the library budget, ending hopes then for a new branch to be established in the McKenzie-Shelbourne area. Under the library agreement if one municipality objects then a cut has to be made.

A delegation from the Greater Victoria Library Board, led by chairman and Esquimalt alderman Art Mebbs, asked finance committee to reconsider council's decision.

Mebbs said library costs have increased because of the general inflationary spiral in prices of materials and labor. When the Centennial Branch was located in Saanich, the Town and Country Branch was closed, so the new branch was really a replacement for a discontinued branch rather than an addition to the library system.

He said the Gordon Head area is growing rapidly and the McKenzie-Shelbourne area has "favorable indications" for a branch site.

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen said rapidly escalating costs led council to decline "at this time" to approve the 1973 budget containing provision for the new branch.

He said the library operating budget has increased 83.3 per cent over the last five years.

The city wanted specific demonstration of the need for a new branch. He described the delegation's presentation as "too generalized".

It was Mebbs who, just before the delegation left, suggested the branch be established late in the financial year to reduce this year's financial costs.

'Hawaiian' Flu Wings Into B.C.

Influenza, which attacked the province from the east earlier this year, is now sweeping across British Columbia from the west, apparently from Hawaii, says the B.C. health department.

The new outbreak was identified as influenza type B by a spokesman in Health Minister Dennis Cocke's office. The earlier cases were influenza type A, also referred to as London flu.

★

"While influenza type A was on the rampage here, outbreaks of type B were occurring in the Hawaiian Islands," said the spokesman. "Unfortunately, the viruses are sufficiently dissimilar so that an attack of type A is not protection against type B."

Headache, fever, nausea, a wheezing-type cough and generalized aches and pains are among the symptoms of the disease.

In some areas of the province school absenteeism has reached 20 per cent.

Dr. John Whitbread, senior public health officer, said today there is no increased absenteeism in Greater Victoria schools, except a minor increase in two schools.

"At this time of the year there's always flu around," he said. This year's flu victims seem to be suffering slightly higher temperatures and abdominal pains, he said.

Inner Harbor 'Concepts' Please City

Victoria city council is enthusiastic about the "people concepts" contained in a Vancouver architect's blueprint for rehabilitating Victoria's Inner Harbor, Mayor Peter Pollen said today.

Promenades, an open-air amphitheatre and a two-deck parking garage with a park on top, are the major recommendations in a preliminary study of the Inner Harbor prepared by architect Arthur Erickson, and presented to city officials earlier this week.

The emphasis of the study is on pleasant atmosphere which would make a visit to the Inner Harbor a privilege and something to look forward to, the mayor indicated.

Pollen said council is "enthusiastic about the concepts which reinforce the new wave of attitudes stressing people orientation . . . and low-scale development."

The study prepared at a cost of $35,000 makes seven major proposals:

—A two-deck parking garage west of the Wax Museum below Belleville. The roof of the structure would be at street level and landscaped as a park.

—A causeway for pedestrians running in a straight line from the Ocean Cement site across the Inner Harbor to the Wax Museum. A small bridge in the centre could be raised to admit small pleasure craft only and would create a quiet tranquil place near the shore.

—A fountain in the area of the harbor cut off by the Causeway.

—A small amphitheatre with a small stage and benches constructed in a semi-circular fashion where the Black Ball Ferry is located.

—The transfer of the ferry terminal to a site west of the existing CP Steamship facilities on Belleville.

—A low density development on the Ocean Cement site, perhaps, residential-commercial, coupled with marina facilities.

—Government and Wharf streets would become one-way streets with wider sidewalks and rows of trees along both sides.

Pollen said he was pleased with the aspects of the plan — now far from being completed — that allow people to be close to the harbor, but declined further comment.

"I don't want to be evasive, but I can't give any comment now. The plan is only in the preliminary stages," the mayor said.

Reporters were barred from attending the meeting Tuesday at which aldermen, members of Victoria Advisory Planning Commission, city hall staff and about 15 provincial government representatives viewed Erickson's preliminary sketches and models.

During the next stage of planning, city council's suggestions will be incorporated into the study.

Erickson achieved fame as the architect and designer of Canada's pavilion at Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan.

Falling Material Feared by Ex-Builder

Pedestrian Hazard Claimed at Project

A retired Toronto construction company executive has written City Hall complaining of the "complete lack of attention to public safety" at a building construction site on Burdett Avenue.

G. H. Williams, a former Toronto alderman, first contacted the city engineer's office on the matter more than a month ago. He says the building operations on the extension of Wilson Motor Inn are still dangerous despite his complaints.

"The arm of the overhead crane extends over the sidewalk and roadway (I presume with your permission)," the letter reads, "and the constant hauling of materials over the sidewalk, which is entirely without protection, is surely a public danger and in contravention of all the accepted principles of public safety."

★ ★ ★

Williams' letter says the concrete framework "is being placed practically over the sidewalk" and falling lumber would imperil anyone walking on the sidewalk.

A City Hall building inspection official said today he did not want to battle with Williams but he "firmly" believes the site is safe.

He said the complaints had been checked out several times, discussions had been held with the Farmer Construction Ltd. building supervisor and the Workmen's Compensation Board, and it was decided the operations are not dangerous.

WCB spokesman Richard Hill said he inspects the site across from the Executive House every week and it is "definitely safe."

★ ★ ★

Hill said danger warning signs were placed at the site "two or three weeks ago."

"Sure, the cranes hang over the street and sidewalk," he said. "They have to load from the street — that's why the signs were put up."

In a letter to the Times, Williams noted that two small signs marked "Danger. Pedestrians do not stand between signs" were put up at the job.

"But the sidewalk with all its inherent danger is still left open and unprotected," Williams writes.

Williams says he has received no acknowledgement of his telephone calls or his letter, a copy of which was also sent to Mayor Peter Pollen.

The city hall official said he thought a letter had been sent to Williams and it was "very unfortunate" if it had not.

Trees Beside the Stream

Unclean, Wasteful In Forester's View

"I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree . . ."

Most people, including those working for forest companies, like trees, but not always for the same reason.

Forest companies are upset by new provincial "guidelines" to protect stream banks from logging and have been giving their opinions before a legislative committee.

See also Page 17

On Tuesday, Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. presented a brief and at the back of the brief, the company's senior field forester, in part of a report originally for "internal consumption," offered these views:

—"I think that a narrow fringe around lakes and rivers is visually unpleasant, particularly in the first few years. I much prefer to see a clean area with all the fringe trees and leaners removed. In time this area will be a smooth, even-aged stand which to me is aesthetically pleasing."

—"In my opinion a green strip, to be effective, would have to be tree height in width plus an attrition strip . . .

"With a minimum tree height of 100 feet, plus an attrition strip of 50 feet, there would be a minimum width of 150 feet on each side of the creek.

"A green strip 300 feet wide (minimum) on every stream would withdraw an enormous amount of wood from the available volume which is a waste of the forest resource."

Earlier in his report, which deals with the Port McNeill and Quatsino Sound regions, he says:

"In all cases I met with an attitude (from Rayonier staff) of honest intent to leave the fish stream in a relatively clean and undisturbed state at the completion of logging. This honest intent was sometimes weakened by a lack of knowledge and by economic considerations."

And later:

"Our staff naturally tends toward the most efficient methods of stream protection and rehabilitation. No one sends a bulldozer down the stream any more but one could easily find examples in each camp where economic considerations, coupled with a lack of specific knowledge, have been detrimental to the fish resource. To what extent the action was detrimental I don't think anyone would be able to say."

The forester says variable sources of labor are used to hand-clean streams after completion of logging. Limbs and smaller pieces are placed on the river bank by the cleanup crews.

"An unfortunate occurence is that high water frequently washes this material back into the creek again . . ."

Earlier in the brief, the company appears to be hinting that fishermen should help pay the costs of keeping streams safe from logging.

There is this comment under the heading, Costs:

"We are concerned about the mounting costs of stream protection and rehabilitation . . . No suggestion has yet come forth with respect to recovering costs in private timber.

"And, to the best of our knowledge, no real effort has been made to consider what part the fish resource users should play in defraying these costs."

Painless Confrontation

Brief bursts from laser beam are fired into patient's eye by a $23,000 argon laser photocoagulator, installed at Victoria General Hospital and scheduled to go operational later this month.

Patient's position is demonstrated by Mrs. Pamela Marchand, ophthalmic technician, as Dr. R. L. Wiggins illustrates how pinpoint beam is focused through binocular microscope. Alix Matte, chief technician in the opthalmology service, is in background.

Beam is used to seal proliferating blood vessels at back of eye or repair holes and tears in retina.

The treatment is painless. An estimated 400 patients a year will benefit from new machine.

Terrace Housing Plans Unveiled

Plans for the first terrace housing in the Greater Victoria area were unveiled at Oak Bay council's zoning committee meeting today.

Presented by Frank Carson of Yennadon Holdings Ltd. and architect David Hambleton, the plans call for either eight or nine terrace houses on a lot on the corner of Oak Bay and Yale, opposite the municipal hall.

Carson said the units would be similar to ones in California and England, designed for couples who want to live in the midddle of town, having their own backyard, as opposed to people who prefer living in an apartment condominium.

Carson estimated that the houses would cost between $35,000 and $40,000.

Carson agreed that his project would be negotiated with council through a land-use contract and that Hambleton would remain on the project as architect.

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White was asked to report what type of density and traffic would be germinated by this type of development.

Bruins Get Bounced By Rugged Rangers

BOSTON (CP) — New York Rangers' supposed weak defense came up strong in the opening game of their National Hockey League quarter-final series with Boston Bruins Wednesday night for a surprising 6-2 victory.

The Ranger defence, crippled by major injuries most of the season, slid, jolted and bounced Bruin forwards to take the lead in the best-of-seven series. It continues here tonight at 7:35 p.m. EST.

Brad Park, one of the question marks with a gimpy leg, scorched the ice with two low shots from near the Boston blueline that beat Boston goalie Jacques Plante. Park's second goal was one of four by the Rangers in the second period after which New York had a 5-1 lead.

Jim Neilson, recovering from a broken foot, and Dale Rolfe were solid regulars and Ron Harris provided the body that kept Boston forwards with their heads up in the Ranger end of the ice.

"But the key to our victory here," said coach Emile Francis, "was our forechecking. We kept right on top of them and didn't let them get going."

Plante looked shaky at the start of the game, but former Boston coach Tom Johnson, now holding a front office position with the club, said the 44-year-old veteran couldn't be faulted.

"He's not getting any help out there," Johnson said in the press box where he observed the game. "Those guys (the defence) are letting them shoot."

Boston coach Bep Guidolin agreed.

"It certainly wasn't the goaltender's fault," said the rookie coach. "There were a lot of guys out front who weren't working."

Walt Tkaczuk also scored twice for the Rangers in a rugged contest that saw three major outbreaks—two stalemated decisions involving New York's Ted Irvine and a clear-cut victory for Bruins' rookie Fred O'Donnell over tough Glen Sather.

Pete Stemkowski and Bruce MacGregor added New York goals. Doug Roberts and Derek Sanderson opened and closed the game's scoring for Boston in front of the 15,003 fans.

GIACOMIN SHARP

While Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin was tested just 24 times, he had to be sharp against John Bucyk and Phil Esposito.

Rangers' forechecking, coupled with the inability of Esposito's linemates—Wayne Cashman and Ken Hodge—to muscle the puck out of the New York corners, nullified the major portion of Boston's offence.

Neither Esposito, who was on the ice for five New York scores, nor Bobby Orr, who was on for three Ranger goals and in the penalty box for a seven-minute stint after a stick-jousting fight with Irvine for another three goals, was talking after the game.

But Sanderson, who sparked the Bruins when Guidolin inserted him between O'Donnell and Terry O'Reilly in the third period, agreed that "they bottled up everybody forechecking us."

"It was strictly their forechecking. They were using the right winger to come across in front and force us to circle, and when we did, bang, there were two New York guys on a man. . . . After they got their third goal, it was like throwing gas on a fire."

PLANTE STUNNED

Plante, obtained in a trade from Toronto Maple Leafs to shore up Boston's goaltending problem, was still stunned by the turn of events long after the game.

"I have no idea what happened," he said. "I knew something like this would happen sometime, but it came all at once—all in one period."

One of the questions most fielded by the two coaches was whether the Orr-Irvine battle, which dumped the Bruins' superstar defenceman in the penalty box in the second period, was the turning point in the game.

The Rangers took advantage of Orr's seven-minute absence and scored three goals.

"I'll take that exchange anytime," Francis said.

THERE WAS TROUBLE for Boston Bruins in attempts to get past New York defence in playoff game Wednesday night at Boston. Forward Mike Walton learns about problems in second period as he gets spilled by Dale Rolfe of Rangers. Rolfe was solid performer as Rangers opened series by upsetting Bruins 6-2. Habs Clip Sabres As Brothers Duel

MONTREAL (CP) — There were a few firsts Wednesday night as Montreal Canadiens nipped Buffalo Sabres 2-1 in the opening game of their Stanley Cup quarter-final playoff series.

For instance, the Sabres were playing their initial playoff game and Craig Ramsay notched his first goal in the National Hockey League's post-season competition to give the Sabres a 1-0 lead in the second period.

And for the first time, the goaltending Dryden brothers — Ken of Montreal and Dave of Buffalo—faced each other in a Stanley Cup game, although they have played against one another several times during regular season play.

Dave, 32, surrendered a goal to Jacques Lemaire in the second period as Canadiens tied the score and then was beaten by Yvan Cournoyer on a Montreal power play at 4:27 of the final period but otherwise was outstanding as he blocked 34 shots.

Ken, 25, faced 32 Sabre blasts, allowing only Ramsay's shot to elude him at 3:13 of the second period. The puck appeared to elude Dryden high on his glove side and he admitted he was surprised.

"It tipped my glove," Ken said. "He surprised me with it.

"Bufalo is a hard-working team. They always give us trouble. They are trouble against every team they play because they work so hard."

PRAISES BROTHER

The younger Dryden, now in his third Stanley Cup playoff with the Canadiens, took time out to laud his brother, who was appearing in his first full game.

"He played well. He always plays well against us. He frustrated us for the first 30 minutes of the game. It was just a matter of two really good shots beating him."

Dave, who played 13 minutes in a playoff game with Chicago Black Hawks during the 1966-67 season, was a bit of a surprise starter in the Sabres nets as there had been indications that veteran Roger Crozier would get the starting nod.

But Dave, who defeated his brother in a game earlier this season in Buffalo, got the call from coach Joe Crozier.

"I like to play in here and I like to get as many points as I can in here and Joe knows this," Dryden said.

He denied that he had "an identity crisis" because his younger brother was perhaps more famous than him.

"No, there's no identity crisis," Dryden said. "There may have been two years ago when Ken came up and had that great playoff, but that didn't last long."

Dryden thought he should have had Lemaire's shot in the second period.

"It was a bad angle and I had my pads apart. I thought I had squeezed it, but I didn't. Too bad, because we had this game. There's no way we are going to be pushovers."

"That's how they've played us all year," said Canadiens' coach Scotty Bowman. "There was only a one-goal difference— an empty-net goal at that."

Canadiens, who won two and tied two games against Buffalo in five regular season meetings, only outscored the Sabres 14-13.

Bowman said he does not plan any lineup changes for tonight's second game, which will be televised nationally on the CBC network starting at 5 p.m. PST.

The Canadiens' Dryden suffered a slight injury to his left foot but it is not expected to keep him out of the lineup and perhaps a second playoff confrontation with his brother.

Knicks Now One Short of Sweep

By The Associated Press

New York Knicks are one game away from sweeping their first-round National Basketball Association playoff series with Baltimore after a 103-96 victory Wednesday night.

Each of the five Knick starters scored 16 points or better, more than offsetting a brilliant 36-point performance by Baltimore's Elvin Hayes as New York grabbed a 3-0 lead in the playoff series.

Bill Bradley was high scorer for New York with 23 points, followed by Dave DeBusschere, 19; Earl Monroe, 18, and Willis Reed and Walt Frazier, 16 each.

Hayes, meanwhile, was a one-man gang, hitting 16 of 26 shots from the field and also grabbing 14 rebounds.

The next game is in Baltimore Friday night.

In another playoff game Wednesday, Boston Celtics took a 2-0 lead in their first-round series with Atlanta by beating the Hawks 126-113 in Atlanta.

John Havlicek, who scored 54 points in the series opener, led Boston with 29 points. Jo Jo White added 24 points, Dave Cowens had 20 points and 25 rebounds and Paul Silas added 17 rebounds.

Atlanta was led by Pete Maravich with 30 points and Lou Hudson with 27.

In playoff action tonight, Milwaukee meets Golden State at Oakland. That series is tied at one win each.

Green Mountain Slopes May Have a Busier Look

By STEWART LANG
Times Staff

Green Mountain ski area could sport a new look in the not-too-distant future.

Directors of the Sno-Birds Lifts Society, which operates the area near Nanaimo, announced a major expansion plan on Wednesday.

"A fund-raising committee has been organized to raise capital for installation of a new T-Bar on Green Mountain," said Bruna Clozza, president of the Lifts Society.

"This will open up practically the whole of Green Mountain to skiing."

The new T-Bar will start at the unloading point of the existing "T" and travel up another 864 feet through a rise of 212 feet. The total length of services will be 3,205 feet with 818 feet vertical rise.

"Runs of over one mile will be possible, with a large amount of touring area available towards the south peak," added Clozza.

Two obstacles must be overcome if the plan is to go ahead.

The Lifts Society must upgrade the access road to the mountain by incorporating one of the existing logging roads which has a lesser grade.

Money also will have to be raised through sale of debentures so that cash can be paid for the expansion. Directors hope to have enough money and create sufficient public interest to put the scheme before shareholders at the annual meeting in June.

Preston Storey of Victoria, president of the Sno-Birds Ski Club which started development on Green Mountain, can be contacted for further information on debentures at 382-9082.

Fred Called the Shot

By The Canadian Press

Goalie Cesare Maniago and centre Dennis Hextall made Fred Shero's worst fears come true Wednesday night in first-round Stanley Cup playoff action.

Shero, coach of Philadelphia Flyers, had warned Tuesday that Maniago and Hextall were the two Minnesota North Stars who could make things roughest for the Flyers.

In the first game of the best-of-seven quarter-final Wednesday in Philadelphia, Maniago blanked the Flyers and Hextall started the scoring as the North Stars scored a 3-0 victory.

In the other series involving National Hockey League West Division clubs, Dick Redmond and Pit Martin each scored three goals to lead Chicago Black Hawks in a 7-1 romp over St. Louis Blues at Chicago.

The second games in both series will be tonight at Philadelphia and Chicago. Third and fourth games are set for Saturday and Sunday at Minneapolis and St. Louis.

Maniago turned aside 33 Philadelphia shots to earn the shutout and Hextall broke the scoreless tie midway in the second period. He skated in with winger Bill Goldsworthy who fed him a pass and the Stars centre beat Flyers goalie Doug Favell with a 15-foot backhand shot.

Dennis O'Brien beat Favell with a shot from just inside the blue line late in the second period and Jude Drouin scored midway in the final period.

The Flyers outshot the North Stars 33-28 and had several good chances at Maniago but the lanky goalie held out for his sixth shutout of the season.

Minnesota's Dean Prentice needed six stitches to close a gash in his scalp after he was struck by a shot from Flyer Rick MacLeish.

LOSES LENSE

Philadelphia centre Bobby Clarke had one of his contact lenses shattered during the third period when struck in the eye by a stick and he was taken to hospital for examination to make sure none of the pieces were left in his eye.

Redmond, a defenceman converted to left wing when Chicago acquired him in mid-season from California Golden Seals, had his first-ever three-goal game.

Redmond, who scored only 12 goals all season, got his first one Wednesday night at 15:02 of the first period and his second just 18 seconds later.

His third goal three minutes into the final period gave Chicago a 3-0 lead and then Jim Pappin got a single goal before Martin started on his three against Blues goalie Wayne Stephanson.

Phil Roberto scored for St. Louis in the final minute to spoil Tony Esposito's bid for a shutout.

Hawks centre Stan Mikita tied the record for most assists in one playoff game with five. The record was set in 1944 by Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens and later tied by Canadiens Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Bert Olmstead and by Boston Bruin Don McKenney.

SWEDES UNDEFEATED

MOSCOW (AP) — Paced by three goals from Inge Hammarstrom, Sweden defeated West Germany 8-2 Wednesday in world championship hockey play.

The Swedes opened the scoring early in the first period when Bjorn Johansson fired a screened shot past German goalie Anton Kehle.

The Swedes rattled in four goals in the second period when Johansson, Ulf Sterner, Mats Ahlberg and Hammarstrom scored.

The Swedes now have won all three games they've played.

In a later game, Finland improved its record to two wins and a loss with a 5-0 thrashing of Poland which is winless in four starts—the same as West Germany.

Canuck Plan Snubbed

MOSCOW (AP) — The congress of the International Ice Hockey Federation IIHF Wednesday rejeeted a Canadian proposal that would allow professionals to play in its world championship.

Bunny Ahearne, IIHF council president, reported the decision after a congress meeting held in conjunction with the championships.

He said only Canada and Sweden favored the proposal. Canada has refused to participate in the championships in recent years without the use of professionals.

Ahearne told reporters the question had been raised for four years, adding: "I do not understand why this is a problem. I think that this so-called Canadian problem does not exist. If it exists then it is their problem."

Most members of the federation, including Communist states where hockey and other sports are state-supported, have argued that the amateur status of the championship must be preserved.

The congress also announced that next year's world championship will be held in Helsinki March 30-April 14.

The B and C groups will hold their tournaments in Yugoslavia and France respectively earlier in 1974.

The 1975 world championship will be in West Germany and Group B in Japan. The site for Group C has not yet been decided.

Seattle Gambles

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Seattle has bet $29 million that a domed stadium in Washington's damp climate can attract a professional football or baseball team.

But with no takers so far and construction of the stadium under way, 35 Seattle lobbyists set up shop here this an eye to luring a team to Seattle.

"If we don't get an NFL franchise, we could almost paint the stadium white and put a head and tail on it," Gerald Schlatter, stadium project manager, said in an interview Wednesday.

Schlatter said NFL owners aren't the only ones looking over the stadium, which will hold 65,000 persons when completed in 1975.

Only Strikes Are From Pitchers

Cincinnati's Don Gullett was scheduled to deliver the first pitch of the 1973 baseball season today, giving the major leagues a two-week jump on last year.

Last year opening day was 15 days late because of the first player strike in history.

The only strikes this opening day were to be thrown by Gullett of the Reds and San Francisco Giants' Juan Marichal, the starting pitchers in today's National League contest.

The American League and its revolutionary designated player rule gets going Friday with five games scheduled. The remaining five NL openers, following Cincinnati's traditional early start, are also set for Friday and the final AL opener will be played Saturday.

Both Gullett, Cincinnati's lefthander, and Marichal, ace of the San Francisco staff, are looking for comeback seasons.

In 1972, Gullett was a so-so 9-10 and missed about six weeks because of mononucleosis.

Marichal struggled through a 6-16 year, troubled by arm and back ailments. Both pitched well in spring training.

Cincinnati, the defending National League champion, and Pittsburgh Pirates are favored to win the two divisions in the National League. Defending champion Oakland Athletics carry the favorite's role in the American League West while Boston White Sox, Baltimore Orioles, New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers are rated tossups in the AL East.

Of considerable interest in the American League will be the designated hitter rule that permits teams to substitute another batter for traditionally light-hitting pitchers without forcing the pitcher to leave the game.

Along with today's opener Texas Rangers and Cleveland Indians close the exhibition season at San Antonio, Tex.

In Wednesday night's exhibition action, the Indians stopped the Rangers 4-3 as Walt Williams collected four hits and Leo Cardenas knocked in two runs.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles Dodgers stopped Oakland Athletics 6-3; Chicago Cubs beat San Diego Padres 5-0; California Angels nipped Milwaukee Brewers 2-1; New York Yankees clipped New York Mets 3-2 and Minnesota Twins topped Houston Astros 6-4.

He's Golf's New 'Mr. Personality' And Amateur Threat to Win Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A cluster of giggling girls strained against the ropes around the Augusta National practice putting green and thrust pencils, tickets and scraps of paper at the golfer on the other side.

The target of the onslaught wasn't Arnold Palmer, nor Jack Nicklaus, nor modish Johnny Miller nor chatterbox Lee Trevino.

It was Ben Crenshaw, 20, from Austin, Tex., golf's new Mr. Personality, who many are predicting is the game's super star of the future.

When Palmer is tired of missing three-foot putts and Nicklaus has become bored with $50,000 cheques and Grand Slam talk, young Crenshaw may be the player who draws the big galleries.

In the 37th Masters Tournament, starting today, Crenshaw, an amateur, is paired with Arnold Palmer, four times winner and the man whose personal magnetism sent the game on a dizzying spiral in the 1960s.

"He's one hell of a player," said Palmer.

"I rate him one of the 10 best players in the world, pro or amateur," said Australia's David Graham. "You can tell he's destined to be a great champion by the way he grips a club.

"Few men possess a strong, almost infallable grip. Sam Snead does. Ben Hogan did. And of course, Palmer and Nicklaus. So does Crenshaw. He could win here—make no mistake about it."

No amateur has ever won the Masters, although some have come close.

The select field starting today's tournament consists of 59 American pros, 15 foreign pros, six U.S. and two foreign amateurs. Included are pro George Knudson of Toronto and amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont.

They were scheduled in pairs over the 6,980-yard, par-72 layout.

The prize money, modest by tour standards, is fixed by the Masters sponsors. The champion can count on about $25,000.

But pride takes precedent over money in this event, with Nicklaus seeking his fifth Masters and a 14th major crown which would set him a rung above the late Bob Jones.

Billy Casper, the 1970 winner, wasn't sure he'd fixed the pull in his back which forced him to stop practice abruptly Tuesday.

"I'll try to play, but I can't guarantee anything," he said.

Trevino, British Open champion and the year's leading money winner, couldn't guarantee anything either.

"I just can't play this course," he moaned. "I've had two straight rounds of 78 in practice. The last eight rounds I've played, I haven't had one round under par."

Nats Find a Roost At Least for Now

TORONTO (CP) — Ottawa Nationals have found a place to play their playoff games, but where they'll call home next year is still uncertain.

If Bill Ballard, vice-president of Maple Leaf Gardens, has his way the World Hockey Association club will play in the Gardens next year.

Nick Trbovich, majority shareholder, told a hastily-called news conference Wednesday night it has been decided "that Toronto is home—at least for the playoffs."

President Doug Michele said in Ottawa the club has been forced to use the Gardens.

Trbovich said the team is "in full-scale negotiations for next year," but Michel said it has "been able to break off negotiations as far as next year is concerned."

One thing is certain: Ottawa Nationals will open their home playoff stand at the Gardens against New England Whalers next Tuesday.

Ballard and Trbovich say negotiations are continuing to bring the club to Toronto next year. Trbovich said the negotiations do not involve sale of the club, just a rental agreement for next year.

However, he also said: "Principally, I'm interested in additional Canadian participation. . . ."

Ballard said if he didn't think the Nationals would be in Toronto next year, "I wouldn't have them here for the playoffs."

Coliseum Packed For Karen's Party

VANCOUVER (CP) — Karen Magnussen, the best female figure skater in the world, celebrated her 21st birthday Wednesday night by giving and receiving.

A turn-away crowd of 16,336 paid a dollar a head to take part in an Honor Karen program at the Pacific Coliseum, with the world figure skating champion skating a 13-minute routine. Free skating star Toller Cranston of Toronto and other Canadian and British Columbia champions also took part.

Miss Magnussen received numerous gifts, including a new car—but she'll have to ask her parents every time she wants to drive it. All gifts valued at more than $150 will be held in trust or placed in her parents' names, to protect Karen's amateur status.

The special program, sanctioned by the Canadian Figure Skating Association, was sponsored by the Pacific National Exhibition. Proceeds will be used to establish the Karen Magnussen Bursary Fund, to help in the development of young skaters in B.C.

Saints Advance Into Playoffs

By The Canadian Press

Minnesota Fighting Saints advanced to the World Hockey Association quarter-finals with a sudden-death decision over Alberta Oilers Wednesday while Cleveland Crusaders drew first playoff blood.

The Saints dumped the Oilers 4-2 in the tie-breaker between the clubs who finished together in fourth spot in the Western Division.

The Crusaders edged Philadelphia Blazers 3-2 in overtime in the first game of their best-of-seven quarter-final at Cleveland.

Minnesota's victory over the Oilers at Calgary sends them into the quarter-final against Winnipeg Jets, starting Friday in Winnipeg.

It was the second battle Minnesota had to stage to reach the playoffs and they won it with goals by Mel Pearson, Wayne Connelly, Mike Antonovich and Bill Young.

Earlier, the Saints had to fight off a league directive which would have given Alberta the playoff spot by virtue of the Oilers' superior record against West Division competition during the season. That was ruled out after a poll of league trustees Sunday.

Ron Buchanan's goal at 10:16 of overtime gave Cleveland the victory and the series lead going into the second game of their series Saturday, also at Cleveland.

Tonight's only action sees Los Angeles Sharks and Houston Aeros opening their quarter-final encounter at Houston.

The other series, between Ottawa Nationals and New England Whalers, opens Saturday at Boston.

Juniors Anticipate Lively Boxla Run

"Richmond and Victoria have almost identical teams as last year."

This message from general manager Bob Reid of Victoria McDonalds Bread serves to point out that another lively Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League season may be in the offing.

Richmond Roadrunners, who nipped Victoria in the last game of the playoff final last year, went on to collect the Western Canada title but lost out to Peterborough in the Minto Cup final.

McDonald's who finished third in their inaugural season last year after leading the league most of the way, have lost three players to age. They are Pete Gibson, George Sprinkling and Tom Somner.

Three newcomers, however, have made a favorable impression on coach Bill Munroe during recent workouts.

Defencemen Jamie Robertson and Lorry Gloeckner, graduates from Victoria midget ranks, and forward Kim Browning, up from Saanich intermediate ranks, will be under special scrutiny during practices starting this week in Memorial Arena.

Another promising youngster, forward Rick Sage from the Nanaimo junior "B" club, is expected to start workouts, shortly.

Victoria players returning for another season, include goaltender Johnny Hamilton, selected as an all-star last year, and his backup, Bill Robertson.

Forward Jim Lynch, another all-star choice who won the league scoring title last season, is also back.

Victoria opens the season May 13 in Burnaby and plays the first home game May 20 against Roadrunners.

Home games consist of seven Sunday appearances at 7 p.m., three Monday dates and two Tuesday games at 8 p.m.

GREEN SPARKS GORGE TO McGAVIN CUP WIN

Centre-forward Danny Green scored two goals Wednesday night to lead Victoria Gorge to a 4-1 victory over Oak Bay in the Victoria and District Soccer League's McGavin Cup final.

Greens' goals and another goal, booted in by an Oak Bay defender trying to clear the ball, gave Gorge a 3-0 lead at half time.

Sam Colantonio made it 4-0 midway through the second half and goalkeeper George Taylor saw his shutout hopes shattered four minutes from the end when Oak Bay centre-forward Robert Gutierrez scored on a header.

On the way to the final, Gorge, which last won the cup in 1971, defeated Victoria West's first and second division teams in early rounds and got past London Boxing Club in the semi-finals.

Oak Bay had to defeat Labatts of the second division and then first-division clubs Cosmopolitan Royals, the defending champions, and Prospect Lake to reach the final.

Both finalists play in the District League's first division, although the McGavin Cup contest is open to teams in all three divisions.

Rangers Again Reach Cup Final

GLASGOW (Reuter) — Glasgow Rangers reached the Scottish Football Association Cup final for the 30th time when they beat Ayr United 2-0 in their semi-final match at Hampden Park Wednesday.

Rangers, who have won the trophy 19 times, clinched a place in the final on May 5 with two goals from Derek Parlane.

The semi-final between Celtic and Dundee will be played at Hampden Park on Saturday.

Celtic, who have won the cup 22 times in 35 final appearances, are the holders of the trophy and are favored to win through to meet their arch-rivals.

In seven previous finals between Rangers and Celtic, four have been won by Celtic and three by Rangers.

Datsun 1200 prices start at $2245*.
There are a few economy cars that seem to cost $70 or $80 less. But take a look at the features Datsun includes for that price. Like reclining front bucket seats. Front disc brakes. Rear window defogger. High capacity 2-speed heater/defroster. And much more.

In the long run — when you include all your operating, maintenance and depreciation costs — the Datsun 1200 could end up costing you less to own.

Before you buy an economy car, Datsun thinks you owe it to yourself to check out all the good values on the market. Read the consumer and trade magazines. Talk to Datsun owners. Then, test drive a Datsun 1200.

Firms Against Stream Policy

Briefs presented by two forest companies to the legislative committee on forestry and fisheries take issue with government guidelines for protecting stream banks and shorelines.

Both Weldwood of Canada Ltd. and Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. argued there should be flexibility in the standards they are required to meet because of the diverse conditions found through the province's timberlands.

INVENTORY NEEDED

Both companies said they share concern about stream bank and lakeshore protection and are practising measures to keep them undamaged or reduce damage to a minimum.

Inventories of resources other than timber, such as fish, wildlife and recreation, are badly needed together with research to determine their value so that priorities can be established, they said.

The Weldwood brief said the company "seriously questions the wisdom and advisability of the proposed patch clear cutting system.

"It was arbitrarily introduced, to our knowledge, with little or no prior consultation with industrial professional foresters and with other resource users."

In its brief, Rayonier said: "any measures which would significantly reduce available productive acreage, or reduce the annual rate of harvest, is viewed with apprehension."

GOOD MANAGEMENT

Reconciling stream bank protection with timber harvesting can't be resolved by "simplistic solutions so commonly advocated these days."

It said careful, reasoned logging road locations and construction together with care in felling and yarding timber which takes into account local conditions will result in little or no adverse effect on fish.

"Good management will preclude any blanket requirement for greenstrips."

The Weldwood brief notes that the guidelines propose "patch clear cutting" in which up to 50 per cent of the available timber is harvested on the initial pass through an area.

Initial openings can vary but be no bigger than 200 acres. Logging on areas adjacent to the initial opening is deferred for an indefinite period, until the slash hazard has abated, reforestation requirements met and the maintenance of other values assured.

10 YEAR PERIOD

"Current implementation of the guidelines indicates that the deferment period will be a minimum of 10 years," the brief said.

While conceding that more green timber patches could have been left uncut in certain areas in the past, to provide winter range for wildlife and protect sensitive stream banks and spawning beds, Weldwood said:

"Unfortunately, in the past, and to a large extent also at the present time, the basic input on where these protective features were necessary and what the requirements of other resources were, was largely, and still is, unknown.

"Today, the forest industry is being criticized because of the lack of input from other resource users in the past."

The Rayonier brief said natural foods and security for the fish can be achieved by planning and logging so that all yarding is away from the stream bank, a method which provides shade and food by leaving bankside brush and alder intact.

MICKEY MOUSE $: POLLEN

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen today described the American dollar as a "mickey mouse dollar" and said "perhaps B.C. should be advised to stay away from it."

His comments were part of a prepared statement reacting to a recent Wall Street publication's reference to B.C. as the Chile of the North, and B.C.-er's as so apathetic they "wouldn't lift an eyebrow" if Mao Tse-tung was elected to the legislature.

The tough editorial commentary written with the province's NDP government as the main subject matter was published by Barron's a well-known American weekly.

"I'm sort of a left-wing guy to a degree," said Pollen.

"But I think that Barron's could better serve the interests of the United States by concerning itself with the American dollar and endeavoring to stop its erosion. It's becoming a mickey mouse dollar."

He said the article was "not only insulting, but fraught with super-spy ramifications," lately becoming characteristic in such editorial comments.

"B.C. would be well advised to stay away from it," he said.

Premier Dave Barrett earlier commented that if Barron's continues to publish the type of article it did on B.C., "they will ruin Wall Street's credit rating with B.C. and when they come to B.C. to borrow money, it will be tough for them to overcome that kind of image."

Vancouver Man Buys C & C Taxi

C & C Taxi Service has been sold to a Vancouver businessman, John Prevedoros, for an undisclosed price.

Prevedoros, who was vice-president of the courier division of Loomis Armored Car Service Ltd. in Vancouver before coming to Victoria, took over the company March 24.

The firm was sold by executors of the estate of former owner Ken Nordal, who died last year.

The fleet of 24 C & C cabs will continue to operate exactly as they did before, Prevedoros said today.

"We have already added a Cadillac limousine service to the taxi service," he said.

The taxi company had been part of one of Victoria's oldest transportation companies, C & C Transportation Co. Ltd., which was founded 64 years ago.

The transportation company was bought in 1962 by Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Nordal from the executors of the estate of the former owners, Cecil Rhodes and Cecil Rawlings, who were killed in a plane crash in 1960.

The Nordals' son Ken later became owner of the taxi company.

Term Reduced For Trafficker

A six-year prison term, ordered for a Victoria heroin trafficker Oct. 13, was reduced to four years by the B.C. Court of Appeal in Vancouver Wednesday.

Norman George Urquhart, 26, was sentenced by Judge William Ostler after pleading guilty Oct. 12 to selling one cap of heroin to RCMP undercover agent Blaine Froats in the Churchill Hotel July 31.

Urquhart was the first trafficker to be sentenced in Victoria after the RCMP's Oct. 12 nation-wide drug raids.

Cecil Branson, Urquhart's lawyer, said today the appeal was allowed to maintain "uniformity with the length of sentence for this kind of offence throughout the province."

The appeal court also ruled that Ostler did not have the benefit of a pre-sentence report when the six-year term was ordered, said Branson.

Sgt. David Staples, head of the RCMP drug squad, said today there were 45 warrants issued on Vancouver Island at the time of the national raids. Three warrants have not been executed.

Three persons remain to be tried, 38 have been convicted, and one man was acquitted.

No Blame Attached In Death

A coroner's jury did not attach any blame Tuesday to the driver of a pickup truck which struck and killed a woman walking on Sooke Road March 29.

Mrs. Margaret Pawsy, 49, a visitor from England, was walking along Sooke Road near Anders Road with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Vera Bodman and her six-year-old daughter, when she was hit by a truck towing a utility trailer, driven by Daniel George Fast, 2206 Church.

The jury found the trailer hitch on the truck was loose and the trailer was badly loaded.

It was also found that Mrs. Pawsey had been hit "either on the shoulder or the extreme edge of the hard surface of the road."

"Who's been drinking my wine?"

"People are up to their old tricks again ...first my porridge and now my wine. A Baby Bear could get a complex—except—who can blame them? My wine does taste irresistibly good!"

"I want to be your Baby Bear!"

Junior, Senior Titles on Line As Big Night for Singers Comes

Solo classes in the Music Festival are tapering off for this week, and tonight is the big one for vocalists with junior and senior championships to be decided.

At the end of competition Wednesday, adjudicator Roger Stalman chose for the "sing-offs," four outstanding competitors from adult solo classes and four from junior classes.

The adult four who will compete for the B.C. Electric Rose Bowl, are Judith Temple, John McVie, Robin Powell and Corinne Eckert.

Michele Fulmore and Phillip Jaynes of Duncan and Cathy-Anne Skillings and Susan Pye are the four juniors.

Winner in each case will represent Victoria at the Provincial Music Festival in Vancouver.

ALSO GROUPS

Interspersed with the championship contests at First United Fellowship Hall will be performances by several of Victoria's outstanding choral groups.

In other sessions tonight there will be the first section of an open piano concerto class at Newcombe Auditorium, senior secondary bands at Central Junior, piano at St. John's Hall and speech arts at Fellowship Hall.

It was an evening of pure charm at Fellowship Hall Wednesday, beginning with a surprise packet in the form of the Co-Val Choristers of Courtenay.

ONLY ONES

They were the only entries in the musical comedy ensemble class and performed, complete with costume, some excerpts from The Sound of Music.

The adjudicator happily awarded them a 90 for their "thoroughly delightful performance."

The group has been together for 15 years and has done 12 musicals. They plan to bring the whole production to the McPherson Playhouse April 27.

Another vocal ensemble class produced three different, but enchanting, performances that evoked superlatives from Stalman.

The Claremont Ensemble, conducted by Don Kyle, was awarded a total of 178, including a 90 for its superbly musical performance of an early Italian song and an English madrigal.

TRIO PRAISED

A trio consisting of Madeleine and Hilary Gross and Jennifer Angus, were congratulated not only on finding so unusual and interesting a number — Adoramus te, Christus by De Lassos — but for singing it so beautifully.

A small ensemble, the St. John's Singers, sang The Turtle Dove and an interesting arrangement of a Bach Bouree accompanied by percussion and cello.

Both these entries received the same total marks — 173.

Out-of-town entrants some from Washington State and a nmuber from up-Island points, have chalked up fine records in this festival.

But no one has garnered more marks in the 90s than Jackie Parker, a teen-aged pianist from Shawnigan Lake School. Wednesday night he topped the open sonata class with 91. Previously he had a 95 in the open Canadian composition class and a 91 for Bach.

BUDDY SAVED MY LIFE—OPPEL

COMOX, B.C. (CP) — Missionary Lloyd Oppel said Wednesday he owes his life to a fellow missionary who helped him survive a 35-day ordeal along the Ho Chi Minh Trail after his capture last October.

In an interview with the Comox Valley Free Press, Mr. Oppel said his captors often questioned him for four to five hours while he was suffering from "the most severe kind of malaria."

The 21-year-old missionary returned home last Sunday following five months internment in a Communist prison-er of war camp in Indochina. He was taken prisoner Oct. 28 near Keng Kok in southern Laos where he was helping to build a mission hospital. He's now recuperating at his home here.

Mr. Oppel said he was forced to walk for 35 days along the Ho Chi Minh Trail. He said he had malaria during this time and that the Communists "sort of used this against me."

"Instead of taking me out and beating me, all they had to do was put me back in my bed," he said. "I would start shivering and the fever was coming on and they were not treating me in spite of the fact that I kept asking them for medicine.

"When I was with my buddy, Sam Mattix, he would sometimes take a wet rag and mop my head a bit to bring the fever down. I owe my life to Sam for all the different things he did for me: Carrying my pack, leading me when I was blind and giving me strength to carry on when all seemed lost."

CAPTURED IN TRUCK

Mr. Mattix, a 20-year-old fellow missionary from Centrall, Wash., was captured with Mr. Oppel while the two were driving a truck near Keng Kok. The two were working for Christian Missions in Many Lands.

Mr. Oppel said his captors wanted to know everything about the organization.

"I would tell them 'I'm not a soldier, I'm a missionary'," he said. "They would persist with the same questions—after a while it gets to you. Over and over I was asked to explain the function of CMML.

"You could do one of two things. You could keep on repeating the story or tell them what they wanted to hear. I figured I had a moral responsibility before God to be honest— sometimes it would have been a lot easier to have just lied," he said.

"They asked a lot of irritating and stupid questions," he said. "They never laid a hand on me during interrogation, but I was beaten in the village after my capture.

Mr. Oppel said he spent 28 days in solitary confinement, four of them "locked in a small closet with no windows."

"This was nothing compared to the time spent in solitary by other prisoners," he said.

Star Witness Mum In Pentagon Trial

LOS ANGELES (WP) — A former South Vietnamese diplomat flown here from West Africa to be a star defence witness in the Pentagon Papers trial left town Wednesday without giving a word of testimony.

Vu Van Thai, once Saigon's ambassador to Washington and now an official of the United Nations development program in Dakar, Senegal, had been secretly scheduled as a witness for Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo Jr., who are charged with conspiracy, espionage and theft of government property in connection with disclosure of the top-secret documents.

It cost $668 to fly Thai here from Dakar and his testimony was expected to provoke a good deal of sensation, since he is named as a co-conspirator — but not formally charged with any crime — in the indictment against Ellsberg and Russo.

The government contends that he was present, and had illegal access to at least one volume of the Pentagon Papers, while the defendants duplicated the documents at a Hollywood advertising agency in October, 1969.

According to sources close to the defence, he was to testify that he spent only half an hour with Ellsberg and Russo at the advertising agency while he was waiting to have dinner with them.

After extensive discussions with Thai — a long-time friend and confidant of Ellsberg from the days when they were both working at Rand Corporation in nearby Santa Monica — the defence decided that his appearance as a witness could pose serious risks to its case.

It was feared, for example, that his testimony would serve only to highlight the theft charges against Ellsberg and Russo, generally regarded as the strongest part of the government's case.

The final decision not to have Thai testify was made by Ellsberg Tuesday night, but the former diplomat is understood to be remaining in this country for a brief period so that he can return here and testify after all if his name figures prominently in the government's rebuttal case.

No Ottawa Role In Gas Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — There is no role for the federal government in the dispute between Ontario and Alberta over natural gas prices, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday.

"We are very much in the middle," the federal minister told the annual meeting of the York South Federal Liberal Association.

He predicted the dispute would be settled by negotiation before a federal-provincial conference on national energy policy proposed by Ontario Premier William Davis takes place.

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed said Wednesday he has no intention of waiting for any conference.

STRIKE RULING UPHELD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada has upheld a $107,795 judgment suit against the United Fishermen and Allied Worker's Union stemming from a bitter labor dispute at Prince Rupert six years ago.

The court also assessed the union and 10 individual defendants costs that will bring the total penalty to almost twice the damages awarded, according to union sources.

The dispute tied up the trawling industry at Prince Rupert for five months in 1967. The B.C. Supreme Court in 1970 awarded the damages to three companies and 10 trawler captains after finding the strike was illegal.

Thalidomide Firm To Pay Legal Fees

OTTAWA (CP) — A U.S. company which sold thalidomide in Canada has agreed to "negotiate in good faith" with families seeking compensation for children deformed by the drug, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday.

Lalonde told the Commons that Richardson Merrell Inc. of Cleveland has agreed to pay the legal fees involved in all claims against itself that are judged to be legitimate.

Stop Fish Raiding—MP

OTTAWA CP)—The Threat to Canadian fisheries from the fishing fleets of other nations is so strong that the federal government should make a policy statement on territorial waters this spring, a British Columbia MP said Wednesday.

Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox - Alberni made the suggestion during committee study of the environment department's fisheries and forestry estimates for 1973-74.

Barnett was supporting Lloyd Crouse, the Progressive Conservative MP for the Nova Scotia riding of South Shore, who said the external affairs department should be looking after Canadian fishermen's interests by telling other nations to stop their illegal exploitation.

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate), who brought up the subject two weeks ago of other countries invading Canada's traditional fishing grounds, also called for a policy statement from the government.

C. R. Levelton, director of operations for the department's fisheries and marine branch and a witness before the committee, said he could not speak on behalf of the government but said he was unaware of foreign vessels taking shellfish other than a few lobsters.

Crouse, however, said Japanese boats are conducting a research program off the West Coast into the possibility of exploiting sea urchins and when the committee chairman tried to steer the questioning back to another topic, Barnett jumped in with his policy statement proposal.

Crouse asked why Canada could not crack down on U.S. harvesting of scallops off Canada.

Home for Easter? MLAs Can Forget It

Victoria Times
THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1973 21
THIRD SECTION

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

And the legislative beat goes on and on . . .

That is the theme of many MLAs' thoughts these fine spring days as the session plows along, already five days past the prorogation date of last year, with the prospect of many long and busy sittings yet to come.

The house has just completed its 10th week. That is the average length of sessions under the administration of the former government, which usually had MLAs home for Easter.

This year, with a maximum 11 sitting days left before Easter, that possibility is considered less than a sure thing.

The sheer load of legislative work yet to be done is perhaps the most important consideration.

The government has introduced a total of 84 pieces of legislation so far this session.

Although many of them are basically non-cotentious, a considerable number are sure to arouse the members of the opposition enough to want to at least raise objections to principle during second reading debate.

And that stage of consideration is the stumbling block. Only two bills — the Land Commission Act and the Automobile Insurance Act — have passed through second reading. All others have yet to be debated on principle.

Opposition spokesmen are unlikely to allow such bills as the Energy Act or Mineral Land Tax Act to pass without considerable debate.

Premier Barrett is firm in saying that he will allow only a fraction of the government measures to be left on the order paper until the fall session.

That position raises a number of possibilities. One is that the legislature will sit through until Easter, take a week off, and then sit again in May.

Another is that there will be no Easter break, except for a day or two. And the third — the idea favored by Barrett himself — is that the house will be able to divest itself of all its business "three days before Easter."

Last week, in attempting to get the house cracking, Barrett initiated morning sittings on a fairly regular basis. That means on most days the house sits from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. sometimes breaking for lunch, sometimes not — and then coming back at 8 or 8:30 and going until 11 p.m.

Before long, even the dinner break will probably go by the board, leading to 13-hour sittings every day.

This extension appears to have had some results. Speeches are generally shorter, although there are still attempts by some of the Social Credit members to delay proceedings.

However, the estimates of one department, travel industry, involving expenditure of more than $4.5 million, passed Tuesday after less than three minutes.

The only reason it took that long was because the minister, Ernie Hall, wanted to introduce new deputy minister Dick Colby to the legislature.

Another factor to be considered is the fact the MLAs' sessional living allowance of $2,000 — $50 per day over 40 days — has been spent for some time now. That means members are living on their own money, and hotel bills, meal costs and transportation expenses are mounting.

A further potential delay, however, is the indication that significant legislation on government programs has not been introduced for first reading yet.

Establishment of a provincial bill of rights, a better deal for the province's Indians and collective bargaining rights for civil servants are still on the horizon.

Not counting the government's 84 bills, a total of 71 private members' bills have been introduced. These should take up little of the house's time, however, and most will likely die on the order paper.

Levi Asks Patience On Drug Acts

Rehabilitation Minister Norm Levi Wednesday asked patience and understanding from the public for the government's proposed new policy on narcotics control.

The minister explained to opposition MLAs that dispensing free heroin from special clinics would be only one facet of the policy and that the government is "trying to take a look at the problem in a very rational way."

He said that "for the first time in 20 years there is a focus on the (heroin addiction) problem, and it is a fact that we are going to do something."

Levi said MLAs and the public should not "get hung up on the heroin thing." He said the heroin clinics would only be one of a number of methods of attempting to deal with the drug problems.

Other possible methods could be isolation of addicts from the general community, methadone treatment and establishment of a commission on drugs.

PUBLIC DEBATE

"There will be a public debate as to whether we will enter into an experimental approach," he said.

Two Social Credit MLAs — Bob McClelland of Langley and Don Phillips of Peace River South — argued against introduction of any free drugs plan, suggesting it would attract addicts from all over the world and expand British Columbia's narcotics problem rather than diminish it.

Dr. Scott Wallace (PC—Oak Bay) said a free heroin program similar to that used for many years in Britain is "no panacea," but is more enlightened than current efforts to stem narcotics use.

But Dr. Pat McGeer (L—Point Grey) attacked Wallace's statements, saying the government should exercise extreme caution in creating its narcotics policies. He said the free heroin policy has not been an unqualified success.

"The only experience that has proven successful in any country with any drug at any time is to preach abstinance individually and as a society, and to bring the strongest moral suasion to limit the use of these drugs," he said.

Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi said Wednesday he will ask the federal government's health and welfare committee to invite three parents from B.C. to appear before it and testify on the growing drug abuse problem in Canada.

Levi said the province is even prepared to fly the three down to Ottawa if the committee will invite them.

The parents, he said, should come from Victoria, Nanaimo and Kamloops, all communities which have experience in the drug problem.

"We have to have people responding who are confronted with the problem on a day-to-day basis," he said.

Levi said he will approach the federal committee to propose the idea.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MORRY — In memory of my loving son, Ronald Victor, who passed away suddenly 8 years ago.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Lack of Affection Makes a Loner

A while ago I read an article that set me to thinking. The author said that if a baby monkey is brought up all alone in a cage without his mother to give him affection, and without other young monkeys to play with him, he becomes a lonely hermit who is not at all interested in other monkeys, either sexually or in any other way — he is a loner.

If this principle can be applied to human beings, and it would seem that it could, what it suggests is that a mother should give her children plenty of affection, and she should see to it that they have playmates.

Occasionally I see in my office an eccentric and perhaps unmarried and lonely man or woman, and the person tells me that his or her mother gave but little affection. Also, I have had many a patient tell me that during childhood, his mother would never permit a playmate to come into the house. One such patient, whom I came to know well, had always been unable to room with another woman, or to eat with other woman. She was asexual, unmarried, and a sad loner.

Witness Sect Members Jailed

MOSCOW (AP)—A court in Lithuania has sentenced four Jehovah's Witnesses to five years in labor camps and five others to lesser terms.

The Witnesses were accused of building an underground organization, printing and disseminating anti-Soviet literature and urging disobedience of Soviet laws.

Sovietskaya Litva, the newspaper of the Lithuanian Communist party, said the sect's literature and theological directives came from the headquarters of the Witnesses in Brooklyn, N.Y., headed by Nathan Homer Knorr. It called him a "reactionary anti-Communist."

The paper said the Witnesses in the Soviet Union are headed by Wiljias Araijus, described as an elderly man. It reported a court in the Baltic port city of Klaipeda sentenced him and two associates to five years in "strict-regime" labor camps and another person got five years in a less-severe labor camp.

Two more Witnesses got two-year sentences, another got 2½ years, and two others were put on probation for three years.

The paper said Araijus organized secret groups of Witnesses in Lithuania, Latvia and around Leningrad and Kaliningrad.

Sovietskaya Litva said the Witnesses have a tightly organized "multi-stage" leadership structure throughout the Soviet Union that is highly efficient in arranging secret meetings for Bible readings, smuggling pamphlets into the country and reproducing and distributing them.

The paper said a Witness in the town of Vaynod, Alexandra Gechaite, "set up a workshop" to reproduce the sect's magazine, The Watchtower, and other Jehovist tracts.

The group's leaders urge their followers "to shun civic activities, not to observe Soviet laws, and they incite absurd inventions about the 'satanic' character of Soviet power," the paper continued.

It also said the Witnesses were urged not to participate in Soviet elections because this would make them "accomplices in the criminal satanic affairs of Caesar." Araijus, when reminded of the "social benefits" of Soviet power, told the Klaipeda court: "I can give my vote only to Christ," Sovietskaya Litva reported.

KNIT & CHAT

By LOIS HOLMES

This lavish combination offer boasts of two superb cardigans as well as a pair of beautifully fitting knit pants that can be made in plain stockinette or trimmed with either the crochet or knit pattern to match. The crochet cardigan is an easy lattice-shell pattern that creates a very slenderizing line. The shell trim and chain tie add perfect details.

The unusual shell-and-wave pattern in the knit cardigan is so elegant — it looks like embossed heirloom lace. The yarn-overs in the beautiful pattern are further accented by the raglan sleeve detailing because it is knit from the neck down with a minimum of finishing. The flattering collar adds further softness to this charming cardigan, truly making it a "must" for the dedicated knitter. Four-ply yarns are used throughout and sizes small, medium and large are ALL included in each pattern.

To order: 537-588 Shell-and-Wave Cardigan and Lattice-Shell Pantsuit send $1.50 U.S. plus 15 cents for mailing for the pattern (25 cents for air mail) in currency, cheque or money order to Lois Holmes of California, Victoria Times, Box 1005, Gardena, Calif. 90249.

Please print your name, address and pattern number plainly.

Comet May Outshine Stars As It Nears Sun

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — A recently discovered comet, possibly "one of the most striking astronomical sights of the century" could become more brilliant than any star by late fall, the head of the international clearing house for astronomical discoveries here said Wednesday.

The comet Kohoutek, discovered March 7, "could become more brilliant than any star by late autumn and possibly bright enough after Christmas to be seen by daylight," Dr. Brian Marsden said.

Dr. Lubos Kohoutek of the Hamburg Observatory in Bergedorf, West Germany, discovered the comet, which appeared as a very faint object without any discernible tail, slowly moving against the background of stars in the constellation Hydra.

Marsden, basing his information on observations by Kohoutek and several Smithsonian and Japanese astronomers, has plotted an orbit that will bring the comet to its closest approach to the sun on Dec. 27. He said the comet could have naked-eye visibility for some six weeks before and after that date.

"The newly discovered comet Kohoutek is following a path that will bring it close to the sun in nine months and very likely turn it into one of the most striking astronomical sights of the century," Marsden said.

Marsden said comet Kohoutek's apparent size indicated his prediction for its future performance. "At its current distance, some 400 million miles from Earth, the cometary body could not possibly be seen if it wasn't exceptionally large," he said.

"However, some very promising comets of the past have fizzled out," said Marsden.

Arms-Toting Pair Jailed in Rome

ROME (Reuter) — Two men arrested at Rome's Fiumicino Airport with hand grenades and pistols were in jail today as police tried to determine whether they had been planning an attack on the airport or aircraft there.

Fiumicino Airport was the starting point twice last year for anti-Israeli guerrilla operations and two caches of arms have been found there since last November, apparently abandoned when their carriers could not breach security precautions.

The two men, seized Wednesday night when police became suspicious after they wandered about the transit lounge, said they were Iranians. After the arms were found, they were charged with unlawful possession of weapons.

According to their passports, the men lived in Tehran, the Iranian capital. They were identified as Shirazi Bahrami Kiza, 28 and Mirzaqa Ghoulam Akbar, 25.

Police said that when questioned the men said they were "simple arms couriers" and were supposed to take the weapons—each was carrying three grenades and pistol concealed under broad belts—to a European city.

Body Care Gets Paperback Aids

By STASIA EVASUK

Women are runing to doctors, going to spas and using expensive cosmetics in their frantic efforts to ward off age. Some are looking for a quick beauty changeover for spring.

Men and women are going on self-inmprovement programs as doctors warn about the hazards of overeating. We live longer if we eat less and exercise more. The average man and woman has never been better fed and worse nourished. Processed foods are now acknowleged to be a health hazard. What should we eat? How can we live longer and enjoy life? The following paperback books are a guide:

How to Be Healthy and Live Long, by John H. Tobe (Greywood, $1.25), offers a natural plan for eating, exercising and living. It is a new approach to the health food controversy.

"Soon you will find that most of the chemically treated crops that grow in our fields will never reach their destination in a conditionto to eat," says the author who operates a gardening and seed company in St. Catharines.

A list of chemical additives found in your food on an average day is given so you can see for yourself what you are geting when you buy processed foods.

Nature's Way to Health, by Justine Glass (Mayflower, $1.25), is also about eating right and staying healthy. It, too, deals with processed foods, "improved" foods and those heavily dosed with chemicals. Glass also covers poisoning by pollution and the ecological wastage characterizing our time.

Health foods are listed that satisfy real hunger, the hunger of the cells, instead of merely putting a stop to the sensation of wanting food. White bread is on Glass's black list. White sugar is also frowned on because it contributes no vitamins or minerals. "When taken in excess it causes toxic conditions," says the author. "The liver, in order to detoxicate poisons, uses up vitamains, chiefly B and C."

As people age, they slow down, exercises and start deteriorating. But this doesn't have to happen if they at wisely and take exercise. The bogey of the middle-aged spread is debunked and menus given for controlling weight.

Be Young All Your Years, by Stephen Lewis (Beagle Books, $1.25), tells women how to fight age and look younger.

The author explains there is no miracle pill or process to turn back the clock but there are ways to slow down the aging process and look more youthful.

He discusses the neglectful habits that dull beauty and what can be done to make it bloom "One of the most harmful things you can do in terms of aging before your time is letting your weight go up and down like an elevator," he warns.

His book covers the entire field of beauty care.

The 14-Day Miracle Make-Over Program, by Zina Provendie (Award Books, $1.25), is for the woman who feels mousey and unattractive and wants a quick changeover for spring. It outlines how she might transform herself into a charmer who is a delight to look at, listen to and be with.

Posture, the way she wears her bones, is th basic element of her appearance. Round shoulders, a swayback, a sagging bosom or pot belly, all can be corrected and are dealt with in the program.

It also includes a diet program with menus for each day of the week, complete with calorie counts. There is even a list of skin foods to avoid.

Wearing chic clothes is the thing but choosing suits means knowing your figure type. A wardrobe planning guide for different figure shapes shows any woman how she can dress to her best advantage.

Fifties Look Back?

PARIS (UPI) — The straight tube skirt is back. It is longer, creeping well below the knee, and it goes with a long, printed sweater.

That was one of the main new Paris looks for next winter that emerged from the opening rounds of the week-long procession of ready-to-wear collections being shown to press and buyers by Paris designers and manufacturers.

Take the scene at Mendes, a manufacturer who has a stable of young, talented designers.

First off the starting line at the Mendes five-hour show were designer Michel Bruyere's mannequins with skirts almost at the 1970 midi length, high-heeled shoes, Garbo sloppy big-brimmed hats and long, tight sweaters printed with abstract designs or long, loose sweaters with full sleeves and wide cuffs.

"It looks like what my mother used to wear," exclaimed one buyer from Washington, D.C. Another buyer meditated on her past and decided, "It's 1948-1950."

Dresses sailed by with long blouse-on jackets and wide sleeves, a loose look that was also 1950.

The big colors in the Mendes show were the ones also seen all over the Salon de Versailles exposition of the inexpensive ready-to-wear — burgundy wine and bottle green.

Back to 1940 went the crowd with the show of Alberte Barsacq. Little pillbox hats with veils, V-necked boas crepes hanging way below the knee, velvet chokers at the neck.

A new Japanese designer, Issey Miyake, brought applause for a fun collection of midiskirts, jackets and trousers that were stitched for a quilted effect. The long skirts were worn with ankle-high suede shoes with high heels.

Healthful Cake A Spring Tonic

By MARY MOORE

Nntritionists on television programs and in popular mgazines are making an impresion on Canadians.

Every day mail arrives here asking me for more health food recipes.

I am overjoyed and encouraged to try new ways to introduce nutritious foods to our readers.

I had a splendid opportunity to test a cake containing wheat germ, for my daughter's entire family were here from Edmonton for a special birthday celebration. They always enter into the spirit of my testing and make wonderful tenaged guinea pigs.

SPRING TONIC CAKE
(13 x 9")

one 14-oz. can red pited cherries (drained)
1¼ cup sugar
¾ cup shortening
3 eggs
— tsp. vanilla
grated rind 1 orange
2 sups unsifted all-purpose flour
3 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
¾ cup wheat germ
¾ cup milk
½ cup chopped cherries
Drain the cherries.

Measure sugar and shortening into beater bowl and cream until very light. Beat in eggs, vanilla and orange rind. Remove beaters. Combine flour, baking powder, salt and wheat germ and fold these in alternately with the milk. Add drained cherries and nuts with a minimum of stirring. Pour into buttered teflon OR buttered paper-lined 13 x 9" pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. on centre shelf of oven for 40 minutes.

When cool we frosted ours with pink icing and cut it into squares directly from the pan. This cake is full of flavor and other delicious goodies.

NOTE: Use leftover cherry syrup for making a jelly dessert or fruit drink.

Seniors Lose On Pensions

TORONTO (CP) — Canada Pension Plan benefits are often lost by persons who don't know how to fill the forms correctly, says A. A. Ficek, a field officer for the plan.

Ficek told a conference on the elderly poor that although the retirement pension eligibility forms require applicants to declare only income earned by working, many people include investments, bank interests and old age pensions.

"I wouldn't want to hazard a guess what the number is," he said in an interview. "I do know that it involves a great number of people. It's a form of double taxation. People have to pay income tax on the money and then they lose money when they declare it as income."

Teletype Machine A Boon to Deaf People

WINNIPEG (CP) — At one time deaf persons were prohibited in some parts of North America from marrying, told they were not to have children of their own and generally assumed to be incapable of caring for children because of their handicap.

But many of the 600 deaf in Manitoba are finding ways to lead as near-normal a life as possible.

Thanks to the teletype machine and an acoustic coupler invented in 1964 by a United States ham radio operator, they now can make telephone calls. Since the machine was introduced in Manitoba last year, it has become a necessary feature of some 20 households and its use is spreading in Canada.

The machines, made available through Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Telecommunications and the Manitoba telephone system, are repaired and serviced by volunteers from CN-CP, the Canadian Armed Forces Base and the deaf themselves.

Rev. Fred Gehrs, leader of a committee responsible for repairing and distributing the machines, says the deaf are learning quickly but still have much to learn before being able to do a complete repair job without supervision.

EASILY OPERATED

Once installed, the machine is relatively easy to operate. An acoustic coupler box is attached to a telephone receiver and the machine. The caller dials the number, places the receiver into an attached cradle and waits for a response. A flashing light warns the recipient of the call, who then responds by placing his receiver in a similar cradle and typing hello on the machine.

The acoustic coupler translates the electrical signal into audio signals which are sent through the telephone lines and then translated back to an electrical signal that activates a teletype at the other end.

Sister Olive Fiola of the Oblate Sisters of St. Boniface has such a machine in her room, even though she is able to hear. Sister Fiola, a past president of the Manitoba Coordinating Council for Hearing Impaired, says before the units were available deaf persons were dependent on a hearing friend or relative to make calls for them.

CITES COST FACTOR

Now, she says, the deaf hope to establish a 24-hour switchboard staffed by hearing persons who would communicate the message to the person for whom it was meant. Some of the calls to Sister Fiola are convenience calls such as dentist or doctor appointments.

Others, of a more serious nature, are from wives who were beaten by husbands, girls having trouble with friends of the opposite sex and men in need of comfort and someone to share their problems.

Mr. Gehrs said cost is the only deterrent to establishing the around-the-clock switchboard as the service would need a staff of at least five persons. In time, an emergency hook-up with police, fire and ambulance services is planned.

The introduction of the machines has not been without its problems in the initial stages, said Mr. Gehrs. Some parents of deaf children felt their children would spend too much time on the teletype-writers, communicating with their friends. These same persons, however, had since changed their opinions.

Cost of the units has created some problems as well. Though the teletype itself is installed free of charge, cost of the coupler is $168. But for those unable to afford to pay for the service at once, a fund has been set up anonymously from which they can draw the necessary capital, paying the money back through monthly instalments.

Protein Range Eases Budget

TORONTO (CP) — If you're going to cut down on meat to ease the food budget there are many ways to get the protein you should have in a day.

Judy Strang of the Ontario Food Council says that amounts to about 3½ ounces of cooked meat a day is all the protein you need unless you're pregnant, a teen-ager or do heavy work.

She says the equivalent in eggs is three, in milk 2½ glasses. One cup of cooked soya beans provides the protein, as does three ounces of cheese, three tablespoons of peanut butter or ¾ of a cup of cottage cheese.

"There's a wide choice in terms of price and you can use a vegetable source of protein occasionally. Beans cooked from scratch are the cheapest of all, but even beans from a can are cheaper than most meats."

She recommends animal protein such as is found in cheese and eggs because it is a better quality protein. You would have to eat 1½ cups of cooked dried beans to get the protein from 3½ ounces of meat.

"You can use milk in creamed soups. If you use skim milk powder in cooking it's a fantastically cheaper protein than other sources."

Bonnie Lacroix, in the home economics branch of the Ontario department of agriculture, compiled a quick list of substitute protein dishes.

Eggs can be used as creamed hard-cooked eggs flavor with curry or spices, scrambled eggs and potatoes, quiches, souffles with cheese, rice, vegetables.

Cheese and egg combinations include Welsh rarebit, fondues, cheese and onion pie.

Cheese can be used in macaroni and cheese and a whole range of pasta dishes, in cheese stratas, a vetable and cheese bake.

You can serve scalloped potatoes with or without cheese or tomatoes.

Serve a mixture of beans such as kidney or chick pease in a salad, hot or cold. Use beans in a bean and tomato chowder, baked bean casserole, split pea soup.

Milk and fish combine in chowders. Fish can vary in fish loaves, fish cakes, fish patties.

If you count chicken among the things you will include, you can stew and fricassee it or use it in any number of Chinese-Canadian dishes.

Starfish Has Good Points

Housemaid's Knee Gone —Watch for Levi Welt

Last week I began idly skimming through our family medical encyclopedia.

I didn't have to, you understand. Instead I could have thumbed through either a perfectly good issue of Time magazine which featured an intriguing article entitled Does McGovern Stand a Chance in November? or a women's magazine which promised to reveal 120 recipes for Christmas cookies.

I was immediately struck by how many of the diseases in the encyclopedia were out of date. Who gets Housemaid's Knee these days? Or Chauffeur's Elbow, Dyspepsia, Ague, Chilblains, or Catarrh?

What is definitely needed is a whole new list of modern illnesses:

Pizza Palate — Inadvertent ingestion of the entire top layer of a slice of pizza, resulting in severe mozzarella burns on the roof of the mouth. While this affliction may be avoided by allowing the wayward layer to hang out of the mouth temporarily, second-degree chin burns are a decided risk.

Scalp Puncture — Microscopic wounds resulting from sleeping on brush-type hair rollers. If rollers have previously been buried in the sandbox, a tetanus shot is strongly advised.

Pudding Tongue — Circular, often severe lacerations incurred while licking chocolate pudding from torn-off metal lid.

Henna Ears — Condition resulting from overzealous application of home hair coloring product. (Also known as Fireside Brown ears, Smoky Topaz ears, etc.)

Levi Welt — Painful burns in the shape of zippers and rivets incurred while removing hot blue jeans from the clothes dryer.

Underarm Stiffness — Temporary, though extremely uncomfortable, condition resulting from mistaking hair spray for deodorant mist.

Stroganoff Thigh — Mild to severe inflammation resulting from eating off a hot paper plate balanced on your lap.

Female Complaints — A vocal affliction in which the following phrases are completely inaudible to anyone other than the speaker: "Who put the wet mittens on the dining room table?" ... "Would someone let the dog out?" ... "Who put my hair rollers in the sandbox?"

Sis Needs a Shrink

DEAR ABBY: How can parents get rid of a fat, 20-year-old daughter who refuses to look for a job? She says that we gave birth to her for reasons of our own, so we can keep her for the rest of her life.

Eating, sleeping, reading, listening to the radio and doing volunteer work at the local animal shelter, and urging her little brother to hang himself, is all she has done since graduating from high school 2½ years ago.

Her skill with animals has brought her many good job offers from veterinarians, but she says she refuses to work for money as long as her brother is alive, as she fiercely resents not being an only child.

The police say they cannot help us because she is neither a criminal nor a lunatic. Two doctors have told us they cannot help us because they can't find anything "wrong" with her. So where do we go from here? We aren't millionaires, and we're fed up with ... Feeding An Eltphant

DEAR FEEDING: Go to another doctor! This time find a competent psychiatrist. You certainly have enough clubes to conclude that the girl has serious emotional problems. She desperately needs help in getting her head together. And the cost will be "peanuts" compared with feeding an elephant.

DEAR ABBY: Can you get VD from kissing somebody? If you can, maybe I've had it for a year and have already given it to three people.

I didn't even know about this disease until six months ago, and the kid I think might have given it to me moved out of town a year ago.

I am so worried. I am only 15, and I'm not a slut or anything like that. Please don't tell me to talk to my parents. They would never understand. Also our family doctor is a good friend of theirs, so I can't go to him.

I have to know right away, Abby, as my grades are falling off because I'm worried instead of studying. Thank you, and hurry your answer, please.—Worried Sick

DEAR WORRIED: The chances of contracting VD from kissing are very very slim, but if you have gone in for heavy petting, you could be in trouble.

Call your department of public health. Tell them I suggested that you call, and ask for a physical examination to ease your mind. You do not need your parents' consent, and if you need treatment, you'll receive it on a confidential (and free) basis. Please do this today, and good luck.

Entry Deferred

NEW YORK, N.Y. (UPI) — The new deferred admission plan at State University College at Fredonia, N.Y., will guarantee a place for a student for as long as a year.

The plan gives those students who cannot afford college immediately after high school an opportunity to obtain the necessary finances, and give those students who are uncertain about their futures a chance to define their goals.

Anti-Smokers Get Tough

By NANCY WARD

LONDON (FWF) — My father, who prided himself on his imaginative and progressive methods of coping with adolescents, took me aside on my 15th birthday and offered me a cigarette and a glass of sherry. "I am giving you permission to smoke and drink from now on," he said. "I know that if you are forbidden to smoke and drink you will doubtless feel wicked, daring and defiant and will drink and smoke much more than is good for you. If you are allowed to smoke and drink, my guess is that you will find alcohol and tobacco unexciting and will never over-indulge."

Unfortunately one of his theories was quite wrong. I have never been an enthusiastic wine-bibber and can take a glass of sherry or quite happily leave it alone. But, since the day my father presented me with that first cigarette, I have never ceased to smoke like a chimney.

When I was young there were no lung cancer scares, no "danger to health" warnings on cigarette packets and no ego-damaging television advertisements which pointed out that to kiss a girl who smoked was about as much of an aesthetic pleasure as embracing a smelly old ash can. The anti-tobacco league were then voiceless and unmilitant, content with just making pained faces if you blew smoke over their cheese and biscuits in a restaurant or absent-mindedly lit up in the non-smoking compartment of a railway carriage.

From now on, though, we smokers are in for a thin time. Militant and organized anti-tobacco brigades are on the march, determined to insist on their right to breathe air unpolluted by someone else's pipe, cigarette or cigar. They belong to an organisation called GASP — and they're really after us!

Watch for Clara

It seems it will soon be politic to stub out that cigarette and stub it out quick. If not you might well have the uncomfortable experience of having a militant non-smoker like Mrs. Clara Gouin on your tail, determined to make you stop blowing anti-social smoke rings about the place. Smokers throughout North America will soon be an ostracized, outcast, cowed and lost lot indeed when the newly-formed anti-smoke group, founded by the redoubtable and fiery Clara, really gets under way.

GASP stands for Group Against Smokers' Pollution and GASP members are really fuming over the dangers of nicotine. Dangers, that is, to non-smokers. The group is based in Washington and Clara, its dedicated leader, announced recently: "It has been discovered by a group of scientific researchers that smoke inhaled in a room by a non-smoker can do him a great deal of harm. It can adversely affect the disease-protecting devices in the human body. Only one third of the country smokes, so why should the majority be made to feel their right to breathe clean and unpolluted air is inferior to that of a person who insists on indulging in a harmful and disgusting habit?"

Concessions Won

Is Clara's group just a cranky, crackpot lot, doomed soon to breathe its last gasp? Quite the reverse. Their strong and determined lobbying has already forced several government departments in Washington to ban smoking from conference rooms and cafeterias. It has pushed a bill before Congress barring smoking in public places and already some states have enforced the ruling. Many private hospitals have banned smoking and airline hostesses now ask passengers boarding planes: "Smoking or non-smoking compartment?"

All the non-smokers who have ever raged as noxious tobacco fumes waft over them in halls, or non-smoking compartments of buses and trains, will no doubt be delighted to hear of battling Clara's successful war. The fact that it has now been medically proved that tobacco smoke is bad for non-smokers as well as those of us who puff may make non-smokers of the world unite in waging war against the noxious weed.

Soon, perhaps, if GASP gains power and momentum, compulsive tobacco addicts like myself will only feel really at ease when lighting up if we do so in furtive secret behind closed doors or in splendid isolation on top of some remote mountain. Perhaps we will be outlawed by GASP and have to go to court for making a smoky nuisance. Heaven knows, the atmosphere worldwide would be less murky.

I have to admit that Clara is fighting a health battle. But the whole thing makes me feel so nervous, worthless addict that I am, that I am forced to light up a quiet cigarette in order to soothe my fears and tension.

Vancouver Welcomes Rate Hike

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Mayor Art Phillips has joined the United Community Services of Greater Vancouver in welcoming announced increases in welfare rates in the province.

The mayor, however, expresses some concern as to where the estimated $800,000 of the city's share will be found.

The UCS said the proposed rates will bring welfare allowances closer to what is necessary to cope with living costs.

Former Chief Borrowed All Band Funds Says Lawyer

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Vancouver lawyer Harry Rankin told a hearing here Wednesday that Indians are being driven off the Kamloops Indian reserve because band leaders have been borrowing the band's money, leaving nothing for others. Rankin presented the hearing with what he said was "documented evidence" that Gus Gottfriedson, band chief until last December, and his son Frank borrowed a total of $50,000 from band funds.

He said during a break in the hearing the Gottfriedsons have the "political power" on the reserve and are "buying out everyone else." He said if the situation continues, there would not be five families left on the reserve.

The hearing was called by Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien after supporters of Gottfriedson appealed the December election for chief in which Gottfriedson lost to Norman LaRue by three votes. The appeal was based on the contention that 12 voters were not eligible because they were not reserve residents in 1972. Rankin is representing LaRue.

Rankin said he was attempting to show the hearing that many Indians move off the reserve because they cannot find a job or afford to build a house.

To be eligible to vote, an Indian must not be just a band member, but also a resident of the reserve. LaRue had not been living on the reserve but returned to Kamloops last summer while a member of the Fred Quilt committee. LaRue's name is on the list of contested voters.

LaRue was active in protests of the inquest into the death of the Chilcotin Indian, and then stayed on in Kamloops, living part of the time on the reserve.

After Rankin presented two documents showing the Gottfriedsons' loans from band funds, Norman Mullins, representing the justice department, said they were only band council resolutions, and not proof the loans had gone through.

Many of those whose right to vote was questioned told the court they had left the reserve to find work and would prefer to live on the reserve if work was available.

The hearing continues today.

Police Control Of News Hit

The Canadian Radio Television Commission should overrule a recent agreement between private broadcasters and police chiefs governing news dissemination during public disorders, the Victoria Labor Council agreed Wednesday night.

The council will ask the Canadian Labor Congress to make this representation to the CRTC when it meets in Ottawa shortly.

Council secretary Larry Ryan said the agreement, involving private radio and television stations, is compromising principles."

He recalled that several years ago, the B.C. Federation of Labor supported the council in opposing a decision by Victoria police to exclude Radio Station C-FAX from access to news.

He said the intervention of the police chiefs into what radio and televisions might do is not conducive to an open society.

"The media people themselves, for some unknown reason, agreed to restraints on broadcasting news where there is some threat to public order.

"We don't see any good reason why police chiefs should have to get into the picture," he added.

RATES APPROVED

In other business, the council supported increases announced Tuesday by the provincial government in welfare rates.

Ryan said the good life obviously didn't apply to these people.

"It's a good example to the federal government and I think other provinces will follow."

The council was told by Peter Marshall, staff representative for the B.C. Government Employees Union in Victoria, that a meeting Monday will decide whether a referendum will be held among 1,900 local members to affiliate with the council.

He said the Victoria branch has a potential membership of 5,000.

Marshall promised the union's voice will be heard in B.C. Federation of Labor conventions now that a membership referendum had approved affiliation with that body.

The council accepted the affiliation of the BCGEU's Langford branch, along with Local 19 of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and Local P162 of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers at Wednesday's meeting.

Bob Cunningham, delegate from the Greater Victoria School Board Employees Association, said he was "very disappointed" that union supporters in Victoria failed to get behind Jim Beaubien and elect him in last Saturday's aldermanic byelection.

He labelled the byelection winner, Malcolm Anderson, as "super scab," referring to his cleaning of a school during the recent strike and a picture of him doing this which appeared in a newspaper.

SEATTLE 'PLAYING WITH WORDS'—DAVIS

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The superintendent of Seattle City Light is playing with words by suggesting that the Skagit River power project may not be scrapped, Environment Minister Jack Davis said Wednesday night.

Superintendent Gordon Vickery is technically correct in claiming that no agreement has been signed to kill the project, but neither the Canadian nor British Columbia governments will allow it to proceed, Davis told a reporter.

Under the project, agreed to by the power company and the former B.C. government of W. A. C. Bennett, the Ross Dam on the U.S. part of the Skagit was to be raised, flooding 5,200 acres of the Skagit valley in British Columbia.

Davis told the Commons Tuesday night U.S. officials have agreed in principle to hold a series of meetings "with a view to terminating the long-standing contract."

While neither the U.S. government nor the company may yet admit publicly that the project is dead, he said Wednesday night, they understand clearly that Canadian officials will not let if go forward.

The only real issue to be resolved was how much the company would be reimbursed for its investment.

A spokesman for the minister said the company has quoted figures as high as $40 million while the B.C. government has yet to concede that it should be awarded any damages.

Vickery said in Seattle earlier in the day he had been assured by Rufus Smith, U.S. undersecretary for Canadian affairs, that no agreement is in the works to end the project.

John Fraser (PC — Vancouver South) who has been fighting in the Commons to preserve the valley since his election last Oct. 31, immediately charged the Liberal government with deliberate deception or sloppy handling of the Skagit issue.

"We should be able to depend absolutely on the word of a government minister," he declared angrily.

Davis said in an interview he doesn't think the matter will be settled without Seattle suing the provincial government in B.C. Supreme Court.

Wirtz Owns Stock

VANCOUVER (CP) — William Wirtz, president of Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, told a British Columbia Supreme Court jury Wednesday that he now owns 30 per cent of the shares of a company that in turn owns the Vancouver Canucks franchise.

Wirtz, who is also chairman of the league's financial and expansion committees, was testifying at the trial of Tom Scallen, president of Northwest Sports, which owns the Canucks. Scallen is charged with theft by conversion of $3 million and issuing a false prospectus.

Scallen is also president of Minneapolis-based Medical Investment Corp. Ltd. (Medicor) which controls Northwest Sports through a 60-per-cent stock holding.

Wirtz was asked by Crown prosecutor Ray Paris if he is the largest single shareholder in Medicor and he replied, "I don't know for sure."

The Black Hawks president then confirmed he holds 400,000 shares in Medicor and that this represents about 30 per cent of the Medicor stock. The jury had been told earlier that Scallen holds only 10 per cent of the Medicor stock.

NO PLACE TO PLAY

Wirtz said he represents the Black Hawks on the NHL board of governors. His father, Walter, is chairman of the board of the Chicago hockey club.

His testimony followed that of league President Clarence Cambell, who told the jury that Vancouver failed to get a franchise in its first attempt in 1966 because there was no place for the team to play and no evidence of financial capability.

Campbell said no application was made by Vancouver in the next league expansion.

Some Suitable Trees For the Small Garden

A single lot, city garden will accommodate one tree in the street side planting and one at the rear of the home. The garden design from those two points will depend on shrubs, evergreen and deciduous, for character and interest.

While two trees have been mentioned as the limit this is obviously not a firm rule, for everything depends on what trees are chosen and where they are placed.

The smaller the trees at ultimate height, the more can be used. Ornamental crab Malus sargenti and M. Eleyi remain at six feet high and six feet across the head for years of delightful flowering and fruiting. And there are columnar trees such as Prunus amanogawa and the fastigiate Hornbeam (Carpinus) which go up in a column but are not much wider than three to five feet.

Prunus atutumnalis is another small tree for a small garden, with the additional feature of fall and winter bloom in mild situations and mild seasons.

The native Dogwood, Cornus nuttalli is a good choice as are the eastern species C. florida, and the one from China, C. kousa. All are comparatively slow growers. Complementary to them would be a double scarlet Hawthorn, Crataegus oxyacantha "Paul's Scarlet" coming into flower just about the same time.

★ ★ ★

These are all deciduous or leaf-losing trees, leaving the garden open and sunny during winter yet not densely shaded even in summer unless you plant them all in the one garden!

It's rather difficult to find a small growing evergreen tree without going to the conifers. Holly, either the all-green or golden variegated kkind is attractive if the spiny leaves are not disliked though some varieties are almost without prickles.

Taller growing shrubs among the broadleaved evergreens can very well substitute for trees, their density from the ground up forming a sound and sight barrier against traffic. Viburnum tinus, V. rhytidophyllum, Camellias and Rhododendrons are popular examples of these.

Magnolia stellata is small and deciduous, flowering in April from the time it is two feet tall, while fall color will be abundant if Parrotia persica and Liquidambar styraciflua (Sweet-gum) are planted.

Japanese maples are colorful in fall too, and grow well if planted after the sheltering larger shrubs and trees are established.

If you are wise, you leave the planting of choicer and less ordinary plants until the basic tree planting begins to take shape. You will come across such treasures as the Eucryphias, Stewartias, Neillia, Halesia and Exochorda, for all are grown in Victoria gardens, though there may be difficulty in locating them in local nurseries. By placing an order one can obtain these difficult-to-find plants. They are well worth the waiting.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, our West defender made what appeared to be a logical interpretation of the North-South bidding; and, as a consequence, he elected to lead a trump against South's game contract. Unfortunately for his side, the lead turned out to be a costly one. The deal arose at the National Championships of 1972.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ 7 4 3
♡ 5
◇ J 10 9 7 4
♣ K Q 10 5

WEST	EAST
♠ Q 9 8 5	♠ A J 10 6 2
♡ 6 4	♡ 3
◇ A 8 2	◇ Q 5 3
♣ A 6 3 2	♣ J 8 7 4

SOUTH
♠ K
♡ A K Q J 10 9 8 7 2
◇ K 6
♣ 9

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♣	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♡.

South's opening two-club bid was artificial, and forcing for one round. North's two-diamond response was artificial, and negative, announcing fewer than seven high-card points. South's rebid of three hearts, although not forcing, guaranteed a solid heart suit. North, having the most that he could have been expected to have, elected to bid the game at hearts.

North's raise to four hearts had its effect on West, who felt that it might be based on shortness in either spades, diamonds, or clubs (who would have believed that the shortness was in trumps! And so in an attempt to reduce dummy's ruffing ability, West chose a trump as his opening lead.

Had West elected to lead the six of trumps, this hand would have drifted into oblivion, for declarer would then have ended up (probably) losing one spade, two diamonds, and one club. Unfortunately for the defenders, however, West chose the trump four as his opening lead. As is evident, the board's five-spot captured the trick when East followed with the three-spot.

When declarer had sufficiently recovered from his astonishment at having gained access to his "entryless" dummy, he quickly located the trump deuce in his hand and played it to the first trick. Then he applied the crusher by leading the jack of diamonds and played low from his own hand after East had followed suit with the three-spot. West took his ace, and that was that. Declarer's only losers were a spade, a diamond, and a club.

Note that if West had led the six of trumps at trick one, declarer would have had no entry to dummy; and would have had to play continually from his own hand. But, not being clairvoyant, and knowing that he was not going to win the trick, West naturally led his lowest trump.

Gov'ts Blamed for 'Low' Food Prices

The British Columbia Fruit-Growers Association Wednesday condemned federal and provincial governments for responding to public pressure "for higher incomes and low food prices."

The association, in a brief to the legislature's agriculture committee, said wages have risen in the past few years, while the price of food, especially fruits and vegetables, has remained low.

For example, the brief said, "the basic old-age pension rate has not kept pace with inflation and wages, but even so when applied to retail apple prices the 1971 pension in 1971 could buy 23 per cent more than the 1961 pension in 1961."

And these figures refer to retail prices, "which do not show the increasing spread between what the consumer pays and the producer receives," the association said.

"Our requests for action on the part of government to provide policies that will grant equal opportunities to producers of food as are accorded the non-farm sector have fallen on deaf ears.

"The facts clearly indicate that government policy has responded to the desire of the public for higher incomes and lower prices," the asociation said.

"We condemn this policy and philosophy."

The British Columbia Fruit Board, in its submission to the agriculture committee, suggested the government provide a subsidy to fruit growers based on production of "quality" fruit or on some other basis.

The board also suggested that the government implement a policy of giving the board the right of first refusal on purchases of "like fruits and fruit products" imported into B.C.

B.C. Tree Fruits, the marketing agency for provincially-grown fruit, suggested that an automatic surtax be applied to fruit imports to "ensure that the growers would not be facing foreign competition at less than our cost of production."

UVIC STUDENT WINS CASH, TRIP

Allan Wilson, a University of Victoria student completing his Ph.D. in psychology, has been awarded a NATO science fellowship for two years' research in France.

Wilson, who took his bachelor's and master's degree at the University of British Columbia, will receive $8,600 for each of the two years of work.

'GRATEFUL' GRANNY A GOOD SAMARITAN

The Victoria Easter Seals campaign for crippled children got a $900 boost Wednesday from an anonymous Greater Victoria grandmother.

"I have nine grandchildren who are healthy and normal and this is an appreciation. I wish to remain anonymous," she said in a note enclosed with the cheque.

The Greater Victoria Easter Seals campaign, which started March 19 and ends April 24, has reached a total of $20,931, nearly half its $45,000 target.

Contributions may be sent to the offices of the B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children, at 3943D Quadra.

Live Symphony in Schools Termed 'Marvellous' Idea

Taking live symphony music into the schools is a "marvellous idea," says Saanich alderman Fred Severson, but other members of the finance committee hesitate to endorse Victoria Symphony Society's current grant proposal.

The committee tabled further consideration until annual budget discussion later this month after Ald. Leslie Passmore remarked:

"I can't for the life of me understand why a good high-fi stereo can't do as good a job (in the schools). Maybe that's a foolish question, I don't know."

What stopped committee members was the estimated 157 per cent increase in the Saanich share of the symphony's $26,248 operating budget, which is more than doubled, partly because of the school music program.

Last year Saanich contributed $3,882 toward symphony operation and this year would be asked to pay $10,000.

Symphony orchestras are not able to survive on the amounts of money available to them, remarked Ald. Alan Newberry.

Severson replied: "I don't see how the symphony can fold: there are too many people of means involved."

Symphony society president John Di Castri chided aldermen for failing to recognize the orchestra as a valuable educational-recreational program through lunch-time concerts in the schools.

"Canned music," he said, is not a substitute for the "chemistry that takes place with live performance."

It was also pointed out the society is in wage negotiations with symphony musicians.

N. Cowichan Budget Hits $2.7M Mark

NORTH COWICHAN — A 1973 budget totalling $2,772,715 for general purposes and $584,716 for utilities and special areas was adopted Wednesday by North Cowichan council.

School and regional district costs are not included.

The 1973 mill rate for general purposes is up three mills, from 22.5 to 25.5 mills. It includes 3.7 mills for fire protection and .64 mills for utilities.

The higher mill rate, plus a $2,500 increase in the value of one mill on the assessment for general purposes, produce an additional sum of $159,963, municipal clerk Adolphe Vande Casteyen said.

This, in addition to an increased per capita grant of $24,310, plus other adjustments in revenue and expenditure, leaves an amount of $85,000 required to meet the current operating expenses, he said.

"All or part of this deficiency could be met by further increases in taxation or a reduction in expenditure," the clerk said.

New Courses To Start Next Week

The Northwest Coast Institute of the Arts will offer two new courses starting next week, one in spinning and natural dyeing and the other, in batik.

The spinning workshop, designed for those interested in complete wool processing related to weaving or other fibre arts, will be held Thursdays from 1 to 3:30 p.m., starting April 12 and continuing for five weeks at a fee of $18.

Batik methods in wax resist and dyeing will familiarize students with basic tools necessary for batik and will start April 10 and continue for four weeks on Tuesdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m., at a cost of $12.

European Market Sought

SANGUDO, Alta. (CP) — A National Farmers Union district convention voted Wednesday to ask Prime Minister Trudeau to ban importation of U.S. meat and begin developing a European market for Canadian beef.

The group said in a resolution that President Nixon's price freeze on meat would result in increased beef imports and lower prices paid to Canadian livestock producers.

Concern was also expressed about the continued use of a growth hormone, Des, in U.S. meat.

The meeting called for a grain producers plebiscite to determine if rye, flax and rapeseed production should be controlled by the Canadian Wheat Board.

Wives Back Guards

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Wives of guards at the maximum security federal penitentiary here are organizing a campaign to improve some of the conditions under which their husbands work.

Edna Brunning, wife of a guard shot during an unsuccessful escape attempt Friday, said Wednesday a group of wives is writing letters to former prime minister John Diefenbaker, federal MP for Prince Albert.

"We have no suggestion as to what might be done to help the situation, but it is a known fact that the prison has been overcrowded and understaffed for a number of years," she said.

Deaf Protest

SASKATOON (CP) — Students at the school for the deaf have walked out of classes to protest the non-use of sign language in the school.

They are asking for "total communication," including the use of sign language and finger spelling in addition to oral methods of lip reading presently used.

Rev. Harold Hesje, pastor of Bethlehem Church of the Deaf, said the best lip readers get only 25 per cent of what is being said, while most deaf people get only five per cent.

"What kind of education do you get if you sit through 12 years of school, and only get five per cent of what is going on?"

Boycott 'Backward'

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian consumers now are paying for having had cheap food for years and, if they try to limit prices by boycotts they will only force prices even higher because of reduced supply, Dobson Lea, president of Unifarm, said today.

Lea said the attempt by several consumer groups to boycott some food products because of high prices is based largely on incomplete or faulty information. "The end result of such action is that consumers are going to hurt themselves by hurting the producers," he said.

Simpler Marriages

SASKATOON (CP) — Simplification of marriage laws, including recognition of common law marriages and wages for all housewives paid by the state, were among recommendations in a report released today by a community-elected family law reform commission.

The commission — believed to be the first of its kind in Canada — was formed last spring following a seminar on the family and the law. Chairman of the seven-member commission is Judge Mary Carter of Saskatoon.

NIXON MOVES ON PIPE

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon conferred today with Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton on legislation to remove a major obstacle to construction of the controversial Alaska oil pipeline.

The president's conference with Morton here will centre on two pieces of administration-backed legislation Nixon wants Congress to act upon quickly.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused to review an appeals court ruling that existing law precludes the granting of a right-of-way broad enough to accommodate the modern machinery that would be used to build and maintain the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline.

Nixon favors two pieces of legislation that, in essence, would give the secretary of the interior broad discretion in fixing right-of-way limits across public lands.

One would amend the 1920 act, while the other is part of a broader proposed Bureau of Land Management Organic Act.

Communists Attack Across Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — Communists launched attacks in all of South Vietnam's four military regions today, touching off the heaviest fighting since the Jan. 28 cease-fire and stirring fears of a new North Vietnamese-Viet Cong offensive.

In Cambodia, where Communists have cut the last supply route to Phnom Penh, a "state of danger" has been declared giving emergency powers to the government.

In South Vietnam, the fighting ranged from the far north, where the Communists pumped 785 rounds of artillery and mortar fire into a South Vietnamese position in a single 20-minute period, to the Mekong Delta in the south, where 16 Communists and 23 South Vietnamese died in a three-hour battle.

One military source said the Communist attacks were probes designed to find a South Vietnamese weak spot and prepare for a major offensive.

"They (the Communists) never wanted a cease-fire at all. Now they are using the Joint Military Commission, the International Commission of Control and Supervision and the talks in Paris as a shield to gain more time to move supplies into the country, send in reinforcements and prepare for an attack," the source said.

The hot spots included Tong Le Chan, a border ranger base camp only 50 miles north of Saigon.

Tong Le Chan has been surrounded by the Communists since Feb. 26. Its estimated 500 defenders have taken about 33 per cent casualties and the South Vietnamese have said they will have to launch a full-scale relief operation if action is not taken soon.

The ICCS discussed sending a second letter to the two-party JMC, today composed of members from South Vietnam and the Viet Cong, asking the commission to provide a liasion officer to aid in an investigation of the situation.

One letter was sent last Saturday, but there has been no reply.

The Saigon command has said the cease-fire that took effect Jan. 28 could become "fragile" if Communist pressure continues against Tong Le Chan.

Military sources said "fragile" means that the South Vietnamese have a plan — so far only on paper — to relieve Tong Le Chan with a division-size operation of about 10,000 men.

"Such a move could lead to full-scale war in that area," the sources said.

In Cambodia, President Lon Nol officially declared the state of danger after the Communists tightened their grip on the capital Wednesday by severing the last remaining supply line feeding the city despite the 28th consecutive day of heavy U.S. air raids on Communist targets.

Defence officials in Washington said they saw no imminent threat of a collapse of Cambodia but shortly after Communist soldiers cut the capital's vital Highway 5 rice road, the national assembly authorized Lon Nol to issue the "state of danger" decree "should the situation warrant."

U.S. Defence Secretary Elliot Richardson said that the possibility of an airlift, like the one in 1948 which lifted a Communist blockade of Berlin, exists "if the situation is dire enough."

Under the "state of danger," which will be in effect for a minimum of six months, the government is authorized to suspend most constitutionally guaranteed civil liberites, shut down all newspapers except those published by the state and make arrests without warrant or charges.

The decree also carries the death penalty for persons who commit crimes "injurious to the state."

Act Toned Down

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The NDP government has toned down one of the major restrictions under its proposed companies legislation.

The legislation affected states that all companies operating in B.C. must have a majority of directors who are Canadian citizens resident in Canada.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told the legislature Wednesday when he moved second reading of the massive, 157-page Companies Act, that an amendment to the bill will now require the majority of directors of B.C.-based companies to be "persons ordinarily resident in Canada."

The amendment, one of several brought in during the past six weeks as a result of representations to the government and closer study by his department, eliminates the citizenship requirement because the government recognizes it will create difficulties for landed immigrants wanting to establish in some form of free enterprise activity here.

NOT DILUTED

Macdonald claimed, however, that the modified requirement is not "diluting the force" of the original intent of the legislation.

"We believe we are protecting Canada and ensuring those who run companies will have their roots in Canada and their interests in Canada," he said.

Macdonald said thousands of immigrants are entering the province from many parts of the world, bringing capital with them and wanting to start up in business.

Such people "fully intend to put roots down but are not technically Canadian citizens."

"If the wording of the relevant section stays as it is, it will be unfair to them," he added.

WINS APPROVAL

The bill was given approval in principle after more than two hours of debate and some detailed criticism from the Liberal party, notably Liberal lawyer-MLA Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) and Garde Gardom (Vancouver-Point Grey), also a lawyer.

Gardom suggested the legislation be held over for further study and brought back to the fall session of the legislature for third reading.

Gardom also proposed a number of his own amendments which were designed, he said, to provide effective checks and balances on the operations of companies.

He said one of the greatest faults of the present legislation, which has basically served the province well, is that it hasn't been properly enforced and therefore hasn't provided a sufficiently deterring obstacle to the "white-collar crooks."

In moving second reading, Macdonald said one of the amendments to be considered

$867,694 LOSS ON CITY BUSES

B.C. Hydro's bus services in Greater Victoria were $867,694 in the red for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1972, according to figures tabled in the legislature Wednesday night by Premier Dave Barrett.

The loss was up $139,809 from the deficit of $727,885 in the previous year.

Barrett's figures, in answer to questions tabled earlier by Hugh Curtis (PC—Saanich and the Islands), state that revenue from the Greater Victoria transit system in 1971-72 was $1,735,961 while operating expenses totalled $2,603,655. Plant expenditures came to $25,833.

The loss on Hydro's transit operations in Greater Vancouver that year amounted to just over $4 million, up from $3.8 million in 1970-71.

Total losses for the two cities of $4.9 million were made up by a subsidy from Hydro's general revenue, and in addition there was the usual $2 million transit subsidy from the provincial government.

Incidents 'Regrettable'

Brig.-Gen. George Brown today said that two incidents that involved civilians during the "Nasty Deal" training exercise this week should not have happened.

Brown, commander of the 1st Combat Group, said however that he was proud of the alertness of his troops which led to the incidents at and near CFB Esquimalt.

In one case, two workmen on the base were arrested and in the other, troops entered the Tudor House beer parlor.

Brown said he believes that in both incidents, his troops genuinely believed they were carrying out their orders by going after persons suspected to be part of the exercise.

The two workmen were Hans Gajowski and Joe Macerias. Both were allowed on the base without passes and were thus obvious points of suspicion to the troops, whose duty it was to round up any suspicious persons.

The Tudor House incident occurred when troops travelling from Work Point to Naden saw a man they recognized as a "wanted" person in connection with the exercise. The man entered the Tudor House so the soldiers went in after him.

Brown said they knew that the exercise did not involve points off the base, and the incident was "very regrettable."

"They saw the fellow go into the pub and said, "By God, there's a wanted man," Brown said today in an interview.

"... This should not have happened," Brown said, "but it showed they were damned alert."

The general added that despite the "most unfortunate" occurrences, "I don't think it really upset people as much as the newspapers let on."

Chain Cuts Price

The meat boycott produced its first major cut in prices in the U.S. today but prices remained unchanged in most sections of the Canada and the U.S.

In the eastern U.S., a major retail chain in three states slashed the price up to 40 cents a pound on more than 100 meat items.

A spokesman for the firm said the prices would be held at the new levels "as long as possible."

Prices also dipped noticeably in the Bay area of San Francisco, but store managers declined to credit the boycott for the decline.

William Gross, a spokesman for Safeway said the price drops were triggered by the erratic wholesale beef market. He said that in some individual Safeway stores, meats were on display at reduced prices because of lower demand, but he stressed that such reductions were on a store-by-store basis.

The revolt against the high cost of meat has cut retail sales by as much as 40 per cent in some parts of the U.S. today and the layoff of thousands of butchers and other workers.

Frank Registef, executive director of the U.S. National Association of Retail Grocers, said his organization has been making spot checks since the boycott began and meat sales are down an average 40 per cent.

He said, however, "At this time, the retail grocer has no cause for alarm because the same amount of money is being spent." He said total sales are about the same, but meat spending has shifted to poultry and fish.

The shift has been a boon to wholesalers in the fish business. And many fish retailers are experimenting with selling speciality items in addition to fish usually marketed.

"A perfect example" is the sale of shad roe eggs, said Ralph Sachs, sales manager for W. M. Walker Inc., Chicago fish wholesalers.

He said the eggs, a salt water delicacy, were the first he had received this year from the east coast.

OTTAWA (CP) — An investigation has started to determine whether a Mafia ring centred in Toronto is smuggling young Italian men into the United States, Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday. The investigation should be completed in a few days, he said in an interview.

Gold Value Rises

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold shot up $2.25 on the London free market today, but dropped later in the day and was only 30 cents higher than Wednesday at the afternoon fixing price. The value of the dollar declined in early trading against other European currencies, but later recovered slightly.

Protesters Shot

CALCUTTA (UPI) — Police opened fire Wednesday on about 1,000 demonstrators who besieged the royal palace in the mountain kingdom of Sikkim demanding more democratic election laws, officials in the Sikkimese capital of Gangtok reported today.

Freighter Boarded

BREST, France (AP) — A French destroyer stopped a Soviet cargo vessel in the Atlantic today and sent a boarding party to order the ship to return to French waters after it apparently rammed and sank a French fishing trawler.

Bill Lowers Age of Consent

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

The legislature gave approval in principle today to a bill which opposition spokesmen angrily said would allow children between 16 and 19 years to get medical treatment — including abortions — without their parents' consent.

The bill consists of amendments to the Infants Act which Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said provide for protection of children over 16 and under 19 who are travelling away from home and who need medical, surgical, dental or mental treatment.

Spokesmen for all three opposition parties criticized the provisions of the bill and said it would leave the door open for children, living either at home or away from home, to obtain abortions, contraceptives or treatment for venereal disease without their parents approving or without the doctor involved even being required to consult the parents.

When the voice vote was taken, however, the bill was approved, with a substantial number of opposition members opposing it.

Garde Gardom (L—Point Grey) said the bill constitutes a "total elimination of parental consent." In the case where a parent refuses a certain type of treatment for a child, the child could give his permission to the doctor, and the parent's authority would be over-ruled.

Gardom said the bill is an "open sesame" bill without adequate checks and balances to ensure that children are being protected from the consequences of their actions.

Ed Smith (SC—North Peace) said the province will "probably become inundated with children from other parts of Canada" who could receive medical treatment in B.C. that they could not in their home provinces. He said the bill has "deep psychological ramifications" and is an over-reaction by the government to a relatively minor problem.

Gary Lauk (NDP—Vancouver Centre) said the responsibilities of doctors to make adequate consultation with parents and other doctors are not changed by the provisions of the amendments to the Infants Act.

NEW CAR SALES SOAR TO RECORD

DETROIT (UPI) — New car buyers in March beat the spring sales rush as they bought a record 1.1 million automobiles — the most sold in one month in automotive history.

Perdictions made at the end of the record 1972 sales year have been revised upward by auto executives who saw more cars sold in the first three months of 1973 than in any previous first quarter.

The record March sales — up 24.9 per cent from last March — included 963,195 domestic cars and an estimated 175,000 imports, both single-month records. First-quarter sales reached 2,472,722 domestic cars to break a mark established in 1966.

VOLCANO EXPLODES, KILLS TWO IN CHILE

PUERTO AYSEN, Chile (UPI) — Snowcapped Hudson Volcano, dormant two years, exploded in a gigantic fireball today, killing two persons and more than a thousand head of cattle. Debris fell over a 25-mile area.

Police said the 7,500-foot volcano roared into life before dawn, showering flaming lava, rocks and ashes over the Huemules Valley, a sparsely-populated cattle-raising area about 1,000 miles south of Santiago.

Debris continued to fall during the day and in some sections of the valley was six feet deep, police said.

Thieves Main Danger to Peace Men

By JAMES ANDERSON

SAIGON — Not all the dangers in Vietnam are on the battlefields. Major Vance McDougall of Toronto has a police glotter full of incidents and a cast on his right hand to prove it.

Major McDougall, the top military policeman in Canada's truce supervision contingent, had one finger broken and two dislocated when a thief snatched his camera off his wrist last week.

Another Canadian officer was knocked unconscious and robbed by a prowler in his barracks at Tan Son Nhut air base outside Saigon early Wednesday.

Maj. Alex Saunder, 43, of Ottawa, was suffering from a headache, and possibly a mild concussion. Canadian sources said, after the attack the latest incident in a crime wave of robberies against the Canadians and other members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

"We've had two cameras stolen, eight or nine watches and pockets picked for a total of about $400," Major McDougall said.

A sneak thief got into the Canadian quarters at Tan Son Nhut air base outside Saigon last week and got away with 20,000 piastres (about $40) fro ma room in which several officers were sleeping.

From its official equipment, the Canadian contingent has lost five typewriters and two electric generators.

Four Canadians in the past week ran into a South Vietnamese holdup man operating on Nguyen Hue Boulevard outside the Palace Hotel in Central Saigon where a number of Canadian officers and diplomats live.

One of the Canadians identified the man a South Vietnamese sailor, at Saigon police headquarters yesterday. He was picked up within 24 hours after the Canadians filed a complaint to the South Vietnamese police.

U.S. Embassy officials are said to believe that he is also responsible for a number of robberies against Americans and possibly several murders.

With the Canadians, he claimed in each case to be a policeman and demanded

We Might Be Off on a Dry Run

Rain in the first quarter this year has been only half the normal amount, indicating drought conditions and increased danger of forest fires ahead.

April is the first relatively dry month of the year so there is little likelihood of catching up on lost rainfall, despite Wednesday night and this morning's downpour, the weather office said today.

There will be no shortage of water for Greater Victoria, however, because of increased storage capacity built in the last three years. Water Commissioner Ron Upward says the system has up to 15 million gallons stored, and only 10 million will be needed.

The weather office says the Pacific storm tracks have not produced the expected rainfall in 1973. The result: at Gonzales weather station, only 4.07 inches have fallen, compared to the normal of 9.12 inches. The Victoria airport station has had 6.69 inches, against a normal of 12.29 inches.

★ ★ ★

The effects of this have already been felt. Across the province there have been half a dozen reported forest fires and the official forest fire season doesn't start until May 1. Whether 1973 is a bad year for forest fires will still depend on rainfall during the dry months to come, however.

April's normal precipitation is 1.19 inches. May's is .90. June produces a little more with 1.06, followed by July, the driest month, with .57. Then comes August with .71 and rain starts reappearing in September with 1.25 inches normally.

Rain generated on the Pacific has its effect on the Prairies, which can expect drought because of developments already.

A real drought in 1973 would require more extraordinarily dry months. The record dry year here was 1952 when only 16.01 inches fell, compared to the normal 26.19 inches.

To Victoria, the dry year means good weather with no bad side effects in the form of short water supply. The water storage facilities are for 300,000 people, and until the population (about 200,000) catches up, water will not be a problem.

Falling Material Feared by Ex-Builder

Pedestrian Hazard Claimed at Project

A retired Toronto construction company executive has written City Hall complaining of the "complete lack of attention to public safety" at a building construction site on Burdett Avenue.

G. H. Williams, a former Toronto alderman, first contacted the city engineer's office on the matter more than a month ago. He says the building operations on the extension of Wilson Motor Inn are still dangerous despite his complaints.

"The arm of the overhead crane extends over the sidewalk and roadway (I presume with your permission)," the letter reads, "and the constant hauling of materials over the sidewalk, which is entirely without protection, is surely a public danger and in contravention of all the accepted principles of public safety."

★ ★ ★

Williams' letter says the concrete framework "is being placed practically over the sidewalk" and falling lumber would imperil anyone walking on the sidewalk.

A City Hall building inspection official said today he did not want to battle with Williams but he "firmly" believes the site is safe.

He said the complaints had been checked out several times, discussions had been held with the Farmer Construction Ltd. building supervisor and the Workmen's Compensation Board, and it was decided the operations are not dangerous.

WCB spokesman Richard Hill said he inspects the site across from the Executive House every week and it is "definitely safe."

★ ★ ★

Hill said danger warning signs were placed at the site "two or three weeks ago."

"Sure, the cranes hang over the street and sidewalk," he said. "They have to load from the street — that's why the signs were put up."

In a letter to the Times, Williams noted that two small signs marked "Danger, Pedestrians do not stand between signs" were put up at the job.

"But the sidewalk with all its inherent danger is still left open and unprotected," Williams writes.

Williams says he has received no acknowledgement of his telephone calls or his letter, a copy of which was also sent to Mayor Peter Pollen.

The city hall official said he thought a letter had been sent to Williams and it was "very unfortunate" if it had not.

Budget Accord Reached

A compromise was reached today by city council's finance committee over the 1973 Greater Victoria Public Library budget.

Committee agreed, after deliberating 1½ hours, to recommend approval of the budget subject to a reduction in the $4,200 travel allowance by 50 per cent, budgetary provision for a new branch in eastern Saanich for one month of the financial year instead of six months and that the branch not be initiated without further plans being presented to area councils.

Last month, city council formally objected to the library budget, ending hopes then for a new branch to be established in the McKenzie-Shelbourne area. Under the library agreement if one municipality objects then a cut has to be made.

A delegation from the Greater Victoria Library Board, led by chairman and Esquimalt alderman Art Mebbs, asked finance committee to reconsider council's decision.

Mebbs said library costs have increased because of the general inflationary spiral in prices of materials and labor. When the Centennial Branch was located in Saanich, the Town and Country Branch was closed, so the new branch was really a replacement for a discontinued branch rather than an addition to the library system.

He said the Gordon Head area is growing rapidly and the McKenzie-Shelbourne area has "favorable indications" for a branch site.

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen said rapidly escalating costs led council to decline "at this time" to approve the 1973 budget containing provision for the new branch.

He said the library operating budget has increased 83.3 per cent over the last five years.

The city wanted specific demonstration of the need for a new branch. He described the delegation's presentation as "too generalized".

It was Mebbs who, just before the delegation left, suggested the branch be established late in the financial year to reduce this year's financial costs.

'Hawaiian' Flu Wings Into B.C.

Influenza, which attacked the province from the east earlier this year, is now sweeping across British Columbia from the west, apparently from Hawaii, says the B.C. health department.

The new outbreak was identified as influenza type B by a spokesman in Health Minister Dennis Cocke's office. The earlier cases were influenza type A, also referred to as London flu.

★

"While influenza type A was on the rampage here, outbreaks of type B were occurring in the Hawaiian Islands," said the spokesman. "Unfortunately, the viruses are sufficiently dissimilar so that an attack of type A is not protection against type B."

Headache, fever, nausea, a wheezing-type cough and generalized aches and pains are among the sumptoms of the disease.

In some areas of the province school absenteeism has reached 20 per cent.

Dr. John Whitbread, senior public health officer, said today there is no increased absenteeism in Greater Victoria schools, except a minor increase in two schools.

"At this time of the year there's always flu around," he said. This year's flu victims seem to be suffering slightly higher temperatures and abdominal pains, he said.

Inner Harbor 'Concepts' Please City

Victoria city council is enthusiastic about the "people concepts" contained in a Vancouver architect's blueprint for rehabilitating Victoria's Inner Harbor, Mayor Peter Pollen said today.

Promenades, an open-air amphitheatre and a two-deck parking garage with a park on top, are the major recommendations in a preliminary study of the Inner Harbor prepared by architect Arthur Erickson, and presented to city officials earlier this week.

The emphasis of the study is on pleasant atmosphere which would make a visit to the Inner Harbor a privilege and something to look forward to, the mayor indicated.

Pollen said council is "enthusiastic about the concepts which reinforce the new wave of attitudes stressing people orientation . . . and low-scale development."

The study prepared at a cost of $35,000 makes seven major proposals:

—A two-deck parking garage west of the Wax Museum below Belleville. The roof of the structure would be at street level and landscaped as a park.

—A causeway for pedestrians running in a straight line from the Ocean Cement site across the Inner Harbor to the Wax Museum. A small bridge in the centre could be raised to admit small pleasure craft only and would create a quiet tranquil place near the shore.

—A fountain in the area of the harbor cut off by the Causeway.

—A small amphitheatre with a small stage and benches constructed in a semi-circular fashion where the Black Ball Ferry is located.

—The transfer of the ferry terminal to a site west of the existing CP Steamship facilities on Belleville.

—A low density development on the Ocean Cement site, perhaps, residential-commercial, coupled with marina facilities.

—Government and Wharf streets would become one-way streets with wider sidewalks and rows of trees along both sides.

Pollen said he was pleased with the aspects of the plan — now far from being completed — that allow people to be close to the harbor, but declined further comment.

"I don't want to be evasive, but I can't give any comment now. The plan is only in the preliminary stages," the mayor said.

Reporters were barred from attending the meeting Tuesday at which aldermen, members of Victoria Advisory Planning Commission, city hall staff and about 15 provincial government representatives viewed Erickson's preliminary sketches and models.

During the next stage of planning, city council's suggestions will be incorporated into the study.

Erickson achieved fame as the architect and designer of Canada's pavilion at Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me where to get parts for an NSU motorcycle, or the address for the NSU car factory in Germany?—B.R.

A. To our knowledge there is no western Canadian source for NSU motorbike parts, the company having ceased manufacture about eight years ago. The last importer was Fred Deeley Ltd., 901 West Broadway, Vancouver. NSU is now a subsidiary of Volkswagen and maintains a car parts depot in Montreal. But orders for motorcycle parts are not taken. The NSU factory adderss is: NSU Motorwerke, Neckarsulm, West Germany.

Q. Where can I train to be an airplane engineer or mechanic? Also is this place a training institute for all aspects of trades in the country today or are they separated into different institutes? — J.V.

A. B.C. Vocational School, Burnaby, offers a 12-month course leading to attainment of an aircraft maintenance engineer's licence. There is a 12-month waiting list for entry into the program. Write B.C. Vocational School Burnaby, 3650 Willingdon Ave., Burnaby 2, B.C. The school offers training in other trades as well.

Trees

"I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree . . ."

Most people, including those working for forest companies, like trees, but not always for the same reason.

Forest companies are upset by new provincial "guidelines" to protect stream banks from logging and have been giving their opinions before a legislative committee.

See also Page 17

On Tuesday, Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. presented a brief and at the back of the brief, the company's senior field forester, in part of a report originally for "internal consumption," offered these views.

—"I think that a narrow fringe around lakes and rivers is visually unpleasant, particularly in the first few years. I much prefer to see a clean area with all the fringe trees and leaners removed. In time this area will be a smooth, even-aged stand which to me is aesthetically pleasing."

—"In my opinion, a green strip, to be effective, would have to be tree height in width plus an attrition strip . . .

"With a minimum tree height of 100 feet, plus an attrition strip of 50 feet, there would be a minimum width of 150 feet on each side of the creek.

"A green strip 300 feet wide (minimum) on every stream would withdraw an enormous amount of wood from the available volume which is a waste of the forest resource."

Earlier in his report, which deals with the Port McNeill and Quatsino Sound regions, he says:

"In all cases I met with an attitude (from Rayonier staff) of honest intent to leave the fish stream in a relatively clean and undisturbed state at the completion of logging. This honest intent was sometimes weakened by a lack of knowledge and by economic considerations."

And later:

"Our staff naturally tends toward the most efficient methods of stream protection and rehabilitation. No one sends a bulldozer down the stream any more but one could easily find examples in each camp where economic considerations, coupled with a lack of specific knowledge, have been detrimental to the fish resource. To what extent the action was geared . . . don't think anyone would be able to say."

The forester says variable sources of labor are used to hand-clean streams after completion of logging. Limbs and smaller pieces are placed on the river bank by the cleanup crews.

"An unfortunate occurence is that high water frequently washes this material back into the creek again . . ."

Earlier in the brief, the company appears to be hinting that fishermen should help pay the costs of keeping streams safe from logging.

There is this comment under the heading, Costs:

"We are concerned about the mounting costs of stream protection and rehabilitation . . . No suggestion has yet come forth with respect to recovering costs in private timber.

"And, to the best of our knowledge, no real effort has been made to consider what part the fish resource users should play in defraying these costs."

Terrace Housing Plans Unveiled

Plans for the first terrace housing in the Greater Victoria area were unveiled at Oak Bay council's zoning committee meeting today.

Presented by Frank Carson of Yennadon Holdings Ltd. and architect David Hambleton, the plans call for either eight or nine terrace houses on a lot on the corner of Oak Bay and Yale, opposite the municipal hall.

Carson said the units would be similar to ones in California and England, designed for couples who want to live in the midddle of town, having their own backyard, as opposed to people who prefer living in an apartment condominium.

Carson estimated that the houses would cost between $35,000 and $40,000.

Carson agreed that his project would be negotiated with council through a land-use contract and that Hambleton would remain on the project as architect.

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White was asked to report what type of density and traffic would be germinated by this type of development.

Painless Confrontation

Brief bursts from laser beam are fired into patient's eye by a $23,000 argon laser photocoagulator, installed at Victoria General Hospital and scheduled to go operational later this month.

Patient's position is demonstrated by Mrs. Pamela Marchand, ophthalmic technician, as Dr. R. L. Wiggins illustrates how pinpoint beam is focused through binocular microscope. Alix Matte, chief technician in the opthalmology service, is in background.

Beam is used to seal proliferating blood vessels at back of eye or repair holes and tears in retina.

The treatment is painless. An estimated 400 patients a year will benefit from new machine.

He's Golf's New 'Mr. Personality' And Amateur Threat to Win Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A cluster of giggling girls strained against the ropes around the Augusta National practice putting green and thrust pencils, tickets and scraps of paper at the golfer on the other side.

The target of the onslaught wasn't Arnold Palmer, nor Jack Nicklaus, nor modish Johnny Miller nor chatterbox Lee Trevino.

It was Ben Crenshaw, 20, from Austin, Tex., golf's new Mr. Personality, who many are predicting is the game's super star of the future.

When Palmer is tired of missing three-foot putts and Nicklaus has become bored with $50,000 cheques and Grand Slam talk, young Crenshaw may be the player who draws the big galleries.

In the 37th Masters Tournament, starting today, Crenshaw, an amateur, is paired with Arnold Palmer, four times winner and the man whose personal magnetism sent the game on a dizzying spiral in the 1960s.

"He's one hell of a player," said Palmer.

"I rate him one of the 10 best players in the world, pro or amateur," said Australia's David Graham. "You can tell he's destined to be a great champion by the way he grips a club.

"Few men possess a strong, almost infallable grip. Sam Snead does. Ben Hogan did. And of course, Palmer and Nicklaus. So does Crenshaw. He could win here—make no mistake about it."

No amateur has ever won the Masters, although some have come close.

The select field starting today's tournament consists of 59 American pros, 15 foreign pros, six U.S. and two foreign amateurs. Included are pro George Knudson of Toronto and amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont.

They were scheduled in pairs over the 6,980-yard, par-72 layout.

The prize money, modest by tour standards, is fixed by the Masters sponsors. The champion can count on about $25,000.

But pride takes precedent over money in this event, with Nicklaus seeking his fifth Masters and a 14th major crown which would set him a rung above the late Bob Jones.

Billy Casper, the 1970 winner, wasn't sure he'd fixed the pull in his back which forced him to stop practice abruptly Tuesday.

"I'll try to play, but I can't guarantee anything," he said.

Trevino, British Open champion and the year's leading money winner, couldn't guarantee anything either.

"I just can't play this course," he moaned. "I've had two straight rounds of 78 in practice. The last eight rounds I've played, I haven't had one round under par."

Nats Find a Roost At Least for Now

TORONTO (CP) — Ottawa Nationals have found a place to play their playoff games, but where they'll call home next year is still uncertain.

If Bill Ballard, vice-president of Maple Leaf Gardens, has his way the World Hockey Association club will play in the Gardens next year.

Nick Trbovich, majority shareholder, told a hastily-called news conference Wednesday night it has been decided "that Toronto is home—at least for the playoffs."

President Doug Michele said in Ottawa the club has been forced to use the Gardens.

Trbovich said the team is "in full-scale negotiations for next year," but Michel said it has "been able to break off negotiations as far as next year is concerned."

One thing is certain: Ottawa Nationals will open their home playoff stand at the Gardens against New England Whalers next Tuesday.

Ballard and Trbovich say negotiations are continuing to bring the club to Toronto next year. Trbovich said the negotiations do not involve sale of the club, just a rental agreement for next year.

However, he also said: "Principally, I'm interested in additional Canadian participation. . . ."

Ballard said if he didn't think the Nationals would be in Toronto next year, "I wouldn't have them here for the playoffs."

Coliseum Packed For Karen's Party

VANCOUVER (CP) — Karen Magnussen, the best female figure skater in the world, celebrated her 21st birthday Wednesday night by giving and receiving.

A turn-away crowd of 16,336 paid a dollar a head to take part in an Honor Karen program at the Pacific Coliseum, with the world figure skating champion skating a 13-minute routine. Free skating star Toller Cranston of Toronto and other Canadian and British Columbia champions also took part.

Miss Magnussen received numerous gifts, including a new car—but she'll have to ask her parents every time she wants to drive it. All gifts valued at more than $150 will be held in trust or placed in her parents' names, to protect Karen's amateur status.

The special program, sanctioned by the Canadian Figure Skating Association, was sponsored by the Pacific National Exhibition. Proceeds will be used to establish the Karen Magnussen Bursary Fund, to help in the development of young skaters in B.C.

Saints Advance Into Playoffs

By The Canadian Press

Minnesota Fighting Saints advanced to the World Hockey Association quarter-finals with a sudden-death decision over Alberta Oilers Wednesday while Cleveland Crusaders drew first playoff blood.

The Saints dumped the Oilers 4-2 in the tie-breaker between the clubs who finished together in fourth spot in the Western Division.

The Crusaders edged Philadelphia Blazers 3-2 in overtime in the first game of their best-of-seven quarter-final at Cleveland.

Minnesota's victory over the Oilers at Calgary sends them into the quarter-final against Winnipeg Jets, starting Friday in Winnipeg.

It was the second battle Minnesota had to stage to reach the playoffs and they won it with goals by Mel Pearson, Wayne Connelly, Mike Antonovich and Bill Young.

Earlier, the Saints had to fight off a league directive which would have given Alberta the playoff spot by virtue of the Oilers' superior record against West Division competition during the season. That was ruled out after a poll of league trustees Sunday.

Ron Buchanan's goal at 10:16 of overtime gave Cleveland the victory and the series lead going into the second game of their series Saturday, also at Cleveland.

Tonight's only action sees Los Angeles Sharks and Houston Aeros opening their quarter-final encounter at Houston.

The other series, between Ottawa Nationals and New England Whalers, opens Saturday at Boston.

Communists Attack Across Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — Communists launched attacks in all of South Vietnam's four military regions today, touching off the heaviest fighting since the Jan. 28 cease-fire and stirring fears of a new North Vietnamese-Viet Cong offensive.

In Cambodia, where Communists have cut the last supply route to Phnom Penh, a "state of danger" has been declared giving emergency powers to the government.

In South Vietnam, the fighting ranged from the far north, where the Communists pumped 785 rounds of artillery and mortar fire into a South Vietnamese position in a single 20-minute period, to the Mekong Delta in the south, where 16 Communists and 23 South Vietnamese died in a three-hour battle.

One military source said the Communist attacks were probes designed to find a South Vietnamese weak spot and prepare for a major offensive.

"They (the Communists) never wanted a cease-fire at all. Now they are using the Joint Military Commission, the International Commission of Control and Supervision and the talks in Paris as a shield to gain more time to move supplies into the country, send in reinforcements and prepare for an attack," the source said.

The hot spots included Tong Le Chan, a border ranger base camp only 50 miles north of Saigon.

Tong Le Chan has been surrounded by the Communists since Feb. 26. Its estimated 500 defenders have taken about 33 per cent casualties and the South Vietnamese have said they will have to launch a full-scale relief operation if action is not taken soon.

The ICCS discussed sending a second letter to the two-party JMC, today composed of members from South Vietnam and the Viet Cong, asking the commission to provide a liasion officer to aid in an investigation of the situation.

One letter was sent last Saturday, but there has been no reply.

The Saigon command has said the cease-fire that took effect Jan. 28 could become "fragile" if Communist pressure continues against Tong Le Chan.

Military sources said "fragile" means that the South Vietnamese have a plan — so far only on paper — to relieve Tong Le Chan with a division-size operation of about 10,000 men.

"Such a move could lead to full-scale war in that area," the sources said.

In Cambodia, President Lon Nol officially declared the state of danger after the Communists tightened their grip on the capital Wednesday by severing the last remaining supply line feeding the city despite the 28th consecutive day of heavy U.S. air raids on Communist targets.

Defence officials in Washington said they saw no imminent threat of a collapse of Cambodia but shortly after Communist soldiers cut the capital's vital Highway 5 rice road, the national assembly authorized Lon Nol to issue the "state of danger" decree "should the situation warrant."

U.S. Defence Secretary Elliot Richardson said that the possibility of an airlift, like the one in 1948 which lifted a Communist blockade of Berlin, exists "if the situation is dire enough."

Under the "state of danger," which will be in effect for a minimum of six months, the government is authorized to suspend most constitutionally guaranteed civil liberites, shut down all newspapers except those published by the state and make arrests without warrant or charges.

The decree also carries the death penalty for persons who commit crimes "injurious to the state."

NIXON ACTS ON PIPE

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon conferred today with Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton on legislation to remove a major obstacle to construction of the controversial Alaska oil pipeline.

The president's conference with Morton here will centre on two pieces of administration-backed legislation Nixon wants Congress to act upon quickly.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused to review an appeals court ruling that existing law precludes the granting of a right-of-way broad enough to accommodate the modern machinery that would be used to build and maintain the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline.

Nixon favors two pieces of legislation that, in essence, would give the secretary of the interior broad discretion in fixing right-of-way limits across public lands.

One would amend the 1920 act, while the other is part of a broader proposed Bureau of Land Management Organic Act.

Once Congress takes up the pipeline issue, one proposal to be discussed is the construction of a pipeline from the Arctic Slope to U.S. markets across Canada.

Act Toned Down

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The NDP government has toned down one of the major restrictions under its proposed companies legislation.

The legislation affected states that all companies operating in B.C. must have a majority of directors who are Canadian citizens resident in Canada.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald told the legislature Wednesday when he moved second reading of the massive, 157-page Companies Act, that an amendment to the bill will now require the majority of directors of B.C.-based companies to be "persons ordinarily resident in Canada."

The amendment, one of several brought in during the past six weeks as a result of representations to the government and closer study by his department, eliminates the citizenship requirement because the government recognizes it will create difficulties for landed immigrants wanting to establish in some form of free enterprise activity here.

NOT DILUTED

Macdonald claimed, however, that the modified requirement is not "diluting the force" of the original intent of the legislation.

"We believe we are protecting Canada and ensuring those who run companies will have their roots in Canada and their interests in Canada," he said.

Macdonald said thousands of immigrants are entering the province from many parts of the world, bringing capital with them and wanting to start up in business.

Such people "fully intend to put roots down but are not technically Canadian citizens."

"If the wording of the relevant section stays as it is, it will be unfair to them," he added.

WINS APPROVAL

The bill was given approval in principle after more than two hours of debate and some detailed criticism from the Liberal party, notably Liberal lawyer-MLA Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) and Garde Gardom (Vancouver-Point Grey), also a lawyer.

Gardom suggested the legislation be held over for further study and brought back to the fall session of the legislature for third reading.

Gardom also proposed a number of his own amendments which were designed, he said, to provide effective checks and balances on the operations of companies.

He said one of the greatest faults of the present legislation, which has basically served the province well, is that it hasn't been properly enforced and therefore hasn't provided a sufficiently deterring obstacle to the "white-collar crooks."

In moving second reading, Macdonald said one of the amendments to be considered

$867,694 LOSS ON CITY BUSES

B.C. Hydro's bus services in Greater Victoria were $867,694 in the red for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1972, according to figures tabled in the legislature Wednesday night by Premier Dave Barrett.

The loss was up $139,809 from the deficit of $727,885 in the previous year.

Barrett's figures, in answer to questions tabled earlier by Hugh Curtis (PC—Saanich and the Islands), state that revenue from the Greater Victoria transit system in 1971-72 was $1,735,961 while operating expenses totalled $2,603,655. Plant expenditures came to $25,833.

The loss on Hydro's transit operations in Greater Vancouver that year amounted to just over $4 million, up from $3.8 million in 1970-71.

Total losses for the two cities of $4.9 million were made up by a subsidy from Hydro's general revenue, and in addition there was the usual $2 million transit subsidy from the provincial government.

Incidents 'Regrettable'

Brig.-Gen. George Brown today said that two incidents that involved civilians during the "Nasty Deal" training exercise this week should not have happened.

Brown, commander of the 1st Combat Group, said however that he was proud of the alertness of his troops which led to the incidents at and near CFB Esquimalt.

In one case, two workmen on the base were arrested and in the other, troops entered the Tudor House beer parlor.

Brown said he believes that in both incidents, his troops genuinely believed they were carrying out their orders by going after persons suspected to be part of the exercise.

The two workmen were Hans Gajowski and Joe Macerias. Both were allowed on the base without passes and were thus obvious points of suspicion to the troops, whose duty it was to round up any suspicious persons.

The Tudor House incident occurred when troops travelling from Work Point to Naden saw a man they recognized as a "wanted" person in connection with the exercise. The man entered the Tudor House so the soldiers went in after him.

Brown said they knew that the exercise did not involve points off the base, and the incident was "very regrettable."

"They saw the fellow go into the pub and said, "By God, there's a wanted man,"

Brown said today in an interview.

"... This should not have happened," Brown said, "but it showed they were damned alert."

The general added that despite the "most unfortunate" occurrences, "I don't think it really upset people as much as the newspapers let on."

Chain Cuts Price

The meat boycott produced its first major cut in prices in the eastern U.S. today but prices remained unchanged in most sections of Canada and the U.S.

In the eastern U.S., a major retail chain in three states slashed the price up to 40 cents a pound on more than 100 meat items.

A spokesman for the firm said the prices would be held at the new levels "as long as possible."

Prices also dipped noticeably in the Bay area of San Francisco, but store managers declined to credit the boycott for the decline.

William Gross, a spokesman for Safeway said the price drops were triggered by the erratic wholesale beef market. He said that in some individual Safeway stores, meats were on display at reduced prices because of lower demand, but he stressed that such reductions were on a store-by-store basis.

The revolt against the high cost of meat has cut retail sales by as much as 70 per cent in some parts of the U.S. today and laid off thousands of butchers and other workers.

Frank Register, executive director of the U.S. National Association of Retail Grocers, said his organization has been making spot checks since the boycott began and meat sales are down an average 40 per cent.

He said, however, "At this time, the retail grocer has no cause for alarm because the same amount of money is being spent." He said total sales are about the same, but meat spending has shifted to poultry and fish.

The shift has been a boon to wholesalers in the fish business. And many fish retailers are experimenting with selling speciality items in addition to fish usually marketed.

"A perfect example" is the sale of shad roe eggs, said Ralph Sachs, sales manager for W. M. Walker Inc., Chicago fish wholesalers.

He said the eggs, a salt water delicacy, were the first he had received this year from from the east coast.

Bill Lowers Age of Consent

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

The legislature gave approval in principle today to a bill which opposition spokesmen angrily said would allow children between 16 and 19 years to get medical treatment — including abortions — without their parents' consent.

The bill consists of amendments to the Infants Act which Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said provide for protection of children over 16 and under 19 who are travelling away from home and who need medical, surgical, dental or mental treatment.

Spokesmen for all three opposition parties criticized the provisions of the bill and said it would leave the door open for children, living either at home or away from home, to obtain abortions, contraceptives or treatment for venereal disease without their parents approving or without the doctor involved even being required to consult the parents.

When the voice vote was taken, however, the bill was approved, with a substantial number of opposition members opposing it.

Garde Gardom (L—Point Grey) said the bill constitutes a "total elimination of parental consent." In the case where a parent refuses a certain type of treatment for a child, the child could give his permission to the doctor and the parent's authority would be over-ruled.

Gardom said the bill is an "open sesame" bill without adequate checks and balances to ensure that children are being protected from the consequences of their actions.

Ed Smith (SC—North Peace) said the province will "probably become inundated with children from other parts of Canada" who could receive medical treatment in B.C. that they could not in their home provinces. He said the bill has "deep psychological ramifications" and is an over-reaction by the government to a relatively minor problem.

Gary Lauk (NDP—Vancouver Centre) said the responsibilities of doctors to make adequate consultation with parents and other doctors are not changed by the provisions of the amendments to the Infants Act.

VOLCANO EXPLODES, KILLS TWO IN CHILE

PUERTO AYSEN, Chile (UPI) — Snowcapped Hudson Volcano, dormant two years, exploded in a gigantic fireball today, killing two persons and more than a thousand head of cattle. Debris fell over a 25-mile area.

Police said the 7,500-foot volcano roared into life before dawn, showering flaming lava, rocks and ashes over the Huemules Valley, a sparsely-populated cattle-raising area about 1,000 miles south of Santiago.

Debris continued to fall during the day and in some sections of the valley was six feet deep, police said.

SAIGON — Not all the dangers in Vietnam are on the battlefields. Major Vance McDougall of Toronto has a police blotter full in incidents and a cast on his right hand to prove it.

From its official equipment, the Canadian contingent has lost five typewriters and two electric generators.

Four Canadians in the past week ran into a South Vietnamese holdup man operating on Nguyen Hue Boulevard outside the Palace Hotel in Central Saigon where a number of Canadian officers and diplomats live.

One of the Canadians identified the man, a South Vietnamese sailor, at Saigon police headquarters yesterday. He was picked up within 24 hours after the Canadians filed a complaint to the South Vietnamese police.

U.S. Embassy officials are said to believe that he is also responsible for a number of robberies against Americans and possibly several murders.

With the Canadians, he claimed in each case to be a policeman and demanded
